POULTRY

QUALITIES OF THE LEGHORNS

Birds Are So Active That They Maintain Good Appetite—Easily Kept in Good Health.

Leghorns are so active that they maintain a good appetite and will stand the heavy feeding necessary to heavy egg production. Eggs cannot be made without feed. The laying flock is easily kept in health by an occasional cleaning medication, and there is nothing happier than a big flock of Leghorn layers, as their continual "singing" makes evident.

I trust I have said nothing to hurt the feelings of those who favor other breeds, says a writer in an exchange.

Flock of White Leghorns.

All the standard fowls have their merits, and for a door-yard flock I would choose one of the heavy breeds. A Leghorn chick can be brought to a broiler size in a hurry, but the gain in weight is not so rapid beyond that stage.

I have known pure-bred Leghorns not to average four dozen eggs a year, so there is no safety in mere name. It's the breeding that counts, and Leghorns can be brought to very high egg-production and held to it. Do not carelessly interbreed strains. Find a good one and hold to it.

FIND THE QUALITY OF EGGS

Cornell Agricultural Experiment Station Recommends Candling as the Best Method.

The quality of eggs depends not altogether upon the length of time they have been kept, but quite as much upon the conditions to which they have been subjected between the time of laying and of their final use. Moreover, the quality of an egg may be affected to some extent by the foods eaten by the hen which lays it, and possibly by the season of the year when it is laid.

All these points and many others are discussed in a bulletin on the interior quality of market eggs, issued by the Cornell agricultural experiment station, which explains the process of egg production and the structure of the normal egg. It tells also how the interior quality of market eggs may be studied and advocates candling as the best method. It gives directions for candling and instructions for making candling devices.

FEED GREEN FOOD AND GRIT

Almost Anything Succulent Will Answer Purpose—Variety Is Desirable During Winter Months.

It is important that some kind of green food should be supplied when the hens are confined. Almost anything succulent will serve the purpose. It is not desirable to depend entirely on clover and alfalfa in winter. Cabbage, rape, mangels, potatoes, turnips, or even ensilage should be provided for variety.

Little attention need be given to supplying the hens with grit while on the range. In winter or when in confinement, grit in some form should be supplied. Lime is also needed for shell material. For this purpose oyster shell is excellent.

Storing Eggs for Hatching.

In storing eggs for hatching, avoid too low or too high temperatures. About 45 degrees is the best temperature. Then avoid too much handling. We have strong doubts about the advantage of turning them while in storage. Any advantage in it is, we think, offset by the risk of soiling the eggs and closing the air-pores.

Waste and Injury.

A surplus of foodstuff fed to a fowl, or an animal of any kind, above that digestible and convertible to its needs, is a waste of food and an injury.

Keep Hen in Laying Trim.

It is just as important to keep a hen in laying trim as it is to coax the dairy cow to keep up her flow of milk.

Old Geese Most Reliable.

Old geese lay a greater number of larger eggs and are more reliable than young geese.

Manure Is Valuable Asset.

The poultry manure is a valuable asset. The most satisfactory way of storing it is in barrels.

The Hochschild, Kohn & Co. Store was founded in 1897. It began with a plain announcement of its policy and its intentions.

A clear contract was made — is still made, and will always be made—with every customer. This is the contract—it is printed on the back of every sales-check:

Baltimore's Best Store is the store of progress. It is not ideal, but it is striving to be.

Its aim is to please—to satisfy; and it never loses sight of the mark. It is the accepted and avowed shopping place of a great many people, in Baltimore, throughout Maryland, and in almost every other state in the Union.

Go To The Rescue

Don't Wait 'till It's Too Late—Follow the Example of a Westminster Citizen.

Rescue the aching back.

If it keeps on aching, trouble may come.

Often it indicates kidney weakness.

If you neglect the kidneys' warning,

Look out for unrinary disorders.

This Westminster citizen will show you how to go to the rescue.

Jesse F. Stem, Westminster, says: "For over three years, I suffered with lumbago and backache and sometimes my back was just full of intense pain. For several days at a time, I was unable to do any work at all on account of the dreadful misery and lameness from which I suffered. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Moore's Drug Store, relieved me and I haven't lost a day's work since."

Over Three Years Later, Mr. Stem said: 'I still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and am pleased to do so."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Stem has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE FEDERATION OF WOMAN'S CLUBS

When the Woman's Club movement first started, it was caricatured as made up of brainy women who were eccentric in their strong individuality. Club women were regarded as "blue stockings," strong minded, agitators and propagandists, but not home keepers and the kind of person a man falls in love with.

