BALTIMORE CITY PROPERTY
TAX RECORDS

RG. 4 BALTIMORE CITY PROPERTY TAX RECORDS 1798-PRESENT

The tax records do not properly constitute a record group. Their maintenance by numerous agencies and officials in a complex taxation system required them to be described as such for the convenience of researchers. The exceptions to this are the related records of the Appeal Tax Court (RG. 5) and the Baltimore City Collector (RG. 40).

The taxation system prior to the city charter of 1796 was completely dependent upon the state government. The origin of a general property tax dates back to 1750, when the Baltimore Town Commissioners were allowed to levy a tax of one shilling, six pence on every one hundred pounds of assessed property. This aspect of taxation remained in force until the charter incorporated that document. The creation of the Baltimore Town Special Commissioners (1782) and the Board of Port Wardens (1783) also introduced other special taxes and fees.

The new municipal government in 1797 brought autonomy to many aspects of the town's political life. Although taxation was still dominated by the state, the charter of 1796 began an evolution towards a modern, autonomous taxation system for the city. The earliest development was the creation of a City Collector (RG. 40) and City Register (RG. 32). The collector was generally responsible for enforcing payment of municipal taxes and dues, and the register primarily functioned as treasurer. Prior to 1856 the tax records were probably maintained by either the collector or register with duplications possibly existing in both offices. (The tax books from 1856 on are clearly identified as part of the City Collector's records.)

The responsibilities of these offices were continually modified through the nineteenth century. The Appeal Tax Court (RG. 5) was created in 1841 (consisting of two assessors and the City Collector) to serve as a Board of Review and Assessments. In 1852/53 the City Auditor (RG. 6) was created to oversee municipal taxes, assessment collections, and collections of arrearages. This office was gradually absorbed by the City Comptroller (RG. 43) established in 1857, who supervised the entire financial affairs of the municipality. Throughout the entire nineteenth century, the state authorized reassessments of city property. These reassessments required the hiring of special commissioners and the division of the city into special districts. Such reassessments occurred in 1785, 1792, 1812, 1817, 1822, 1832, 1852, 1866, 1876 and 1896.

With a new charter in 1898 the municipal government became autonomous in property taxation. The charter created a Department of Finance which included the Comptroller, City Register, City Collector, Collector of Water Rents and Licenses, Commissioners of Finance, and Board of Estimates (RG. 36). After 1900 it was mandatory to revise assessments unrelated to state, at least once every five years. The Appeal Tax Court which was steadily becoming a more important organization, was strengthened with a provision in 1904 that gave the court two real estate experts as assessors.

Hollander, The Financial History of Baltimore (Baltimore: Johns Hopkins Press, 1899); Leonard Owens Rea, The Financial History of Baltimore 1900-1926, Johns Hopkins University Studies in Historical and Political Science, Series 48, No. 3 (Baltimore: Johns Hopkins Press, 1929); Gary Lawson Browne, Baltimore in the Nation, 1789-1861 (Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, (1980); and Dennis Rankin Clark, "Baltimore, 1729-1829: The Genesis of a Community" (Ph.D, Catholic University of America, 1976).

Series 1. Baltimore City General Property Tax Books
1798-1915

104 cu. ft. (1033 vols.)
Arranged chronologically

The General Property Tax Books are the final tax records for the municipality, arranged on a city-wide basis. The information in these volumes varies over time though they will generally include the names of individuals and companies, amount of assessment or tax, and payments. Some of the earlier books do give race, out-of-town residence, occasional occupation, and property improvements. After 1812 the volumes begin to include more information on items such as furniture, plate, horses, carriages, wagons, special fees and taxes (such as for roads, bridges, court, and the poor), abatements, adjustments, stock-in-trade, securities, and bank stock. These volumes do not represent a complete series and should be consulted with the field assessment records (series 2) and the Appeal Tax Court (RG. 5).

