SHAKING DOWN THE TRUSTS.

Chas. G. Dawes Visits Wall Street and Promises Republican Party Will Be Good.

Under New York date line of Sept. 19 the daily papers of the country publish a dispatch from which the following is taken:

"The visit of Charles G. Dawes, of Chicago (formerly Comptroller of the Currency) had more influence than anything else in arousing Wall street uneasiness. Mr. Dawes came to New York primarily to raise money for the Republican congressional campaign committee, and he gave the people he called upon very clearly to understand that the Republican majority in the house is in danger.

"Wall street has steeled itself against the importunities of political canvassers for funds, but Mr. Dawes' visit was unquestionably impressive. The people who saw and heard him were convinced that he really meant what he said when he announced that unless means were taken to arrest the current and change the situation the Democrats would swing into control of the popular branch of congress and probably elect a president. Mr. Dawes did not confine his visit alone to bankers and financiers He devoted a good share of his attention to leading representatives of the manufacturing interests. He carried away some money, but not nearly as much as he had hoped for."

EXTRAVAGANCE GALORE.

A Change Needed in Order to Get Down to an Economical Administration.

The federal administration last year spent $54,000,000 more than it spent in the 1898 war. At the recent banker's convention Lawrence S. Gillespie, president of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, discussing the administration, said:

"As in our private life so in our national finances, the year 1907 seems to have been one of exceeding cost and expenditure. The government statement at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1908, shows a deficit of $59,656,361 and the increased deficit in July and August amounting to $28,728,000 brings the total deficit for the preceding fourteen months up to $88,434,361, with reduced revenues of $65,000,000. The year preceding we had a surplus of $87,000,000.

"The government disbursement was $659,552,124, being in excess of the revenues in any year except 1906 and 1907 and $54,000,000 more than was spent in the year when we conducted the war against Spain and paid the expense of landing armies in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands."

The Republican national committee denies it has received this year a dollar from the Standard Oil company or any subsidiary corporations. Having said who is NOT putting up the money, now let them tell us who IS putting it up, under oath. Will they do it?

PROTECT DEPOSITS

GUARANTEE PLANK ONE OF MR. BRYAN'S WINNING CARDS.

The Object Lesson in Oklahoma and Convincing Men that their Savings in Banks Should be Protected as Well as Government Deposits.

The Democratic National Platform favors guaranteed bank deposits; the Republican platform is silent on that subject. Mr. Bryan heartily champions the plan; Mr. Taft is strongly opposed to it.

Mr. Taft and Guaranteed Deposits.

In his speech of acceptance Mr. Taft puts himself squarely on record as being opposed to guaranteed deposits. He says: "The Democratic platform recommends a tax upon national banks and upon such state banks as may come in, in the nature of enforced insurance to raise a guaranty fund to pay the depositors of any bank which fails. The proposal is wholly impracticable unless it is to be accompanied by a complete revolution in our banking system, with a supervision so close as practically to create a government bank. If the proposal were adopted exactly as the Democratic platform suggests, it would bring the whole banking system of the country down in ruin."

Why seek to confuse the people on a simple proposition? We are supposed to have Government supervision of national banks now. Supervision does not mean a government bank; it simply means that the national bank inspectors will do just as they are expected to do under existing law—make their examination of banks thorough and make prompt and effective correction of any irregularities discovered. So it will be difficult to frighten the people by the claim that guaranteed deposits means thorough supervision of banks. That's just exactly what the people want.

It is absurd to say that guaranteed deposits would "bring the whole banking system of the country down to ruin."

What does "guaranteed deposits" mean? It means that the savings of the masses shall be secured so that when men and women deposit their hard-earned money in banking institutions, they need not worry for fear it will be lost through the recklessness and dishonesty of bank officials. The Federal Government demands of these banks security for the money it deposits. As a rule state governments and county governments and municipal governments make similar requirements. But now that it is proposed that depositors generally shall have some such assurance for the safe keeping of their wealth, we are told by the Republican candidate for the Presidency that the adoption of such a plan "would bring the whole banking system of the country down to ruin."

Oklahoma's Object Lesson.

Oklahoma has the guaranteed deposit plan and the following Associated Press dispatch tells of its operation in the first bank failure since the law went into effect:

"Guthrie, Okla., May 21, 1908.—Within one hour from the time H. H Smock, Oklahoma banking commissioner, had taken charge of the International Bank of Colgate he had authority to pay the depositors in full, though the bank's cash and available funds in other banks fell $22,000 short of the total amount of deposits. The commissioner was enabled to do this under the operation of the new banking law, and this is the first time it has been called into use. Under the operation of the guaranty banking law of Oklahoma a tariff of 1 cent is levied upon the average annual deposits of the banks, and this money is used in payment in full of all depositors of an insolvent state bank, after the funds have been exhausted."

Will the Banks Answer This?

In addition to the arguments already presented in favor of the guaranteed bank, the following is submitted:

The United States Government requires a deposit of specific security when it deposits money in a national bank; the state also requires security, and the county and city deposits are secured either by bonds or by the deposit of specific securities.

Now the question arises, if the United States Government, which can at any time inspect a bank and find out just what it is doing and how its business is being conducted, requires security for its deposits, why should not security be given to the depositor who cannot examine for himself and does not know anything about the bank's solvency or methods? And loss to the national government, to the state, to the county or to the city would be borne by all the people and thus be small upon each one, while the loss to the individual has to be borne entirely by himself and may wipe out his entire savings. Is not the argument stronger in favor of the protection of depositors than it is in favor of the protection of the nation, the state, the county or the city?

But the case is even stronger when the bank is required to put up specific security for the protection of national, state, country, or city deposits. Its gilt-edged securities are thus hypothecated and the inferior securities are left for the security of the depositors,
