THE CHRONICLE.

CAMBRIDGE—MD.

SATURDAY MORNING, December, 27 1845.

The Orphans' Court of Dorchester County will sit on the 5th January.

V. B. PALMER,

No. 59 Pine st. Phila., and 160 Nassau st. (Tribune Buildings,) N. Y., and S. E. corner of Balt. and Calvert st., Baltimore, is our authorized Agent for receiving Advertisements and subscriptions to the "CAMBRIDGE CHRONICLE," and collecting and receipting for the same.

☞ We have pursued our usual course of bringing out but half a sheet, this week, which we are sure, our patrons will not complain of, as chrismast comes but once a year.

In Dr. Muse's Address, republished in our last paper, the following Errata occurred in the printing—

In 2nd column for "meteralogy," read "meteorology."

In 6th column for "exchange cases," read "exchange bases."

At the top of 7th column, for "the facts have not favored my designs," read "the fates have not favored my designs."

In Dr. Muse's letter below the "Address," for "attribute an atom," read "contribute an atom."

THE SOBER SECOND THOUGHT.—We have read with real satisfaction the leading article in the last number of the New York "Sunday Times and Messenger," edited by Major NOAH, a friend to the present Administration, and one of the most zealous friends of the 'annexation' of Texas.—Nat. Int.

Extracts of the "Sunday Times" of Dec. 14.

ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.—Although the early and strenuous friend of "annexation," we were not without our apprehensions that an increasing and morbid desire for territorial acquisitions would bring us in conflict with some European nation, as menacing by our increasing strength and numerical force the power, and what is called the "divine right," of kings.—Something worse than this we apprehend—the weakening of our chain of union, by extending our national authority to the extreme ends of the continent, and parting with the rich inheritance handed down to us by our Revolutionary fathers, in a craving appetite for more territory, new conquests, and additional annexations. What we apprehended has in part occurred.

England has declared in an emphatic manner, through her Minister and on the floor of Parliament, that her rights in Oregon are clear and unquestionable. "We desire," said Sir Robert Peel, "an amicable adjustment of the difficulties between us and the United States; but, having exhausted every effort to obtain it, if our rights are invaded, we are resolved and prepared to maintain them." This declaration was followed by a tremendous burst of cheers from all parts of the House. There is no ambiguity in this; it is open, direct, and unequivocal; and the preparation making to carry out this threat is a source of anxiety to the peaceably disposed of by both Powers.

The President, in his message, though previously claiming to the 54th degree of Oregon, admits, and we think most wisely, that he deemed it right to tender to Great Britain a division of that territory in a line parallel to the 49th degree, which the British Minister was not instructed to accept, but which he rejected.—We hope that England will yet see the policy to close with the proposition. But it will be asked, "Is the message in other respects conciliatory or pacific?"—We regret to say it is not. The offer has been made and rejected, and is now withdrawn; and the President says, "no compromise which the United States ought to accept CAN BE EFFECTED," and now we claim the whole of Oregon. Nay, more: the President closes the subject by saying that our rights "cannot be abandoned without a sacrifice of both national honor and interest." Take what Sir Robert Peel said in the House of Commons, and what the President now says, and who can doubt that the door is closed, or nearly so, on pacific negotiation?

What follows if this issue cannot be canged? War, beyond any doubt—war declared by England, because we claim the whole of Oregon, and will accept of no compromise: and, moreover, we assume a tone of uncalled-for defiance and imprudent haughtiness in treating a subject of mutual negotiation. But it will be alleged that "Great Britain declares war against us, and we must stand on the defensive." There is no difference whether we declare war against her, or we provoke her to declare war against us. The family of nations throughout the world will demand that the peace of the world shall not be broken without cause. In our war with England of 1812 no Power on earth had juster grounds for hostilities than we had. Our flag was insulted, our seamen impressed, our merchant vessels captured and confiscated, our coast blockaded, and our people killed. There, national honor was at stake, and we manfully stood by that honor, and success attended us. In this question, we take occasion to declare that not a jot of our national honor is involved. It is a simple question of the right of ownership to a few degrees of land some three thousand miles distant—a question purely of negotiation and compromise, and not of war. If England declares war against us, we must be ready with our united energies and with the ample power of our country, to resist her in every shape, whatever may be the hazards, sufferings, and privations. But, at the same time, it is a duty we owe our country, its peace, safety and happiness, not to drive her to that extremity, if prudence, principle, and equitable compromise can prevent it—Party and political power cannot be secured by rash experiments. The loudest men in the nation, clamoring for all Oregon, and inviting war by loud defiance, will abandon the Administration declaring it upon the first reverse we may meet with—and in war we must expect reverses as well as victories. The whole nation may be united in defending the flag and the soil, and the country, and its institutions; but the whole nation may be united against the Administration whose want of prudence has brought us into a dilemma. We hope, therefore, that prudent and not rash counsels will prevail—that this negotiation will be removed from some fiery spirits in Congress, who have ulterior political views and aspirations, and entrusted to the cool and sagacious Minister we have in London, that while at the fountain head, and in constant communication with the controlling power of the Government, he may present the subject in various positions so as to insure a mutually honorable and pacific termination of this vexed question.