The complete series of records listed below, unless otherwise stated, are city-wide volumes. A large number of the books have been microfilmed; the BCA number following the description is the microfilm reel number. An alphabetical name index to the earliest records has been published: Richard J. Cox, ed., A Name Index to the Baltimore City Tax Records, 1798-1808, of the Baltimore City Archives, Publications of the Baltimore City Archives, no. 4 (Baltimore: Baltimore City Archives and Records Management Office, 1981).

Series 2.

Baltimore City Assessor Tax Records
1800-1866

13 lin. ft. (120 vols.)
Internal arrangement is roughly by
street address;
External arrangement is chronological
by year.

These are the intermediate records completed by the field assessors for taxation purposes which are arranged internally by streets and contain generally the same information as the tax books (RG. 4, Series 1). The main difference is that internal arrangement and field assessors' records often contain modifications and corrections.

These records were probably maintained by the Commissioners of Tax for Baltimore City, appointed for periodic reassessments. The creation of the Appeal Tax Court (RG.5) in 1841 (and its successor the Department of Assessments in 1934) maintained similar volumes. The records of the Appeal Tax Court are different in that they are the rough workbooks carried into the field by the assessors (RG.5, Series 2). The records listed below are apparently the final copies of these workbooks, including changes and a partial listing of alphabetical name indexes. The tax books (RG.4, series 1) are the final records based on the work of the field assessors and reviewed by the various bodies authorized to do so. Researchers should plan to examine all three record series for research into the general property taxation system of Baltimore.

Nearly all the volumes listed below contain alphabetical name indexes. Other variations have been noted where appropriate. These records are restricted to microfilm; the BCA number following the description is the microfilm reel number.

Series 3. Field Assessors' Work Books 1813-1898
31 cu. ft. (495 vols.)
Internal arrangement is usually by
street address;
External arrangement is chronological.

Included in this series are the rough workbooks of the assessors' field work in Baltimore. Records include name of owner, description of assessed property, occasional diagrams of property lines, owners' and assessors' statement of value, and miscellaneous notes and calculations of the field assessors.

These records are the preliminary sources for descriptions in RG. 4, Series 2. Several volumes described below predate the 1841 creation of the Appeal Tax Court, but are included because of similarities. Many gaps exist in the records. (Index available for years 1837 through 1846).

Series 4. Baltimore City Assessors' Records 1914-1987
Arranged Internally by Ward, Section,
Block and Lot;
External arrangement is chronological.

These records are a continuation of the Baltimore City Assessors' records described in RG. 4, Series 2 and the field assessors' workbooks in RG. 4, Series 3. The essential difference is that the sheets are standardized forms as opposed to the more informal nature of the other records. The records provide names of the owner and street; mailing address; location and description of the property with a lot number, house number, and size of lot; and the values of the lot, improvements, and exemptions. These records were maintained by the Appeal Tax Court and the Department of Assessments after 1934 (the Department of Assessments has been part of the state government since 1975).

Researchers using these records will need to know the ward, section, and block numbers of the property. This information can be obtained from the volumes of Real Estate Tax Assessments, published by the city government and by the Real Estate Index Bureau of Baltimore and its successors since 1928. It is arranged by street address.

A complete list of these records is maintained at the Baltimore City Archives.

There are assessment volumes for Baltimore and Anne Arundel Counties of the areas annexed to the city in 1918. These records are from Baltimore County Districts 1, 3, 9, and 12-15 for the years 1919-24 and Anne Arundel County Districts 3 and 5, 1919-23.

There are also a number of assessment records for public service corporations.

Series 5. Supplementary Assessors Field Book 1907-1915
 Bulk Dates 1912-1913
 18 ft. (245 vols.)
 Arranged by Ward, Plot Number,
 Precinct and Block

These records are similar to those described in Series
 2. However, the format is rougher (paperback notebooks gathered together) and the information more detailed. Data given for each property includes amount of original assessment and of new assessment, description of the structure, (e.g. "2SBB," meaning two story brick building), and the assessed value of the lot and the improvement. Block diagrams showing lot boundaries and structure type are available for some properties as are letters and other documents relating to the assessment process.

A complete list of these records is maintained at the Baltimore City Archives.
