AN AMERICAN BRADLAUGH.

HOW HE CREATED A SENSATION IN ATLANTA—KISSING THE BOOK.

"Horatio Bradlaugh!"

The words had scarcely ceased to echo through the court room when a tall, handsomely dressed, courtly mannered young man walked quietly to the front. Everything about the witness betoken the thorough gentleman. With folded arms he stood facing the desk.

"Kiss the Book."

"I respectfully decline, Judge."

His Honor looked aghast, the Chief's hair lifted his hat almost off his head, and the spectators, of all colors and sizes, were struck motionless with amazement. The witness stood with folded arms and erect figure, his fine head turned from the extended volume.

"Are you an infidel—or atheist?'

"Not at all."

"And you refuse to kiss that book?'

"I decline to kiss that book.'

"Are you mad, man?'

"My mind was never clearer.'

"Do you believe in the Bible?'

"I do; but I am not willing to kiss that one.'

"Within it is the moral law thundered from Sina'—and the words of prophets burning with celestial fire—and the sweetest story ever told the ages.'

"True, true—all true.'

"Better men than you ever dared to be have kissed this sacred volume.'

"And worse men also.'

"Women's thin red lips have kissed it.

"Women's thick blue lips have, also.'

"Merchant princes and statesmen have kissed it."

"Moon-eyed hackmen and humpbacked tramps have kissed it.'

"The rosy lips of health have been here.'

"The fevered lips of sickness, also.'

"Quivering lips of distress have pressed it—genius has imprinted upon it a kiss—chiselled lips of beauty have touched it.'

"Yes, and barbers have bussed it—and snuff-dipping spinsters—and onion-tainted lips of draymen have smacked it.'

"It breathes a beautiful spirit.'

"Yes, and smells of five-cent whiskey.'

"It is the good book.'

"Yes, but it's streaked with tobacco juice, and is greasy and dirty.'

"It's the best book in the world—'

"On the inside; but the worst book in the world on the outside.

"You have refused to do—'

"What thousands of all ages, sexes, races, colors, conditions have done. Yes, Judge, you'll have to bring a new book if I'm to do any kissing this morning.'

"Is your name Horace Bradlaugh?'

"No, sir, and I don't know anything about this case.'

"How dare you answer to that name?'

"Judge, I'm a book agent; can't I sell you a Bible?'—Atlanta Constitutional.

Suicide by Imagination.

One evening a short time ago a handsome and well-dressed young lady, living with her father well up toward the summit of Nob Hill, hastily entered Joy's drug store, on the corner of Mason and Post streets, and asked for some arsenic. She asked for two bits' worth, saying she wanted to kill some troublesome cats with it. Noticing her unusual agitation, Mr. Joy gave the young lady a tablespoonful of precipitated chalk—a harmless powder, resembling arsenic.

The young lady left the store, and carefully hiding her purchase, returned home. Going to her room, unobserved by any of the household, she prepared for death, for the arsenic was intended as a means of suicide. Certain letters were hastily looked over and arranged, a whispered prayer for forgivness followed, and with desperate determination the whole of the contents of the druggists' package was swallowed. The unhappy young lady lay down on her bed in a delirium of excitement. Her brain was in a whirl, and her blood rushed and throbbed through every vein.

She felt that death was approaching, and confident that the work of the deadly drug was too far advanced to be counteracted, she left her room and, gliding into the parlor, announced to her father and a young gentleman there what she had done. The gentlemen were wild with consternation. While the father supported the now sinking form of his daughter, the young gentleman raced in desperate haste to Joy's drug store. The druggist explained that no antidote was require; that the young lady had only taken a spoonful of chalk.

"But she is dying—unable to stand!" gasped the young man.

"That's the effect of imagination. Explain to her the true state of the case and she will recover."

The young man hastened back with the joyful intelligence. The would-be suicide, resting in the arms of her distracted father was sinking rapidly. Her recovery, which was amazingly rapid, was hastened by her rage at the druggist.

"It is not the first time I have saved a life in that way," Mr. Joy said to a reporter. "A woman came in here one day and asked for morphine, and I gave her some sulphate cinchona, which resembles it in appearance, but is a harmless stimulant.

"An hour afterwards the woman's sister rushed in here and accused me of aiding a suicide. 'My sister has gone away in a rage to take the poison you gave her.' It afterwards appeared that the would-be suicide went out on the hills took the dose and lay down to die. After waiting for some time, and recovering from the terrific excitement the act caused, she felt an unconquerable desire to return home and get a square meal, for the stuff I gave her is a famous appetizer.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A MAN of a mechanical turn took off his gasmeter to repair it himself, and put it on again upside down. At the end of the quarter it was proved that the company owned him $15.75.

NO KISS?" he said, pleadingly. "No kiss from my darling to-night?" "No," she said emphatically, "no kiss. I hear there's mumps in your family."

"REMEMBER," said the physician, "that when you take an egg you take a chicken." "Well," said the patient, "first, please hand me that rye bread in a bottle."

A MEDICAL student says he has never been able to discover the bone of contention, and desires to know if it is not the jaw-bone.

AN exchange says, "Streams all over the country are running dry." This is a canard. When a stream is dry it can't run.

MEN owe their resolution, and most of their success, to the opposition they meet with.

CHARITY is the first mortgage on every human being's possessions.

The man who gets bit twice by the same dog is better adapted for that kind of business than any other.

There is a great deal of religion in this world that is like a life-preserver, only put on at the moment of danger, and then half the time put on hind side before.

Experience is a school where a man learns what a big fool he has been.

The man who doesn't believe in any hereafter has a dreadfully mean opinion of himself and his chances.

There are two kinds of fools in the world—those who can't change their opinions and those who won't.

Recognizing the fact that the relationship existing between the counties of Maryland and the City of Baltimore is such that residents of the Counties have occasion to visit the city frequently during the year; in consideration of these facts and the liberal patronage extended the "Maltby" in the past, I deem it but a matter of justice that some discrimination should be made in their favor. I have therefore concluded to

THE IMPROVED WATER Elevator AND Purifier!

AS A WATER ELEVATOR it has these merits: 1st—It is the Simplest Structure for raising water, on the American market. 2, it is easily adjusted to any well or cistern. 3, it is very durable. 4, it works easily. 5. it will NEVER freeze. 6, it is always ready for use and always at its best. 7, it has none of the objections common to pumps. 8, it will make warm water cold.

All who examine this invention admit the above claims, but ask

How Does it Purify Water?

As the inverted cups pass around the Terra Cotta wheel suspended in the chain at the bottom of the Well or Cistern, they are constantly discharging air through the water from the bottom to the top.

This elevator will destroy Wiggles, Water Bugs and Water Lice, will make foul or stagnant water pure, and will remove all color, bad taste and smell. In short, it will make bad water good, and good water better.

The undersigned have secured the exclusive right to sell this really valuable Pump in Kent county and they earnestly ask for it a candid and fair examination, confident of its intrinsic merit. One can be seen on exhibition in Chestertown at any time. For circulars address
