POETRY.

INDIAN SUMMER.

THERE is a time just when the frost
Prepares to pave old Winter's way,
When Autumn in a reverie lost,
The mellow daytime dreams away,
When Summer comes in musing mind,
To gaze once more on hill and dell,
To mark how many sheaves they bind,
And see if they are ripened well.

With balmy breath she whispers low,
The dying flowers look up and give
Their sweetest incense, 'ere they go,
For her who made her beauties live.
She enters 'neath the woodland's shade,
Her zephyrs lift the lingering leaf,
And bear it gently where are laid
The loved and lost ones of its grief.

At last old Autumn, rising, takes
His scepter and his throne,
With boisterous hand the tree he shakes,
Intent in gathering all his own.
Sweet Summer, sighing flies the plain,
And waiting, Winter gaunt and grim,
Sees miser Autumn hoard his grain,
And smiles to think it's all for him.

MISCELLANEOUS.

☞ Making acquaintance is easy enough—any rogue or fool can do that; the difficulty lies in keeping them, and converting them into friends. The best method I know of is to preserve your independence. There are obligations, however, which can be rendered and accepted without a loss of independence. The pleasure of conferring a favor is greater, to properly constituted minds, than that of receiving one, but it is delightful, and a guarantee of continued amity, if the kindness one receives can promptly be reciprocated. Secondly, do not press your company too much upon the new acquaintance. Make yourself agreeable to him, let him seek your society, and when you are with him, avoid all topics on which a difference of opinion is likely to arise.

A Quaker's Wit.—Mr. Dillwyn's son told me that his father, in his younger days, was with a party of military officers. One of them, a pert, effeminate, young dandy, undertook to quiz the plain Quaker, and after some indifferent jokes, asked him to hold his sword for a minute, supposing he would consider it an abomination to touch it. Mr. Dillwyn, however eyeing the young man from head to foot, said, "As I believe from thy appearance it has never shed blood, and is not likely to do so, I have not the smallest objection."—Leslie's Autobiography.

☞ Dr. Abernethy rarely met his match; on one occasion he fairly owned that he had. He was sent for by an innkeeper who had a quarrel with his wife, who had scarred his face with her nails so that the poor man was bleeding and much disfigured. Abernethy thought this an opportunity not to be lost for admonishing the offender, and said, "Madam, are you not ashamed of yourself, to treat your husband thus—the husband who is the head of all—your head, madam, in fact?" "Well, Doctor," fiercely returned the virago, "may I not scratch my own head?"

☞ A minister had a quarrel with one of his parishioners by the name of Hardy, who showed considerable resentment. On the succeeding Sunday the divine preached from the following text, which he pronounced with great emphasis, and with a significant look at Hardy, who was present: "there is no fool like the fool-Hardy."

☞ It is worthy of remark that men who have nothing to do seldom have any leisure, while those earnestly engaged in business have spare time enough. The latter have leisure, because they attend to their own business, and nothing else: the former want leisure because they do not attend to their own business, but to every thing else.

☞ A boarding miss, deeming "cat" a word too vulgar for refined ears, defined it thus: To insert nutritious pabulum into the ventriculated orifice below the protuberance, which being masticated, peregrinates through the cartilaginous cavities of the larnyx, and is finally domiciliated in the receptacle for digestible particles."

Rather Bitter.—The following is said to have taken place on a late occasion at the house of Douglas Jerrold: "Douglas, dear," said his wife, appealing to him in a small feminine dispute, "do you think I'm general bad tempered?" "No, my dear," said he, "I think you are particularly so."

A BRUTE OF A HUSBAND.—Wife (anxiously).—What did that young lady observe who passed us just now?" —Husband (with a smile of calm delight:) "Why, my love, she observed a rather good-looking man walking with quite an elderly female, that's all.—Ahem!"

☞ The poor fellow who couldn't hold his own has got himself into a worse difficulty by trying to hold another's.

