An Albino Among Swallows.

On Thursday last, writes a correspondent of the London Times, when I arrived at Westgate-on-Sea, I was told by my gardener that a white swallow had been seen during the last few days at Birchington, a village about two miles from here. I determined to go over and see it next day. Alas! before I arrived there the bird had disappeared. On the same evening it was brought to me alive, with one wing shattered by a gunshot. Its beauty had proved its doom, and, as if rare loveliness were a crime, a price had been put on its head, and several men with guns, not licensed, had been watching for it. The man who struck it lost it in the long grass of a meadow, and some hours afterward it was picked up by two little boys.

With great care and attention I have been able to keep it alive, and, so far, save it from the birdstuffer. It now readily takes flies from one's hand, and is very tame; but through the cruel cupidity of so-called bird collectors, it will never be able to fly again, and a beautiful rarity of nature, with its snow-white wings glistening in the sun, has been lost. The eyes have a pink tinge, and the under part of the body is pure white; the head, back, and upper part of the wings are of a pretty light mouse color.

He Wears Buchanan's hat.

Perhaps the most unique hat in Philadelphia is now worn by a car driver, says the Philadelphia Press. In 1859 it was purchased in this city by James Buchanan, who was particular as to what he put upon his head. The hat is an antique, high black silk affair, with an artistically sloping brim. The great democratic noncoercionist discarded it after some months' use. The tile passed into the possession of his valet, who found it much too cavernous for personal utility, so the object reposed under a decade's accumulation of dust in a Spruce street attic until the valet's death. His son became the owner of the heirloom, and having a head larger than the father the cylinder came occasionally into use. Unfortunately it was tossed off its possessor's cranium by reckless firemen, who inadvertently directed a stream of water full on it during a fire. Thus damaged, the hat was sold for a song to the car driver who now owns it, and he makes use of the article daily. Inside the tile is still the hatband, daintily embroidered with the initials J. B., and considering its vicissitudes the relic is in a very respectable condition.

There are many odd and curious specimens of botanical rarities in the Government Botanical gardens at Washington. None, however, attracts more attention than that remarkable oriental oddity, the "barber plant." It was not given its odd name, as some might suppose, because its leaves are like razors or its sap like lather. Neither will its inner bark make splendid towels (as is said of the "vegetable cloth" tree), or its seeds make razor hones. It is simply called the barber plant because the juices of either the leaves or fruit applied to the face prevent the beard from growing. Mr. Davis says that this does not apply to cases where the beard has taken root, but that it may be applied with perfect safety by boys who desire to keep the hair on their faces from getting a start.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Bazar is a journal for the home. It gives the fullest and latest information about Fashions, and its numerous illustrations, Paris designs, and pattern-sheet supplements are indispensable alike to the home dressmaker and the professional modiste. No expense is spared to make its artistic attractiveness of the highest order. Its bright stories, amusing comedies, and thoughtful essays satisfy all tastes, and its last page is famous as a budget of wit and humor. In its weekly issues everything is included which is of interest to women. The Serials for 1893 will be written by Walter Besant and Edna Lyall. Christine Terhune Herrick will furnish a practical series, entitled "At the Toilet." Grace King, Olive Thorne Miller, and Candace Wheeler will be frequent contributors. The work of women in the Columbian Exposition will be fully represented with many illustrations. T. W. Higginson, in "Women and Men," will please a cultivated audience.

LEGORE'S IMPROVED COMBINATION OF LIME

Is Superior to all Common Grades of Lime.

By this system and process, a full combination of the salts of lime are furnished, and as a cheap and powerful agent it beats bone. It has no equal. The choicest carbonates of lime exist here, perhaps, as no where else. We use from three different strata or deposits, burn in separate furnaces, and then mix and proportion it so as to act on all kinds of soil and crops. This has never been attempted by any other manufacturer. Our rock and improved facilities exceed any in the State. Farmers will not need a pound of bone where this lime is used. Don't be deceived or imposed upon any longer. Be sure you are right and get Legore's combination, and be convinced how easy, quick and cheap land can be improved and full crops grown. Furnished in car load lots to suit. Farmers can order their own lime. Guarantee a genuine article or no pay. Send for testimonials, prices, etc. Address

J. W. LEGORE,
Woodsboro, Frederick county, Md.

Sole and exclusive manufacturer of this lime. Be sure and get Legore's combination.

CAUTION.—Do not be deceived by agents representing other grades claiming as good. No other manufactured like it. Order your own lime and save all commissions. I ship on all Railroads. oc-29-6m*
