The Southern Cotton Crop.

Mr. Bunch, the British Consul at Charleston, writes to the British Foreign Office that about 4,250,000 bales of upland cotton remain in the rebel States, which could be exported in case the ports were opened. His letter is dated the 24th of November last. Mr. Molyneux, the British Consul at Savannah, has also written to his Government on the same subject. His estimate, which seems to have been based on a more careful examination than that of Mr. Bunch, gives the total amount of cotton in the South at 3,500,000 bales. He adds:

"The urgent necessity for the cultivation of breadstuffs since the Federal occupation of Kentucky and the best grain-growing regions of Virginia, Tennessee, and North Carolina, and the consequent strong popular opposition to the planting of cotton, together with other causes of hardly less importance, such as the want of bagging and rope necessary to put the cotton into merchantable condition, will tend hereafter to prevent any increase in the stock, possibly to diminish it; while, should the Federals succeed in making further advances into the interior of the cotton-growing States, the cultivation of that plant will be entirely abandoned, and the negroes removed to the mountainous districts, where breadstuffs alone can be raised."

OHIO SOLDIERS.—The "Copperheads" get very little comfort from the Ohio soldiers in the field. A committee of officers drafted an address at Murfreesboro' on the 12th inst, showing the sentiment that exists in the army, which was enthusiastically received by the Ohio regiments. The address is an uncompromising Union document. It affirms that treason can only be suppressed by force of arms, and denounces the peace movement in unmeasured terms. It further says: "Spare your sympathies for miserable traitors, justly confined in prisons at home, and give them to your friends, relatives, your brothers, who are sacrificing their lives, their all for you on many a bloody battle field. If some miserable demagogues among you must vomit forth treason, let them keep it at home. We want none of their vile letters, speeches or papers here We have sunk all party consideration in devoted loyalty to our country, and whatever names unholy traitors may apply to us, we will by every means that Providence puts in our hands, sustain the Union, so help us God."

Cox, Vallandigham & Co., will do well to improve their opportunity now, for we doubt if their chances of election will be quite so flourishing after the Buckeye soldier boys get home.

FACTS AGAINST FANCY.—The Rebels have been boasting of the number of vessels which have run the blockade, and even Mr. Mason put the number as high as four hundred. The report of the Rebel Secretary of the Treasury shows the falsity of these boasts, for he puts the whole Custom House duties for ten months, ending in December last, at $666,556. The commerce that yields but a little more than half a million of dollars revenue for nearly a year cannot be extensive. This fact proves the blockade to be a little too strict for the Rebel comfort and necessities.

KING COTTON DETHRONED BY THE SOUTH.—The Southern papers are unanimous in pressing on the planters the vital necessity of raising "hog and hominy" instead of cotton and sugar. They even urge the planters to forget that such things as cotton and sugar were ever raised for any other purpose than that of domestic use. A war that exhibits no signs of a close, the ports of the Southern coast closed, intervention a myth, and the Western supplies cut off, are reasons why King Cotton should be forced to abdicate and vice regal cattle, hogs, sheep, corn, rice, and potatoes reign in his stead.

A NEW DISEASE.—A disease has shown itself in Vermont which is pronounced by physicians to be an epidemic diptheria, and which is unusually fatal. Its first symptom is a numbness in the lower extremities, and it makes rapid strides, proving fatal in two or three days, without any sign of sore throat being visible.
