IS HE MARRIED?

"What!" I exclaimed, stirring the fire to make a blaze, for I had not ordered candles, "is it possible? With Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomson's compliments!—Charles Thomson married!—married!—poor fellow!"

I hastily obtained a candle, opened the packet, and in it a piece of bridal cake with a few words, written in a small female hand, informing me that "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomson," would be ready to receive visiters on a certain day. I was perfectly astonished. Charles Thomson married! I should sooner have expected snow in mid summer: we were upon terms of the greatest intimacy; we have dined together, day by day for several years past; and yet I never even suspected that he was in love. When I last saw him, he told me that he was about to visit Dunbridge Wells on business. And then to whom is he married? Every body knows Charles Thomson; he is to be seen in every book-shop and at every book-stall and book-auction in town. His days are spent in public libraries, and his nights for the most part, in his study. For himself, he is the meekest, mildest, most unobtrusive and modest fellow in existence; he never can speak to a woman without blushing; as for wooing—pshaw, the thing is impossible! He must have courted by deputy, and have been married by proxy. I could not understand it; and when I went out of doors, the annoyance was still greater. I was continually met by such questions as, "pray, who is Mr. Charles Thomson?" "Who would have thought Charles Thomson would have married? I never was so astonished as when I heard of it; who is she?" "I don't know."

"Nonsense! impossible!" "It is true," said I, surlily, and walked on.

Time however, passed away as it was wont to do, and the period approached at which the happy couple were expected to return to town. But in a few mornings before that day arrived, I was astonished by the usual sudden and abrupt appearance of my old friend Charles into my parlour!

"X," said he, "how do you do?"

I paused a moment, regarding my old friend, whose looks were full of trouble and anxiety, and then kindly inquired—"My dear Charles! how are you?—how' I hesitated—I would have inquired "how is Mrs. Thomson?" but the words would not come forth and I closed the sentence with "when did you return to town?"

"Only last night; what an unlucky affair is this!"

"Ah!" said I, "I was dismally surprised to hear of it. How came you to be led into it?"

"O, Lord, I don't know; we are all of us overtaken at times—and I really thought I was doing a kindness."

"A kindness!" echoed I, "yes, but at very serious expense. Why didn't you talk to me about it?"

"O, I had a sort of presentiment that I should repent it, and I thought you would only laugh at me. But what can I do?"

"What can you do! why I suppose you have already done every thing that can be done, there is no getting out of it now."

"I am afraid not—but I must change my mode of living."

"Ah, that you must; you must give up your old literary pursuits, and attend close to your profession—and all our comfortable dinners at ——."

"Ah! those are all at an end."

"But, did you get no money at all?" inquired I.

"Not a sixpence!" was the answer; "it is purely a matter of accommodation."

"An accommodation! why zounds, man, how could you be such a fool?"

"O, I was taken by surprise, in an evil moment. But surely, it will be a lesson to me. I suppose I must sell Harbour Court."

"Nay, I hope its not so bad as that ——."

"Indeed, but it is; where, think you, am I to get five hundred pounds?"

"Five hundred pounds! why, what are you thinking about?"

"Thinking about?" replied Charles, "why, about Sillery's bills," producing at the same time a newspaper, with the announcement of his bankruptcy—"what else should I think about?"

"Ha, ha, ha," cried I, laughing at the equivoque, "and I have been talking of your marriage."

"Marriage! nonsense, what could put that into your head?"

"My dear fellow," exclaimed I, "satisfy me that you are not married, and I will make you easy about Sillery's bills. His bankruptcy has been superseded, and I have money in my hands to pay your acceptances."

I then produced my bride cake and its envelope—all turned out to be a hoax. We still have our literary dinners, and Charles Thomson is not married.

RED CLOVER—SWINE.