The 13th biennial convention of the Federation of Woman's Clubs is now being held in New York. Judging by all reports, it is not true to the original type, or at least the former popular conception of it. These club women seem feminine enough to love dress. At least the dressmakers think so, as they have elaborate style displays to appeal to them. In their pretty gowns for the gala functions of the meeting, the club women have had all the fascination of the true daughters of Eve.

The clubs appear to be less literary and more civic than formerly. In their earlier days, the principal energy was taken by study of literature and philosophy, and the preparation of papers on various aspects of human knowledge.

They became very learned on Browning and Tennyson, and turned out informative and discriminating papers on Russia and the philosophy of Nietzsche. But meanwhile they might be wholly ignorant of the bad condition of the drains in the next street.

The modern Woman's Club is more of a civic force. It is felt to be failing of its reason for being, if it does not maintain a working social service department. It is recognized that there are certain lines of perception where men are weak and need prodding. The street cleaners need to be punched up, health boards need to feel the pressure of public sentiment for enforcement of sanitary regulations, moving pictures need supervision, and so on. The field for such effort is limitless, and good work is being done, as the reports at the present meetings indicate.

THE POWER OF SMALL ADVERTISEMENT

One of the objections encountered by the advertising solicitor is from the man who wants either to make a big spread, or else not advertise at all. There are some merchants who talk about like this: "I do not want to advertise unless I can take a big liberal space, comparing favorably with any other merchant in the town." This is about as sensible as if they gave up business because they could not afford the most costly rental in the town.

Take the case of a marketman with a very limited capital. Suppose for an extreme illustration that he feels he can afford only a one or two inch advertisement. Yet if that ad is placed regularly in one location, and if it is newsy, it will soon command attention.

Looking over our exchanges, this illustration is found. A marketman advertises just one thing every day in his inch space.

Here is a specimen:—

Fresh Strawberries.
Just Ripe enough, not too Ripe,
From Cherry Hill Farm
only 12 cents a box at Smith's.

Now there is news in that ad, just as much as in any column of the paper. Every housewife will read it, and will look in that space in the next issue, to see what has taken its place. The line telling where the berries come from has value.

A thing sounds and tastes better if it comes from a place you have heard of, or even if you never have heard of it, you feel that someone is back of the product guaranteeing it. The second line gives a hint of quality. Price quotation completes the ad. A big business success can be based on that kind of a notice written regularly, even if it does not take much space.

SHEEP AND DOGS

A government bulletin takes up the raising of more sheep. The principal obstacle is not anything essential to the life of the sheep. Our country is ideally adapted for them. The old proverb says, "The sheep's hoof is shod with gold." Wool and mutton sell for high prices and sheep can live on land that otherwise would lie idle.

The dog problem is the one great difficulty. As population increases, the number of dogs also is augmented. The country districts are full of roaming and bloodthirsty mongrels. Once they get the taste of fresh meat, no farm animal of their size is immune from attack.

The farmer would place high license fees on the keeping of dogs, to get an ample fund to pay damages with. He would also enact stringent laws about confinement of dogs. But the dog owners are quite as influential an element. Half the legislators who are asked to pass a strict dog law, are themselves owners of these pets. They love and cherish these faithful friends of man, and will not assent to any restrictive measures tending against their health and contentment.

Yet the failure to raise the number of sheep that could be produced is a failure properly to develop our resources. It increases the cost of wool and mutton—two of the most useful substances raised by man. The community wants its dogs and it must expect to pay for them.

The law should compensate the factual damage done to those killed or bitten, but the general lowered tone of a flock due to nervous fright. Dog should consider not merely the acdamage done to these killed or bitten, but the general lowered tone of a flock due to nervous fright. Dog owners should be well assessed for such losses. Then perhaps they would realize the necessity of disposing of dogs having this unfortunate tendency to prey on a valuable domestic animal.

Congressman David J. Lewis whom the Democrats of Maryland have nominated for Senator, represents the wildest school of socialistic radicalism in the party. His Republican opponent, Dr. Joseph I. France, stands for the sanity of governmental operation and of legislation which have marked Republican effort in the East. The line in Maryland seems to have been drawn in a manner to develop a Democratic defection such as took place in 1896—and it will be surprising indeed if the outcome is not again as it was that year, the election of a Republican Senator.

