Many Westminster people have seen or will see this wonderful performance, and nobody who can possibly compass a visit to the Academy while the play is on the boards, should fail to do so. The court decided adversely to the prisoner on both propositions, and Brown must serve out his sentence.

Miller and his son, Mr. Daniel Miller, formerly of this city, at 1935 North Warnock street, Philadelphia, on Tuesday evening, February 18th, in honor of their birthday anniversary. Cochran, the talented teacher of elocution at the college.

The board of trustees of Western Maryland College held a called session in Baker Chapel on Tuesday to consider the matter of endowment. So far the administration of Dr. Lewis, president of the college has been marked by increase in buildings and other requisites of a college plant. Now that the immediate needs in this direction are met attention is turned to the matter of securing the perpetuity of what has already been acquired. The most important measure adopted was the creation of the office of "Field representative," whose duty it shall be to devote his whole time to traveling through the district of college patronage and carry out the plans for the promotion of endowment which have proved so successful in the case of other colleges.

The rain of Tuesday, with the melting snow, caused something of a freshet in the streams of this county. The waters were very high and considerable damage was done. Wednesday morning, in the milldam of Mr. Andrew Drechsler, at Carrollton Station. Mr. Drechsler states that 90 to a 100 feet of the dam gave way and the structure was swept down to the lowest foundation stone. The dam was thoroughly drained of water and the fish it contained were carried down to the meadows below, where many of them were stranded. Bushels of them, of different varieties, including some 8-pound carp, were picked up by the people along the Patapsco, to the distance of several miles below the broken dam. The dam of Mr. J. D. Crowl, at Patapsco, also gave way under the pressure of the water, and Spahr's dam, on Deep Run, and Hoffman's and Richards' dams on North Branch, were destroyed. Many cellars were flooded with water.

The W. C. T. U. Supper.

The supper given by the Deer Park W. C. T. U., at the parsonage, was attended by about one hundred. The gathering was one of the most pleasant and profitable as well. It was decided by all present to have been a great success. It was through the hearty co-operation of the friends in the neighborhood who furnished donations which caused it to be the complete success that it was, for which the ladies of the Union feel very grateful. The program was brief yet seemed to please. These meetings mean labor but it is hoped that good seed is being sown, that will bring abundant harvest.

Great Musical Treat.

A great musical treat was given to the people of New Windsor and vicinity on Friday evening of last week. The Peabody Quartette, from Baltimore, gave one of their inimitable recitals at the college, and it was a most enjoyable entertainment. In spite of the severe storm, there was a good audience present and they were all charmed with the performance. Miss Ascherfeld as a pianist is beyond criticism and all her performances are faultless and exquisite. Miss Cummin has a rich, melodious voice which delights the people. Mr. Moses' selections on the violin were varied and artistic in the highest sense, and charmingly rendered, and Mr. Rabold's fine baritone voice thrilled his audience. Never in the history of New Windsor did the people enjoy such a rich musical treat as that given here last week. Nor could any audience be more enthusiastic over any performance than were those who heard the Peabody Quartette, who made their concert a most decided success.

The Great Sleet Storm.

It would take more space than the columns of the SENTINEL afford to give a minute and detailed account of the great sleet storm which began in this locality on Friday last and speedily culminated in the destruction of a large amount of certain kinds of property. The storm began in the early morning with hail and snow, turning to rain, which froze as it fell, about day-dawn. By noon every object touched by the falling rain was encrusted with an icy covering which, a few hours later, increased to such proportions as to make telegraph, telephone and electric light wires present the appearance of great cables of ice, while trees appeared almost like solid masses of frozen water. The ice on the wires reached a diameter of an inch to an inch and a quarter. Then the effect of the great weight upon the objects spoken of began to be felt severely. Telephone wires broke in every direction; telephone poles snapped off like pipe-stems; great branches of trees fell crashing to the earth and the alleys in this city were blockaded by the debris. Even the wide Main street was covered with piles of broken tree limbs and obstructed to some extent by the wires of the several electric systems in the place.