At this season of the year when the farmer is about sowing grass seed, we should impress it upon his mind to not overlook the great value of clover. If you wish to sow grass seed in an orchard, by all means let it be clover. It is not only more congenial to the growth of the trees than other grasses, but will in connection with the apples, very nearly fatten your hogs, without the assistance of grain. The clover will keep the hogs in healthy and thriving condition until apples are perfectly ripe, after which, if your apples are of the right sort, very little if any grain will be required. A friend of ours informs us that he threw a quantity of clover hay to his young stock-hogs, while the snow covered the ground and they ate it very readily. His hay was well cured and well salted. He is of the opinion that hogs in a hard, and scarce winter, might be measurably kept on this food Deane, in his New England Farmer, has the following remarks.

"The hog pasture should be so near to the dwelling house, that it may not be troublesome to carry the wash to the swine. And yet so far off that the people may not be stunned with their noise. And a warm cot must be made in some convenient part of their pasture for them to lodge in.

"To prepare a pasture for them, let the ground be broken up, tilled and manured, and then laid down with clover. For swine are more fond of this grass than of any other which our country produces. Let the quantity of land be so proportioned to the number of swine that they may keep the grass from running up to seed. For this will prevent waste; and the shorter the grass is, the sweeter it will be, and the more tender and agreeable to their palate.

"I suppose that one acre of rich land in clover, will support twenty or more swine, large and small together, through the summer: and bring them well forward in their growth, but they should have rings in their noses to prevent their rooting out the clover.

"It has been proved, by many trials, that hogs in such a pasture, may be kept in good plight without any other food. Some say they may be half fattened."—Ohio Farmer.

INCENDIARIES DISCOVERED BY BLOOD HOUNDS.

This old method of tracing the perpetrators of crime was a short time since, revived in Oxfordshire. The Duke of Marlborough has, in addition to the famous Blenheim spaniel, retained unimpaired the breed of the old English blood hound. The Duke's steward, who has the care of these animals, had recourse to this plan at the fire at Mr. Raingley's of Woodstock. The steward was one of the first on the spot, and observing some fresh footsteps, he therefore marked their direction and summoned his conductor. The hound was no sooner put on the footsteps, than he opened his deep-toned note, and traced, with wonderful exactness, every winding attempt to elude his eager pursuit, until he reached a previously notorious cottage. The door was open, but no man found; however, the insatiable pursuer was not to be thus deluded, for, rushing out in the direction of the fire, he became more anxious at every step, until he seized one of the group going to assist (and as was afterwards proved, the one most lavish in abuse of the incendiary,) to his no small astonishment. The man was thunderstruck at his discovery, and soon confessed that he was the perpetrator of the diabolical act.—Norfolk Chron.

COMMUNICATED—SELECTED.]

There arrived in this city, a prophet, whose generation in this world, was before Adam's; he knoweth not the voice of his father, neither did he ever suck the breast of his mother; he was with Noah in the ark, and with Christ at his crucifixion; he never preached but one sermon, and that was so convincing to a good man, of his sins, that he never was contented, until he was thoroughly converted; he eats no meat, drinks no wine, and would as leave dwell in a barn as in a king's palace; his coat is neither knit, wove, nor spun, neither silk, hair, linen, nor woollen, but still of a very fine glossy color; he marches up boldly in the face of his enemy, without sword, gun, stick or staff, still he has such a weapon of defence as man never used; when he prophecies, the doors fly open; the women and children have reason to rejoice that such a prophet has come into the land, to set before their foolish husbands and fathers a pattern of sobriety; it is not St. John the Baptist, nor one of the wandering Jews, nor Elias, nor Jeremiah the prophet, as some may suppose; when he sleeps he stands crouching, and never takes off his clothes.

NEW-ARK COLLEGE.

THE friends of science are respectfully informed that this Institution, with leave of Providence, will go into operation and commence its first term, on the 2d Thursday, the 8th day of May next.

A very commodious building, sufficient to accommodate 80 students, has been erected, on a plan capable of extension at a future day. Two Professors of high standing and first rate qualifications have been already elected; and a third will be added whenever the necessities of the College shall require.