Horses seem to have an easier time nowadays, but it may not be due so much to the observance of "Be kind to Animals Week," as to the preference for automobiles because they go so much faster.

THE TOWN BEAUTIFUL MOVEMENT. NO. 6

There is too much of the spirit today of "Let George do it." There is too little willingness to take hold and co-operate personally in attempts at civic improvement.

The pioneers made their place beautiful by getting out with spade and watering pot, and planting whole rows of trees along the streets. They were amply repaid, in enjoyment of the beauty they created, and in better value of real estate. Nowadays this is left to public officials. Instead of getting out themselves and planting trees, citizens will call up the proper official and ask him why he does not set out something on their streets.

Improvements that have to wait on public funds wait long. The appropriation is usually exhausted, and politicians see other uses for money.

Neatness is not exactly beauty, but there can be no beauty without neatness. Every piece of paper set adrift, every heap of rubbish, lowers the tone of a town, and helps create the spirit of disorder. People are governed by the influence of neighbors. If one man cleans up and paints up the spirit of improvement sweeps through the whole street. If he lets things go ragged, his neighbors fall easily into the slovenly habit of letting well enough alone.

Town beauty is not created by elaborate mansions or choicely designed business blocks. It is made by the transplanting and careful tending of green foliage and flowers within town limits, by elimination of eye sores, by good taste in building, and removal of disorder. Westminster has done much along this line, but there are many things to be achieved to enable it fully to realize the ideal of the Town Beautiful.

ALIEN COLONIES

A correspondent writing to a New York newspaper expresses fear of the non-English speaking colonies that grow up in so many places. With their foreign language papers, and hearing almost no English spoken, they are very separate from American life. This writer sees danger in this condition. He would break up these nests of alien congestion. This of course would seem arbitrary and autocratic under our free soil.

Yet all is not well in these Little Italys and Little Polands and Little Hungarys that are growing up in so many places. Often these newcomers have been educated at home in schools of grades similar to our high schools and colleges. But if they can't receive the simplest kind of instruction in English, they are helpless. Hence the abnormal sight of many well educated men digging ditches.

The foreign language papers could do a great deal for these people if they would. Ignorance of English is the great obstacle in their way. Why could not these papers make a point of running in each issue little selections of English lessons? These should not follow the lines of our school reading books, one purpose of which is to arouse a cultivated literary taste. They should deal with the simplest phases of our life, making change at stores, taking orders in a factory or household, dealing with customers in retail trade.

In a foreign speaking colony, wages are low and the children are generally taken out of school as soon as the law allows, to help support the family. The youngsters leave study too early to gain any idea of our civic ideas. Their parents can answer no questions on these points.

The children will grow up able to read and write, and will become voters. But they have no conception of our institutions and are not making a good start in citizenship. The parents need education as well as the children, and the foreign language paper is the agency that could do it.

THE CHOICE OF A COLLEGE

As the school year draws to its close many parents intending to send children to college are anxiously considering the advantage of various institutions. The question whether it shall be a large or a small college is one of the vital issues.

The big college is usually more prosperous, can afford better equipment and it pays higher salaries for its faculty. It is claimed that even their lesser grade of instructors average up well with the average professor of the small college. Meanwhile the large college employs for its more responsible posts, the pick of the educators of the country. These are men of scintillating brilliancy, able to make their subjects fascinating to young people. The students of the large classes do not come closely into contact with these men. But they hear their lectures and their minds are broadened.

In favor of the small college, it is argued that the boy comes into a closer personal contact with the teaching force. The professors may not average as high in ability, but they are a fine type of men. They know the boys more intimately and give them closer attention.

If the boys have unusual gifts, they make themselves felt anywhere. If they can't make the 'varsity ball team, they can perhaps get on the class or house nine. If they don't succeed in athletics, they may win a place on the college papers or in debating or music. There are wide lines of opportunity open.

Boys of a more reticent type, having no particular social graces or athletic or scholastic ability, are often lost in big communities of a thousand or two more students. They plod quietly along the routine path of study, sit on the bleachers at the ball games, and pass through the course largely as spectators. Probably they would do better in an institution where they would meet less competition, and come closer to the men in charge.

The New York "World's" Macedonian cry for the Republicans also to nominate Wilson seems to have fallen on deft ears, and it looks as though Wilson would have to get along with such Democratic support for re-election as Bryan will permit him to have.