☞ As one of the Dover, England, volunteers, was passing along, rifle in hand, he was accosted by a precocious urchin, who called out—

"Who shot the dog?"

This saying our friend appeared by no way to relish; so turning, he said—

"If you are not off very soon, I'll shoot a donkey."

Whereupon the boy calling out to one of his companions, rejoined:—

"I say, Bill, look here—this here fellow is going to commit suicide."

Just So.—As a general thing it is rather irksome for hard-working out-of-door business men to accompany the "wimmin folks" about town shopping. It probably was to the "gentleman" from the "rooral deestricks," who came into a dry-goods store up town a few days since, out of breath, exclaiming, with a good-natural impatience to two women whom he was trying to accompany, "I would as lief chase a cow all over the pasture, as to keep track of yeou, gol darned if I hadn't."

☞ "Mother, have I got any children?" asked an urchin of eight summers.

"Why no. What put that in your head, my boy?"

"Because I read in a book to-day at school about children's children."

"Here, Biddy, this child is feverish, wash him in ice-water, and put him to bed."

A Good One.

As a representative of the "ould sod" was helping Mr. Blank to get a safe in his office one day, and not being acquainted with the article, inquired what it was for? "To prevent papers and other articles which are placed in it from being burnt in case of fire," said B.

"An' sure will nothing ivir burn that is put in that iron thrunk?"

"No."

"Well, thin, yer honor, ye'd better be afther getting into that same when ye die."

Mr. Blank told him to open the windows and let the cool air in.

☞ Henry Ward Beecher's latest "crotchet" is, that the clergy ought to preach only once on a Sunday. He says that "no preacher who is fit to preach a sermon is fit to preach more than one a day, and no man is fit to hear more, or if he does he is not fit for much else.—Sermons are like boy's pop guns; however many wads you put in, it's the last wad that drives the others out."

A clergyman having preached several times in a small town, in which he had not once been invited to dinner, said, in seriously exhorting his hearers against being seduced by the prevalent vices of the age, "I have preached against every vice but luxurious living, having had no opportunity of observing to what extent it was carried out in this town."

☞ The following startling response was recently made by the female head of a family in New York, to the query of the Census marshal: "Have you any domestic manufactures to report?'—"Well, yes, we have eight, with a continued prospect!"

Take a Drink.—A goose that sees another drink will do the same, though he is not thirsty. The custom of drinking for company when drinking is dispensible and prejudicial seems to be a case of the same kind, and puts a man, feathers only excepted, upon a footing with a goose.

☞ "I'm afraid you do not practice much self denial," said a parson to a pretty Miss in Newport.

"Nay but I do," said she, "for every day I fall in with pretty young men whom I want to kiss sadly, but deny myself that pleasure."

☞ A young man in conversation one evening chanced to remark, "I am no prophet!"

"True," replied a lady present, "no profit to yourself or to any one else."

☞ "Red, White and Blue." The red cheeks, white teeth and blue eyes of a lovely girl are as good a flag as a young soldier, in the battle of life, need fight for.

☞ The fellow who "broke loose" has gone into partnership with the one that "broke the news," and they anticipate doing a smashing business.

☞ What is the difference between an elephant and a tree? A tree leaves in the spring, an elephant leaves whenever the menagerie does.

☞ "Pray, madam, why did you name your old hen Mackduff?" "Because, sir, I want her to "lay on."

☞ Punch says that Garabaldi is like a man with a wheelbarrow—he carries everything before him.

"A Sheep in Wolf's Clothing."—An "old Whig" wearing a democratic badge.

The prettiest trimming for a woman's bonnet is a good humored face.

A brute of a bachelor asks why one of the old Venitan prisons is like a marrying? Because it is an awful cell.

"I think, wife, that you have a great many ways of calling me a fool."

"I think husband, that you have a great many of being one."

An aged bachelor being asked if he ever witnessed a public execution, "No, but I once saw a marriage."

We have heard of but one old woman that "kissed her cow," but there are thousands of young ones that kiss great calves.

