MORALS RELIGION AND COMMON SENSE
IN SELECTED STORIES

The story is told of a family who lost three children in a week by diphtheria, only the little, three-year-old escaped. When Sunday came, the parents and child were at church. The mother taught her class of girls that day in Sabbath school. The father went to the superintendent's desk and led his school in worship and read the Easter story with only a slight break now and then in his voice. Amid the faces lined by suffering, rebellion, and despair, amid the badges of sorrow and mourning and the silent voices of the Easter congregation, they had seemed a miracle. "How can they?" men and women said to each other as they left the church. A fiften-year-old boy, walking home with his father from the Sabbath school said hesitatingly, "Dad, I guess Mr. and Mrs. L—— really believe it, don't they?" "Believe what?" said the father, for he thought slowly. "The whole big thing, all of it, Easter, you know." "Of course," answered the father, "all Christians believe it." "Not that way," said the boy. Let us believe it strongly; believe it triumphantly—"the whole big thing, all of it, Easter." It will make a great difference in our lives if we truly believe it.

—The Expositor

A northern man, spending the summer in the South, went to see the last ball game of a series between two local teams. For a time he could not observe any umpire, but at last he spied him sitting up in the grand stand among the spectators.

"Great guns, man!" the northern man exclaimed to a native, "What's the umpire doing in the grand stand?"

"Well," explained the native, "The spectators used to accuse him of bum work, so he 'lowed that if the folks up in the grand stand could see every play so good, he'd better go up there to do his umpirin'."
