AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

The Cultivation of the Crop.

The main object to be aimed at is to keep it clean from the time it is first worked until ready to lay by; but, as we have frequently stated, we decidedly oppose the use of the plow after the plants get to be of the height of 9 or 12 inches. Then it should be replaced by the cultivator, by the use of which the breaking and tearing of the lateral roots is avoided. These feeders undoubtedly stretch out several feet in every direction, and as the pabulum which they appropriate for assimilation and the building up of the plant is taken in at their extremities, of course any plan of cultivation pursued which systematically breaks up these feeders several times during the growth of the crop must cause a diminished yield, proportioned to the injury thus inflicted. When frequent rains fall, the damage to these feeding rootlets may be quickly repaired, since the vitality of the corn plant is very great, and fresh roots are quickly formed under favorable circumstances, but in times of drought the evil will not be so readily or quickly remedied, and the effects of the practice to which we refer will be discovered in a diminished yield and small ears.

It is a matter which can be easily tested, and a few rows only will afford opportunity of judging which plan is best to pursue with the crop.

Do not allow the ground to become hard and baked; every shower that falls will form a crust upon the surface, through which the air, with its freight of fertilizing atoms, cannot penetrate. The dews and rains of heaven and the atmospheric gases are nature's manures, but that they may have full influence we must keep the surface light and open, that both vapors and liquids may freely penetrate and circulate. The fight here is ever, as we note above, with the weeds. They drink up the moisture and nutritive principles which would otherwise go to the corn. To keep these down and to make the surface soil finely pulverized, itself act as a mulch, is what we aim at in the constant stirring and opening of the soil; and to neglect it is to risk your crop.—American Farmer.

The Wonderful Montecito Grape.

"About four miles from the town, in the valley of Montecito, grows the now famous grape vine, one of the wonders for the tourists in Southern California. It is the largest on record. It measures four feet four inches in circumference at the ground, forty-one inches two feet from the ground, and rises eight before branching out; then spreading with extreme luxuriance, its branches cover more than five thousand square feet, and are supported by fifty-two trellises. The largest branch is thirty inches in circumference, and were it not for frequent pruning, the branches would extend indefinitely in every direction. It is the Mission variety and exceedingly prolific, producing annually from five to six tons of grapes, which hang in massive clusters beneath the trellises, the effect of which, in the mellow autumn time, excites admiration and wonder. It is claimed that it has produced 7,000 bunches of grapes, varying from one to four pounds in weight each. A bean was put in a vase for every bunch picked until the beans numbered 7,000. It grows on a sunny slope at the foot-hills, commanding a fine view of the rugged mountains in one direction, and in the other the lovely Montecito Valley, with glimpses of the blue Pacific. The vine is irrigated by waters from the hot springs, a few miles distant, and the country about the vine is very beautiful and Mexican in its natural and artificial surroundings."

What is it worth to keep Horses, Cattle, Sheep, &c., per week?

For horses it is worth as many shillings per week as hay is worth dollars per ton. If hay is worth $10 per ton, it is worth 10s. per week; if $15, 15s; if $20, 20s., and so on. This estimate is for good hay only. If a man has a large range and an open winter horses can be kept for much less. Sometimes it is necessary to feed some grain; that should be an extra charge, unless a good deal is fed, then the hay is worthless. Cattle will eat as much as horses, but they are usually kept on cheaper hay, red top, not so merchantable, and coarse fodder; consequently they can be wintered for two-thirds as much as horses. That is, if good hay is worth $12 per ton, it is worth 8s. per week, &c.

In winter, droves of cattle can be fed for as many cents per day as the hay fed is worth dollars per ton. Hay at $10, cattle at 10c. per day; $15, at 15c. per day, &c. And to pasture them in summer it is worth two-thirds as much as to feed hay in winter. If 15c per day in winter, it is worth 10c. to pasture in summer, and, allowing five sheep to eat as much as a steer, it is worth 2c. per day per sheep, if it is worth 10 cts. each to keep cattle. With these rules one can easily determine what it is worth to keep stock in any place.

