POETRY.

APOSTROPHE TO THE OCEAN.

BY BYRON.

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society where none intrudes
By the deep sea, and music in its roar:
I love not man the less, but Nature more,
From these our interviews, in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the universe and feel
What I can ne'er express, yet cannot all conceal.

Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean—roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Man marks the earth with ruin—his control
Stops with the shore;—upon the watery plain
The wrecks are all thy deed, nor doth remain
A shadow of man's ravage, save his own,
When for a moment like a drop of rain,
He sinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
Without a grave, unknelled, uncoffined, and unknown.

* * * * * * *

The arguments which thunderstrike the walls
Of rock-built cities, bidding nations quake,
And monarchs tremble in their capitals;
The oak leviathans, whose huge ribs make
Their clay creator the vain title take
Of lord of thee, and arbiter of war;
These are thy toys, and, as the snowy flake,
They melt into thy yest of waves, which mar
Alike the Armada's pride, or spoils of Trafalgar.

Thy shores are empires, changed in all save thee;
Assyria, Greece, Rome, Carthage,—what are they?
Thy waters wafted them while they were free,
And many a tyrant since; their shores obey
The stranger, slave, or savage; their decay
Has dried up streams to deserts:—not so thou,
Unchangeable save to thy wild waves' play,
Time writes no wrinkles on thine azure brow;
Such as creation's dawn beheld, thou rollest now.

Thou glorious mirror, where the Almighty's form
Glasses itself in tempests; in all time,
Calm or convulsed—in breeze, or gale, or storm,
Icing the pole, or in the torrid clime
Dark-heaving;—boundless, endless, and sublime—
The image of Eternity—the throne
Of the Invisible; even from out thy slime
The monsters of the deep are made; each zone
Obeys thee—thou goest forth, dread, fathomless, alone.

And I have loved thee, Ocean! and my joy
Of youthful sports was on thy breast to be
Borne, like thy bubbles, onward;—from a boy
I wantoned with thy breakers—they to me
Were a delight; and if the fresh'ning sea
Made them a terror,—'twas a pleasing fear
For I was, as it were, a child of thee,
And trusted to thy billows far and near,
And laid my hand upon thy mane—as I do here.

THE EVENING STAR.

Oh! sweetly shines the summer sun,
When heaven from clouds is free;
And brightly gleams the moonlight on
Field, rock, and forest tree.
But to the pensive heart of love,
Oh sweeter than these by far,
It is with devious step to rove,
Beneath the evening star.

To others give the festive hall,
Where wine cups shine in light;
The music of the crowded ball,
With beauty's lustre bright;
But give to me the lonely dell,
Oh sweeter than these by far,
Where pine trees wave and waters swell,
Beneath the evening star.

The days are past that I have seen,
And ne'er again shall see,
When nature with a brighter green,
O'erspread the field and tree.
Though joyless not the present day,
Yet sweeter than it by far,
'Tis on the past to muse and stray,
Beneath the evening star.

For all the future cannot give
What spareless time has left,
And, oh! since thou hast ceased to live,
A vacant world is left.
I turn me to my days of love,
The sweetest on earth by far,
And oft in thought with thee I rove,
Beneath the evening star.

LOVE.

Life—what art thou—a passing pageant all
Chequered with good and ill, pleasure and pain!
Mirth's smiling dimple, is but the sad grave
Wherein grief's tears are buried; and bright hope
The fleeting harbinger of dark despair.
Where then shall man repose? On what rely
In this sub-lunar sphere? Where shall he seek
Midst vain illusions for substantial bliss,
Midst storms, and tempests, one consoling ray
Of dear delight to cheer and lead him on
Through this benighted wilderness of woe?
That RAY is Love—tis love, alas!
Pure, perfect, hallowed and eternal love,
That gilds the gloom, and like a lonely star
Grows brighter and still brighter as the clouds
Of adverse fortune gather round the soul?
While friends and fame, and pride and vanity
Shrink to their native nothing, heav'nly love
Supplies the place of all, and scorns them all
As fragile flowers glittering in the sun,
But drooping, withering, dying, in the blast
The first rude blast that robs them of their sweets.
Love is the pillow where the outcast wretch
Outcast from all beside may still recline,
And laugh at mimic monarchs, while he feels
He reins in ONE TRUE HEART, a little world!
But still a world impregnable in faith,
Full of its lord, devoted to his will,
Clinging more closely to him, though repelled
Than his own thoughts, and in his BLESSING BLESS'D.