The Western Maryland Telephone Company of Carroll County suffered most severely in the destruction of property. Many of the poles, which carried between 200 and 300 wires, gave way under the tremendous strain and went down with cross-arms broken and lines torn, twisted and piled in great masses on the earth. The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company's plant was also very much damaged, some poles broken down and many wires severed. Even the heavy wires of the Electric Light Company could not stand the strain and were broken in a number of places.

The damage to ornamental, fruit and forest trees was very great. Ornamental and fruit trees were in many instances so rent and defaced as to have been practically destroyed. The beautiful trees in Belle Grove Square present an ugly sight with the many jagged and unsightly snags left by their broken limbs. Pretty much the same condition resulted in the grounds of St. John's Catholic Church, and of Messrs. John L. Reifsnider and Wm. A. Cunningham, where the many ornamental trees were badly broken and defaced. Few trees anywhere in this section escaped damage to a greater or less extent. Many apple, peach pear and other fruit trees, in orchards and elsewhere, were utterly ruined and most of the remainder of them badly damaged.

The storm was widespread, but in this county, this city and the country along Parr's Ridge appears to have felt it most severely. West of Avondale its force seems to have been considerably diminished as far up as the mountain. Toward Taneytown a good many of the poles of the Western Maryland Telephone Company were broken, carrying down and practically destroying the wires for short distances. The lines to Union Bridge and Sykesville were not badly damaged. The lines of the Chesapeake and Potomac Company, in the country, also suffered considerably. Both companies are repairing damages as rapidly as possible, but full communications will not be restored immediately. At this time—Thursday—neither company is providing local service to any extent. It is said the Western Maryland contemplates the practical rebuilding of a considerable portion of its lines, upon a more substantial basis than heretofore and with a better service. The Electric Light Company had its plant partially in operation on Monday night, supplying light to private and business houses. The street are lights were in operation on the Wednesday night. The Western Union Telegraph Company's lines eastward were broken and not in operation until Sunday, when railroad service was reestablished by temporary repairs to a single wire. On Monday a wire for commercial business was in operation.

The sleet did not disappear until late Sunday afternoon. In fact some of it remained a day or two longer. The scene on Sunday morning, after sunrise, was surpassingly, indescribably beautiful. But it afforded little compensation for the immense damage inflicted by the icy visitation. It was evanescent, too, and soon changed from the appearance of a world of sparkling, glittering gems to the dull and sombre hues of leafless winter.

The latest information we have is that the lines of both telephone companies, between this city and Baltimore, have been repaired and communication opened between the exchanges of the companies in the two places. The Western Maryland Railroad Company has ordered 5000 feet of aerial copper cable for use in this city, to take the place of its overhead wires, and which will be shipped at once and will be received here in a day or two. The company, we are now informed, will, in restoring its lines, make its plant first-class in every particular.

Death of Mrs. Francis Scott Key, Jr.

Mrs. Elizabeth Harwood Key, widow of Francis Scott Key, Jr., more than half a century ago a resident for some years of this county, died on Sunday at the Church Home Infirmary, North Broadway, Baltimore, at the age of 94 years. The period of her residence in this county was between 1845 and 1850, when her family owned "The Elms," on the Patapsco, about a mile southeast of Finksburg, and half a mile from Glen Falls, on the Western Maryland Railroad. Referring to this fact the Baltimore American says: "This estate, now owned by a Mr. Gray, was at that period considered one of the finest in the county, if not in the state, having among its owners a number of prominent men of the times, among them being the late Robert Oliver, the owner of Greenmount, which afterward was converted into Greenmount Cemetery, Baltimore. Mr. Key, while a resident of 'The Elms,' took an active interest in the affairs of the vicinity, being an energetic, well educated man of the old school type of Maryland gentleman. Being a firm believer in the tenets of Jacksonian Democracy, Mr. Key was always in his element when a campaign was on hand, especially if that campaign resulted in victory for the party of which he was so ardent an adherent. Mrs. Key was a member of the well-known Harwood family of Annapolis, where she was born. She figured extensively in the social life of the early days of the last century, and was well known to the great figures of past generations." Mrs. Key's remains were interred at Annapolis.