NATHAN MUNROE, of Andover, Mass., and JOHN HOLMES AGNEW, lately of Washington College, Penn., both of them accomplished scholars, experienced teachers, and bringing the highest recommendations, have the present charge of the Institution. Till the election of a President, Mr. Munroe will act as Principal.

The plan of study, and general principles of government and discipline, it is intended, shall correspond, as far as practicable, with those of the best Eastern Colleges. No Usher is to be employed. And no Professor during his connexion with the College, is to engage in any other occupation or profession, but will devote himself exclusively to the business of instruction

The situation of New-Ark, in a rolling country, on the borders of Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania, has for more than 100 years, recommended it as a convenient, healthful, economical and pleasant location for a public school. The College has grown out of an Academy established by the Allisons, the Blairs and M'Dowells of a former age.

There will be connected with the College, an Academical Department, under the care of the Professors, in which students may fit for College; and in which those who do not wish to go through a regular course, can be taught such branches as they may select.

Students will be received at once not only into the Freshman, but into any of the College classes.

The cheapness of all the necessaries and conveniences of life in New-Ark, will render the whole expenses of an education in this institution remarkably low. The Students will room in College at a rent of $5 a year; Board in Commons at $1 25 per week; and the Tuition will be $20 a year. The students will be expected to furnish their own rooms, and find their own fuel, light, washing, ironing, &c. It is confidently believed that the necessary expenses of the institution, for the 40 weeks of term time, will not exceed $100; and at the utmost will be less than $115 per year.

For further information, reference may be had to Rev. Samuel Bell, or Doctor Thomas W. Handy, of New-Ark, Del.

By order of the Board,

E. W. GILBERT, President.

The full bred Horse RAT,

Will stand at the following places during the present season, viz:—At Easton, on Tuesday, 25th March; at New Market, Dorchester county, on Thursday the 27th; at Cambridge, on Saturday the 29th; and at the Trappe, on Monday the 31st; and will continue to attend the above places every fortnight during the season.

TERMS.—Three dollars the single leap, six dollars the spring's chance, and nine dollars to insure a mare with foal, payable as soon as the fact can be ascertained, or she is parted with, and twenty five cents in each case to the groom. The season will commence on Tuesday, 25th March, and end on the 20th June.

CERTIFICATE.

We, the subscribers, do hereby certify that the young horse Rat, held and owned by Mr. Alexander Macbeth, and sold to him by Elisha Wilson, Esq., of Caroline county, in the State of Maryland, (and now the property of Wm. H. and Samuel T. Watts,) is a thorough-bred full-blooded horse. He was sired by the celebrated horse Old Rat, who was known to every sportsman on the Eastern Shore of Maryland; he won sixteen heavy purses, and never was beaten but once, and then by foul play, and after he was twenty years of age. The dam of Young Rat was Sally Jefferson, bred by that known sportsman, Mr. Thomas Daffin, and subsequently owned by Mr. Elisha Wilson, who bred a number of fine running horses from said mare; to wit: a horse named Tanner, a horse called Quaker, owned by James Nabb, Esq., &c. The said horse, Young Rat, won, at four years old, on Wye course, in Talbot county, Eastern Shore of Maryland, the colts purse with ease—in consequence of bad training his eyes were irreparably injured. The horses that started with him were Gov. Wright's Silverheels filly, E. N Hambleton, Esq.'s Oscar filly, and Capt. Morris' celebrated Hickory mare—all of which were known to be first rate horses. It is thought unnecessary to trace further the pedigree of Young Rat, as the horse will show for himself.

In testimony whereof, we, freeholders of Caroline county, have subscribed our names.