JEREMIAH BERRY.

Cambridge, March 16, 1833

NOTICE.

THE subscriber, having posted up his books to the 1st of January last, has since that time opened a new set, with a view to the final settlement of his old business; as he is fully satisfied from sad experience, that there is much truth in the old proverb, old or long standing accounts make short friendship; or, reversed, short accounts are best; for when accounts get large, to prevent their increasing, many decline dealing without paying or even calling to examine their accounts for settlement, which causes expense, trouble and loss to me, without, in most cases, the smallest thanks.

A great many accounts have been left so long unpaid, that from their commencement to the present is a time equal in length to that occupied by our great chief in the revolutionary struggle for independence. It is neither reasonable nor rational for any to expect their accounts to stand any longer without paying more attention to them; and, before this year expires, the books will be handed over to some other person for collection; and the only reason why not immediately, is that there are some that are making arrangements to liquidate their accounts who prefer to pay them off before they are placed in other hands. When the books are transferred for collection, the subscriber will have nothing to do with any account in staying legal proceedings.

THE THOROUGH BRED HORSE

O'CONNELL,

RECENTLY purchased by the Dorchester Association, will stand the ensuing season at the stable of Mr. John Bradshaw, (in Cambridge,) and be let to mares on the following terms, viz: $10 the single leap, to be paid when the mare is served; $20 the season, to be discharged by $15, if paid on or before the 1st day of Sept. next; $25 to insure a mare to be in foal, payable when she is believed to be so, or parted with; and 50 cents cash to the Groom in every instance. All mares tried to the Horse will be considered engaged.

Pasturage will be furnished (gratis) for mares from a distance, and grain, if required, at 25 cents a day. Every attention will be paid, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes.

The season will commence on the 1st day of March and end on the last day of June.

DESCRIPTION.

O'CONNELL is a rich chesnut, beautifully marked, six years old next grass, nearly sixteen hands high, remarkable for his muscle, and may be said to be unexceptionable in point of form. His speed or bottom has never been tested, but his unquestioned blood and fine proportions justify the highest estimate of both.

PEDIGREE.

O'CONNELL was got by Sir William, one of the most distinguished runners of his day, having contended successfully with most of the best runners, and among them, Charles and Henry—Sir William was got by Sir Archy—his dam, the running mare Bellona, was by Bell-Air, and he by the imported Medley. Bell Air's dam was by the race horse Yorrick, and his dam, Black Selima, by the imported Fearnaught—Sir William's g. dam, the celebrated mare Indian Queen, by Pilgrim—his g. g. dam by the imported Janus—his g. g. g. dam by imported Valiant—his g. g. g. g. dam by Jolly Roger—he by Roundhead, and he by Flying Childers, &c. O'CONNELL's dam, Primrose, was by the distinguished race horse Madison, and he by Old Diomed—Madison's dam, Priestly, (full sister to Magog,) was got by Chanticleer, (the best son of Wild Adair,) and out of a Pantaloon Mare. O'CONNELL's g. dam, Vigaro, was by the imported Whip, and he by Saltram of England—Whip's dam was by King Herod, his g. dam by Oronoke, and his g. g. dam by Cartouch, out of an Arabian mare. O'CONNELL's g. g. dam was by the imported Œlus, and he by Regulus, and he by the Godolphin Arabian—his g. g. g. dam by old Celer; and he by old Janus, &c. For further particulars, see Turf Register and English Stud Book.

[There are vouchers in the possession of the editor of the Cambridge Chronicle that will satisfy the most sceptical, as to the correctness of the above pedigree.]

PROSPECTUS
OF THE COMPLETE
Periodical Library.

Forty-eight Pages weekly—nearly 2,500 larg Octavo pages a year, for Five Dollars, furnishing annually select reading equal to Fifty Volumes of common size.

The "LIBRARY" will contain nearly all the new works of merit as they appear, viz:—Voyages and Travels—History—Biography—Select Memoirs—the most approved European Annuals—Adventures—Tales of unexceptionable character, &c. &c.