SMALL HORSES.—The Southern Farmer says: "The arguments may all be in favor of great size, but the facts are all the other way. Large horses are more liable to stumble and be lame than those of the middle size. They are clumsy, and cannot fill themselves so quick. There is nothing more supprising to the Western men than to visit Montreal and see the small but stout Canadian horses hauling large two-seated carriages, full of people, with apparent ease. A horse weighing 900 pounds in Maine takes a chaise or Concord wagon, with two men in it, and makes fifty or sixty miles a day over hills that might have terrified Hannibal. But their weight is where it ought to be. It is compact, and not lying around loose.—It is muscle, not pulp, that we want in a horse."

THERE seems to be no lack of published plans for driving away or catching rats, and yet we very often hear inquiries for some plan. One of our exchanges recommends that caustic potash should be put around their holes and in their runs; another claims that the same result may be obtained by using common tar, boiled down until it becomes sticky; a third states that chloride of lime or bleaching powder will effectually disgust them. Certain it is that they will soon become initiated into the mysteries of any kind of trap that may be set for them. A new kind of trap may work well for a short time, but it soon is found ineffectual. We have always succeeded best with traps by changing the plan every few days.

THE editor of the Farmer's Journal says: As soon as the cholera is discovered in your hog give at the rate of one ounce of carbolic acid to twenty-five hogs, well dissolved, and mixed with swill, and repeat every two or three days. Remove every affected hog at once from the healthy ones, and bury all carcasses immediately.

A CARD

To my Fellow-Citizens of Kent County:

I am induced by many considerations to announce myself to you as an INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE FOR THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES of Maryland. There is no reason why labor should not be represented in the State Legislature by one of her own sons and not always by a gentleman of property.—I am not ashamed to be the poor man's candidate. I am opposed to all cliques, rings and conventions, by means of which the few rule the many, taking care to provide office and emolument for themselves to the exclusion of the rank and file. I am against all party machinery and trickery, and am not a caucus candidate, but simply ask and hope for the support of all independent men.

I am your ob't servant,
ap12-6m* JAMES M. AYRES.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE subscriber most respectfully informs the public that he has made arrangements with Dr. Thos. H. Whaland to carry on his near Chestertown, for the present year.

His long experience in the business and his reputation as a Miller warrants him in the belief that he can give universal satisfaction.—As soon as practicable he intends to keep on hand a good supply of which he is determined to sell at reduced prices.

CORN MEAL, WHEAT FLOUR of all Grades,

HORSE FEED, &c., &c.,

He only wants to make the regular toll, and will be compelled to sell for Cash only as his capital is small and he does not intend to keep books.

He will use all means to make the Mill a public convenience as well as a source of profit. A trial is all he asks.

Most respectfully,
SAMUEL A. ANTHONY.

THE EUREKA

FANNING MILL.

THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!

Farmers Look to Your Interest

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public.

It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras—EUREKA!—signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by the inventor himself. It embraces the three great essentials necessary in every invention:

It combines ECONOMY, UTILITY and PRACTICABILITY!

THE "EUREKA" MILL

is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented.

IT IS THE ONLY MILL

that will successfully remove from wheat all such pests as Cockle, Garlic, Oats, Rye, &c.

Should an extra quality of grain for seed or gristing purposes be required, it can be so arranged as to catch in one box perfect grain, and in the other, grain fit for market or mill. Here is made a great saving usually lost sight of: for nearly one quarter of the grain cleaned in the common Mills is lost when sown, on account of shrunken kernels and inferior grain. The Eureka Mill saves all this, and gives seed every kernel of which will grow when put into the ground, and this saving will, in a short time, pay for the Mill.

HINES & BURCHINAL,

Chestertown, Maryland,

Owners of the Mill, are having them manufactured at the Sash Factory and Planing Mill of Noland & Co., Port Deposit, Md., which is a guarantee that they will be put up in the best manner. jel7-tf.
