beetroot, and potatoes, they again recovered their flesh, and gave the former quantity of milk. The conclusions of this gentleman are, that beetroot and potatoes do not perform the part usually imputed to them, of fattening cattle, or increasing the quantity of the milk of cows: His experiments show that this is the case when this food is given to the exclusion of all other; but there is not, we believe a cow keeper in France who would think of suppressing the use of beetroot or potatoes as part of the food to their animals. Experience upon a large scale, which is far better than scientific experiments and conclusions of the nature of those of M. Boussaingault, proves that beetroot and potatoes, in proper proportions, form excellent food for horned cattle.

WAGES OF LABOR.—The most inveterate opponent of the tariff will not avow the sentiments, that the wages paid for American labor should be reduced to the European standard—and yet such would be the result if the protective system should be abolished—that is, if the laborers in the United States can obtain employment at all, which is at least doubtful. We know that thousands were unemployed in 1842, when the duties were reduced to 20 per cent. who would have been glad to have accepted even the prices paid in Europe.—"Experience is a severe teacher" and we presume that none of our mechanics or manufacturers desire to have the lesson of 1842 repeated. If they do, they have only to lend their aid to procure the repeal of the present tariff, and they will again have the opportunity to take their fishing tackle to the wharves, to supply dinners to their families.

The difference between the prices paid in Europe and in this country for labor of various kinds, may not be generally understood—but the fact must be evident to all, that, without the tariff, the manufacturers and mechanics of the United States cannot successfully compete with those of Europe, unless wages in this country be reduced to the European standard—that is, to the point of starvation.

We give below, a statement from a N. York paper, which exhibits the American and European prices for various kinds of labor—and we appeal to those engaged in the branches named, and ask them, whether they will consent to repeal the tariff act, and to work for the prices therein named.

Cotton Weavers (men) who now get per day 80 cents, must then work for 26 cents.

Cotton Weavers (women) who now get per day 33 cents must work for 18 cents.

Cotton Weavers (girls) who now get per day 30 cents, must work for 10 cents.

Silk Weavers who now get per day 50 cents, must work for 11 cents.

Spinners who now get per lb. 10 cents, must work for 3 cents.

Ship Carpenters who now get per day $1,75, must work for 50 cents.

Brush Makers who now get per day $1, must work for 20 cents.

Hatters, who now get for silk hats 55 cents, must work for 25.

Straw-hat makers, who now get $1 per hat must work for 20 cents.

Paper makers (men) who now get per week $8, must work for $1,75.

Paper makers (women) who get per week $2-75, must work for 55 cents.

Sail makers who now get $2 per day, must work for $1,10.

Cordage makers, who now get per day $1 must work for 16 cents.

Shoe makers, who now get per day $1,30 must work for 15 cents.

Tailors who now get per week $9, must work for $1.

Cabinet makers who now get per week $10, must work for $1.

Day laborers who now get per day 85 cents, must work for 27 cents.

Makers of Iron-ware who now get per ton $30, must work for $12.

Thus it will be seen that mechanics and manufacturers, with all who depend for a living on making by labor the raw materials into articles of use, must reduce the wages of their labor in the ratio indicated above, or quit the business. The destruction of the protective system leaves them no other alternative.

Next let us see how the aggregate annual earnings of several classes of the laborers would be affected. The number of persons engaged in each branch of business is taken from the census returns of 1840.

4,464 cordage makers, who now get $1,500,000, would then get $240,000.

4,726 paper makers, who now get $3,432,090, would then get $750,360.

The cotton weavers in the United States who now get $18,000,840, would then get $5,850,000.

The woollen cloth weavers in the U. States, who now get $4,800,000, would then get $1,200,000.

The shoe makers in Massachusetts, who now get $15,000,000, would then get $5,400,000.

The tailors in the U. States, who now get $10,720,000, would then get $8,320,000.

The cabinet makers of the U. States, who now get $9,360,000, would then get $3,744,000.

Mechanics, read this list attentively, and then make up your minds whether you will be for or against a protective tariff. On the one hand you are offered employment and fair prices—on the other idleness and ruin, or wages for labor which will not give bread to yourselves and families.—Make your choice which you will have—the consequences of that choice are to be felt by yourselves and those who are dear to you, as well as by your country.—Clipper.

Manufacturing operations dependent on water power are in a great measure suspended in many sections of the Union by the continued drought.—The N. Y. American says that the Passaic, at Paterson, affords not a drop of water to the "Romantic Falls," and several of the mills have ceased working. The Morris Canal is at almost a stand still, and even the Delaware river is so slow that the Delaware and Easton Canal is without an adequate supply and the coal trade at Bristol is suspended, thus throwing hundreds out of a present livelihood.

The Pennsylvania Canals are so slow in water that transportation is almost at a stand. Many of the purchases made in the Atlantic markets for the interior are now taking the Central route to the West by way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.—Balt. American.

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.—A New York paper, speaking of this road says

The work is rapidly increasing in productiveness, and must ere long be very profitable property. It is one of the very best works of the kind in the country, and is now, although not more than half finished, a great thoroughfare. The further it extends into the Western country, the more profitable it must be. The business of the road has generally exceeded the estimates of the most sanguine, and these channels of transportation must increase more rapidly for the future than they have for the past. Any railroad in this country rightly managed, will, in time, relieve itself of any debt that may have been created and pay fair dividends on the outlay.