THE "COMPLETE PERIODICAL LIBRARY" will be found indispensable to all lovers of good reading, in town or country. Every number will contain 48 pages, in a size expressly adapted for binding, when the book is completed; printed with type so large as not to fatigue the weakest eye. Its immense size will enable the Editor to crowd any common sized book into two numbers, frequently into one. New works will thus be despatched as they arrive from Europe, and sent off fresh to its patrons. The subscriber in Missouri will be brought as it were to the very fountain of literature. Works printed in this library will be furnished to him, when, without it, he would be wholly unable to secure them. A book that will cost us six dollars to import, can be re-printed and distributed to subscribers, owing to our peculiar facilities, for about twenty or thirty cents, with the important addition of its being fresh and new.

We shall give near 2,500 pages annually, equal to fifty common sized books! Every work published in the LIBRARY will be complete in itself. A title page will be given with each volume, so that the subscriber, if he please, may sell or give it away, without injury to any of the others; or it may be bound up at the pleasure of the subscriber.

This work presents an extraordinary feature, unknown to any other periodical in the country. The subscription price may be considered a mere loan for a year, as the work, at the year's end, will sell for cost, and in many parts of the United States it will bring double its original cost to the subscriber.

The works published in "The Complete Periodical Library" will be of the highest character, both as regards the author and his subject. New works, of approved merit, will be sent out to the editor by every arrival from Europe, giving him an unlimited field to select from, while care will be taken to make his publication equal any thing of the kind in America.

The first number will be issued on the 8th of May next, and regularly every Wednesday thereafter, secured in handsome printed covers, and on fine white paper, at $5 per annum, payable in advance. Clubs remitting $20 will be supplied with five copies for that sum; agents at the same rate. Address T. K. GREENBANK,

No. 9, Franklin Place, Philadelphia.

April 27, 1833.

☞ A specimen number of the work may be seen at this office.

PROSPECTUS.

Parley's Magazine

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

THE design of the publishers, in this Magazine, is to offer to the public an entertaining work for children and youth; one that may become with them a favorite; one that will please and instruct them; one that they will regard not as a thing which they must read as a task, but which they will love to consult as a companion and friend; one, in short, the reading of which may be permitted to good children as a reward, but the denial of which may be felt as a punishment by those who are bad. It will consist chiefly of matters of fact, and the editors will endeavor to present truth and knowledge in a guise, as attractive to the youthful mind, as that in which fiction has generally been arrayed.

The title of the work is chosen, as an indication of what it is intended shall be its character. The style which the author of Peter Parley's Tales has chosen as a vehicle of instruction for youth, will be adopted in its pages, and Peter Parley, in his proper character of story teller and traveller, will often appear as a contributor. The work will comprise pieces adapted to all stages of the youthful faculties from childhood upwards. It may thus pass from hand to hand in the family circle, and the parents will not disdain to find amusement in what they are called upon to explain to their children; while the elder branches will be induced to try to lead on, by easy steps, their still younger companions to that enjoyment which they have already experienced themselves.

The contents of the work will be too various to be enumerated in this place; but in order to convey some idea of the intentions of the conductors, the following may be mentioned as forming a portion of the more prominent subjects.

I. Geographical Descriptions, of manners, customs, and countries.

II. Travels, Voyages, and Adventures, in various parts of the world.

III. Interesting Historical Notices and Anecdotes of each State, and of the United States, as well as of foreign countries.

IV. Biography, particularly of young persons.

V. Natural History, as birds, beasts, fishes, &c.; as well as plants, trees, flowers, &c.

VI. A familiar description of the Objects that daily surround Children in the Parlor, Nursery, Garden, &c.

VII. Original Tales, consisting of Home Scenes, Stories of Adventure, &c., calculated to stimulate the curiosity, exercise the affections, and improve the judgment.

VIII. An account of various trades and pursuits, and some branches of commerce.

IX. Cheerful and pleasing Rhymes, adapted to the feelings and comprehension of youth.

The publishers have made arrangements to have the work abundantly illustrated with spirited engravings, and every effort will be made to render it a useful auxiliary to the cause of education.

CONDITIONS.

The work will be issued every other Saturday, and 26 numbers will constitute the yearly volume. The price will be One Dollar a year, payable in advance.

To all who take six or more copies, a reasonable discount will be made.