Dec. 27, 1845. tf

Friends and Fellow-Citizens,

I come before you as a tried servant, but pefore I unfold to you my future course, allow me to allude to the past. I have been engaged actively, diligently, yet honestly, for the few years past in an effort to purchase that most inestimable of all blessings, freedom. In that effort I have been aided by the kind patronage extended to me in my line of business, by many citizens. To particularise, when all have been so kind, would be invidious, but my feelings of gratitude will not permit me to let this opportunity pass, without thanking the ladies of Cambridge for their patronage and punctuality, I have never called upon them, and departed from their doors, empty handed; and I hope the time may speedily come when these ladies all, and these good gentlemen and their children, and their generation out, will all stand in the first frontier of pleasure without end, forever; and my feelings tell me that such will be the destiny of those who have acted such a good and noble part. I am sorry however to be compelled to say, that there are a few gentlemen who have been so delinquent in paying, that had all acted like them, I should not only now be a slave, but involved in a heavy debt.

I have changed my Oyster establishment to the Office lately occupied by Mr. Daniel M. Henry, opposite the Store House of the Messrs. Straughn, where I intend to keep a peaceable, calm and decent House, and I hope no person will come to my house, who is not willing to conduct himself peaceably and quietly, to be satisfied with my best exertions to please, and to pay as he goes. The kindness I have heretofore received from the ladies and gentlemen will cause me to redouble my exertions to give satisfaction. My house will be open from 8 (A. M.) to 10 1-2 (P. M.) The Public's obedient servant,

JOHN HAWKINS.

Dorchester, County to wit:

ON application to me the subscriber one of the Justices of the Orphan's Court of Dorchester County by John Mobray, Jr. and James B. Thompson, of said County, stating that they are in confinement for debts which they are unable to pay and praying to be relieved therefrom agreeable to the Acts of Assembly for the relief of Insolvent Debtors, a schedule of their property and a list of their creditors and debtors on oath, so far as they can at present ascertain the same being annexed to their petition, and the said John Mobray Jr. and James B. Thompson being in actual confinement and I being satisfied that the said John Mobray Jr. and James B. Thompson has resided for two years last past in the State of Marylaad, and they having taken the oath prescribed by the Act of 1805 and given bond with sufficient security for their appearance before the Judges of Dorchester County Court to be held at Cambridge in said county on the Tuesday after the first Monday in April next, and at such other time or times as the Court may direct, to answer the obligations of their creditors and having complied with the requisitions of the Act of December session 1825 and the several supplements thereto by executing a deed of all their property, real, personal or mixed, to Solomon Robinson and George W Low appointed by me as trustees to the said John Mobray Jr. and James B. Thompson and the said trustees having given bond with approved security for the performance of the trust and certified in writing that they are in possession of all the estate of the said John Mobray Jr. and James B. Thompson mentioned in their schedule—I do therefore order and direct that the said John Mobray Jr. and James B. Thompson be discharged from their imprisonment and that they be and appear before the Judges of Dorchester County Court on the day above mentioned, and the same time is appointed for their creditors to attend and shew cause if any they have, why the said John Mobray Jr. and James B. Thompson should not obtain the benefit of the said Insolvent laws, and I do further order and direct that the said John Mobray Jr. and James B. Thompson give notice to their creditors by causing a copy of this application to be inserted in a newspaper published in Cambridge three months before the said day and to be continued in such newspaper once a week for four successive weeks, also a like copy to be set up at the Court House door three months before said day. Witness my hand this 28th day of October 1845.