What key opens the gate to misery? Ans.—Whis-key.

In all the noble enterprises, the ladies are like the electric telegraph—far in advance of the males.

CERTIFICATE.

WESTMINSTER, SEPTEMBER 22, 1860.

H. L. SHRIVER—Dear Sir: I herein freely give you a certificate as to the effects and virtues of Dr Markley's Balsam and Pills. I have been suffering for more than 9 years with the very worst kind of Dyspepsia, and after trying everything that I could think of without receiving any benefit. I was almost induced to give up in despair of ever being cured, but by chance while staying in Prederick county Ohio, had May I got hold of one of Dr. Markley's circulars and from the wonderful cures therein related. I was induced to buy three bottles of his Balsam and three boxes of Pills, and after using but one bottle of Balsam and one box of Pills I can with truth say that I am entirely cured, and feel as well as ever I did in my life. It has now been thirteen weeks since I took the last dose, and have not had any symptoms of a return of the dread disease, or one day of sickness in all that time. I feel it my duty to give you this certificate, that you may make it public and others may be induced to try and be cured by this valuable medicine.

Yours, Respectfully, ADAM GILBERT.

All of Dr. Markley's medicines can be had at Shriver's Hot End Drug Store. Call and get a circular.

CHESNUT GROVE WHISKEY C.W.

(The Purest Medicinal Agent ever known,) has furnished the community as a Stimulant, Pure, Healthful, and Invigorating, at the same time a mild, delicious beverage. It is calculated to do away with the vile drugged stuff that is palmed off on the community, and which is injurious to body and mind. In addition to the certificates beneath, he has received a Diploma from the State Agricultural Society, and additional testimony from DR. JACKSON, of Boston, who testifies under oath to its absolute purity.

CERTIFICATES.

Philadelphia, September 9, 1858.

We have carefully tested the sample of Chesnut Grove Whiskey which you sent us, and find that it contains none of the poisonous substance known as Fusil Oil, which is the characteristic and injurious ingredient of the Whiskeys in general use.

New York, September 3, 1858.

I have analyzed a sample of Chesnut Grove Whiskey, received from Mr. Charles Wharton, Jr., of Philadelphia, and having carefully tested it I am pleased to state that it is entirely free from poisonous or deleterious substances. It is an unusually pure and fine flavored quality of Whiskey. JAMES R. CHILTON,
Analytical Chemist.

Boston, March 7, 1859.

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of Chesnut Grove Whiskey, which proves to be free from the heavy Fusil Oils, and perfectly pure and unadulterated. The fine flavor of this Whiskey is derived from the Grain used in manufacturing it.

HAIR INVIGORATOR.

AN EFFECTIVE, SAFE AND ECONOMICAL COMPOUND,

FOR RESTORING GREY HAIR to its original color without dyeing, and preventing the Hair from turning grey.

FOR PREVENTING BALDNESS, and curing it, when there is the least particle of vitality or recuperative energy remaining.

FOR REMOVING SCURF AND DANDRUFF, and all cutaneous affections of the Scalp.

FOR BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR, imparting to it an unequalled gloss and brilliancy, making it soft and silky in its texture and causing it to curl readily.

The great celebrity and the increasing demand for this unequalled preparation, convince the proprietor that one trial is only necessary to satisfy a discerning public of its superior qualities over any other preparation at present in use. It cleanses the head and scalp from dandruff and other cutaneous diseases, causes the hair to grow luxuriantly, and gives it a rich, soft, glossy and flexible appearance, and also where the hair is looning and thinning, it will give strength and vigor to the roots, and restore the growth to those parts which have become bald, causing it to yield a fresh covering of hair.

There are hundreds of ladies and gentlemen in New York who have had their hair restored by the use of this Invigorator, when all other preparations had failed. L. M. has in his possession letters innumerable testifying to the above facts, from persons of the highest responsibility. It will effectually prevent the hair from turning gray until the latest period of life; and in cases where the hair has its color changed it, the use of the Invigorator will