The celebrated Horse RED ROVER,

WILL stand this spring at Easton and the Trappe, in Talbot county, and at New Market and Cambridge, in Dorchester county, Md. The prices upon which the services of Red Rover will be rendered, are as follows, to wit: six dollars the spring's chance, twelve dollars to insure a mare in foal, three dollars the single leap, with twenty five cents to the groom in each case. The insurance moneys to be paid by the 25th January, 1835; the moneys for the season to be paid by the 20th August next; the moneys for the single leap to be paid at the time of service. Mares insured and parted with before it is ascertained they are in foal, the persons putting will be held accountable for the insurance moneys.

Red Rover is now ten years old, in fine stud condition, of the best blood in the country, as by reference to the annexed pedigree will appear. Red Rover is a beautiful sorrel, nearly sixteen hands high, with a bold and lofty carriage, with great bone and sinew; his general appearance commanding, admired and approved by judges.

Red Rover will be at Easton, on Tuesday the 25th instant; at New Market, on Thursday the 27th instant; at Cambridge, on Saturday the 29th instant; at the Trappe, on Monday the 31st instant; and attend each stand alternately on the aforesaid days once in two weeks during the season. The season to commence on the 20th March, instant, and end on the 20th June next.

PEDIGREE

Of the celebrated horse Red Rover.

Red Rover was got by Chance Medley, out of the late James Nabb's Forest Girl, who was got by Col. Tayloe's Oscar, and was pronounced one of the finest Oscar mares ever raised on this shore; (for pedigree of Col. Tayloe's Oscar, see Turf Register;) his grand-dam by Col. Lloyd's Vingt-un—(for pedigree of Vingt-un, see also Turf Register.) The grand-dam of Red Rover ran on the Centreville course the four mile heats, when in foal with the dam of Red Rover, and won the money, beating the second and third heats; and the dam of Red Rover, (the Forest Girl,) when but three years old, ran on the Easton course, and won and took the purse, beating the second and third heats. Chance Medley was got by Col. Tayloe's imported horse Chance, (for pedigree of Chance, see Turf Register, March No., 1833, page 324 and 325,) who was selected at a very high price, in England, by the best judges, for Col. Tayloe, and was imported in the year 1810; he was the sire of Grimalkin, Speculator, Accident, Scape's colt, Chance, &c.—all first rate runners in their day. Chance was got by Lurcher; his dam, Reality, by Hyder Ally. Lurcher was by Dum Gannon, who was by Eclipse; his dam was by Vertumnes or Eclipse. Hyder Ally was by Blank; his dam by Regulus. Blank, the great g. g. g. grand sire of Red Rover was gotten by the Godolphin Arabian, out of the little Hartley mare; he was full brother to old Janus and old England. This mare was got by Bartlett's Childers, (full brother to Flying Childers;) her dam Flying Whig, by William's Wood Stock Arabian; her grand dam by St. Victor's Barb; her great grand dam by Whynot, son of Fenwick's Barb. Dun Gannon was gotten by Eclipse, his dam by Herod; his grand-dam, Doris, by Blank; his great grand dam by Speculator, by Crab. The dam of Chance Medley, (the sire of Red Rover,) was got by Young Diomead, by Col. Tayloe's Grey Diomead, dam by the imported horse Gabriel. Young Diomead's dam was got by Snap, a son of old Snap; her dam by Lightfoot, a son of old Cade, &c. &c. &c.

JOSHUA M. FAULKNER.

CERTIFICATE.

We do dereby certify that Red Rover has been located as a Stallion, since he was four years old, in this county; that we have seen many of his colts, and believe him to be a vigorous and sure foal-getter; his colts are large and well formed, and in general do him much credit. The blood of his sire, Chance Medley, cannot be excelled, either for its purity, or the value of its crosses; his dam by Oscar, his grand-dam by Vingt-un, and g. g. dam an excellent racer, descended by Col. Lloyd's Traveller

EDWARD N. HAMBLETON,
NICHOLAS MARTIN.

N. B.—Few horses in this county have propagated better colts than Red Rover.—Their form, size and action are generally admired. His three years old colts more particularly invite attention.