A Honolulu Paper.

Dr. Chas. Clarence Billingslea, while at Honolulu, Hawaii, enroute to the Philippines, mailed his father, Dr. Charles Billingslea, of this city, a copy of the Honolulu Evening Bulletin, the columns of which are full of interesting news of that far away territory. It is an 8-page paper and does not differ materially in its make up from many of the American dailies. One of its items has had a sad sequel at Chicago. It says: "William T. Rawlins, one of Honolulu's young lawyers as well as its citizen born, leaves in the Sonoma for the Mainland. His errand is to bring home a bride, who is Miss Jane S. Somers, of Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Rawlins won his fiancee, while attending Yale University. The couple may be expected in Honolulu about the middle of April." Alas! the expectation will never be realized. Mr. Rawlins reached Chicago, enroute to Bridgeport, and there was stricken with pneumonia and died.

Politically the bulletin is bitterly hostile to Governor Dole and criticises the management of the territorial government severely.

Gamber Items.

Mr. James E. Willis died near here on Monday, of pneumonia, aged 48 years, 5 months. He was buried at Providence M. P. Church Cemetery on Wednesday. He was unmarried but leaves two brothers and one sister. He was a son of the late Adam W. and Rosanna Willis. He was a member of the M. P. Church for some years. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Nicholson, pastor of the church. A large concourse attended the burial.

Subscribers wishing their addresses changed must state their former as well as new address.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Baile.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Baile, widow of the late Jeremiah Baile, of New Windsor, died at her home in that place, on Sunday, 23rd ult., aged 73 years and 7 months. Mrs. Baile was the eldest child of the late Harry Carter, of Carter's Cross-Roads, now Dorsey's. Her brothers, all deceased, were Harry and Milton, both of Liberty district, Frederick county. Her sisters were Mrs. Augustus Lawrence, and Mrs. Martin L. Nicodemus, both of Frederick county and Mrs. Wm. Paine, of Pikesville, Baltimore county, deceased. One sister survives her—Mrs. Fannie Webb, of Frederick City. Her youngest brother James, then only a curley headed boy, joined Stuart's cavalry when it passed through Liberty, and was captured by the Union men near Frizellburg the next day. When released he never returned to the Confederate army but died a few years later in Frederick. Mrs. Baile's remains were laid away in the lot with her late husband at Winter's Church burying ground, on Wednesday, Rev. Mr. Kolb, of the M. E. Church, of which she was a member, and Rev. Mr. Baughman officiating. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Gustavus Barnes, Samuel T. Otto, Chas. T. Repp, Chas. Jones, George C. Anders and Nathan H. Baile. Mrs. Baile leaves no children.

Mr. Howard L. Hess Drowned.

Our Taneytown correspondent gives an account of the drowning of Mr. Howard L. Hess, a well known and worthy young citizen of Taneytown district, on Wednesday afternoon, which differs somewhat from another account we have received. The latter report is to the effect that Mr. Hess and Mr. Conover were attempting to cross Alloways creek, a short distance above its junction with the Monocacy, in a two-horse wagon, when a large cake of ice, sweeping down the creek, struck the team and carried horses and wagon, with Mr. Hess in it, into the Monocacy. That Mr. Conover jumped from the wagon to the floating ice which drifted near enough to the bank to enable him to escape. That the team and wagon were swept on through Stonesifer's milldam and over the breast of the dam, Mr. Hess disappearing somewhere on the route. That the horses were found hanging, dead in a tree on the bank of the Monocacy, after the water had somewhat subsided. The only information we have of the finding of the body of Mr. Hess is that in our Taneytown correspondence. The unfortunate young man was a son of the late Charles M. Hess, who was a prominent citizen of Taneytown district. He was between 25 and 28 years old, unmarried, and resided with his mother and two young sisters, near Harney. He leaves two other sisters, Mrs. Fair and Mrs. Null, and two brothers, one of whom is a member of the firm of Reindollar & Hess, of Taneytown, and the other Rev. Wm. Hess, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Brunswick, Frederick county. Funeral services will be held at the Lutheran Church, Taneytown, of the council of which Mr. Hess' father was for many years secretary, this morning at 10 o'clock.

Manchester Items.

Death in its doings desolated the home of Mr. Henry Mahalis, two miles south of town. In less than a week the mother and father yielded to death's demands from pneumonia, leaving an only son to mourn their loss. The beautiful death of Mrs. Mahalis, on Wednesday last, left lasting impressions on those present and no doubt when fully realized by the husband, who lay quite ill in an upper room, hastened the end, and on Sunday morning he too passed peacefully away, aged 66 years. His remains were laid away to rest in a family lot in the Lutheran cemetery, Rev. H. H. Flick officiating. He came to this country in 1855, from Germany, was twice married and leaves an only son, Mr. Charles Mahalis, two daughters and one son having preceded him to the spirit world.

The rain of Friday crystalized upon trees and shrubbery until they were loaded and bent to the earth. The snow on Saturday frosted these crystals to a beauty beyond description. Standing upon the summit of Main street and looking north and south was like a dream in fairyland. At many places branches about met; at other third and final account. places fallen limbs and trees lay in miscellaneous masses across the street. The entanglement was so great as to obstruct any view of the houses and when the sun burst forth on Sunday morning the scene in woods and field was sublime. This panorama of beauty was expensive. Fruit and forest trees had figured at places almost to ruin. Washington's 170th anniversary will be one of local history in the ice belt.

Although our streets were blockaded and walking bad, the ladies and gentlemen who played "The Wanderer's Return," from Tennyson's Enoch Arden, very generally, gave a full house and that they acted their parts well is putting it mildly. Many eyes were wet with tears as the play progressed. Although there were amusing parts, the realistic playiug in other parts was telling upon the feelings. By request by Rev. H. C. Febrey, the pastor. We hope our friends of the M. E. Church will not take offense because the quarterly meeting will be held on the above dates, as the members of New Oakland have no control over the appointment.

Grain, what little is visible above ground, has a much better color than before the cold wave.

Oakland Mills was not in operation on Wednesday on account of the high water. The mills have been running regularly since Mr. Glennan has been manager. We also notice improvements have been made, the greatest of which is a much needed dry house. A new drier also will be added, which is badly needed. Mr. Glennan is a wide-awake man and understands his business thoroughly.

The sleet of last Friday wrought much havoc in this vicinity to trees of every discription. In many places travel was suspended until the roads could be cleared of trees and brush. The older inhabitants say that they never saw a sleet as heavy and last as long as this was. After the sun had risen the same sight was witnessed here as the Westminster correspondent described in the Herald on Monday last. If sleet has anything to do with a good fruit year, surely we ought to have an abundance this season.

Mrs. Wm. Hush, Sr., who has been ill with pneumonia, has greatly improved.

Mr. Lyons, near North Branch, who has pneumonia, is much better at this writing.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. James Shipley, of Elmond, is greatly improving from an attack of typhoid fever.

Owing to the threatning weather on Saturday, the oyster supper at the Academy was to be continued on Tuesday evening. But as the "fates would have it, Tuesday night was just as disagreeable to be out of doors, consequently the crowd was rather small again.

Mr. William Cover, who is a conductor on the trolley in Baltimore city, was staying with his parents on Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Howard M. Zile returned from her visit in Baltimore, on Saturday, amidst rain and sleet. She is now nursing her sick son, Arthur.

Dr. E. D. Cronk and wife took a flying trip through the mud to Westminster on Wednesday.

Rev. Mr. Mettee, our junior pastor, is canvassing the circuit in behalf of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.
