SENATOR WILSON'S VIEWS.

He Speaks of His Candidacy for Re-election—What Congress Will Do.

Senator E. K. Wilson was in Baltimore a few days ago and acknowled to a representative of the Sun that he is a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, having already been indorsed by the democratic convention of his own county. He said that he himself would make no bitter and personal contest for re-election, that he would stand upon his record, and that he had been before the people long enough for them to know him. If they liked him well enough to re-elect him he should be much gratified. If he was defeated he would not be disappointed, and no less grateful for past honors. He added that he was neither sure of his defeat nor of his election, and that he did not know enough of the composition of the next Legislature to form an opinion.

Mr. Wilson regarded with some apprehension the character of the legislation which the republicans, who would be in the majority in both Senate and House, would attempt to enact at the coming session of Congress. He believed that the tariff and subsidy contests would be fought over again, and that he would, as in the past, oppose subsidies and favor a reduction in the tariff. But the national election bill was the one he most feared, and one that he is prepared to fight to a desperate finish. This bill was introduced during the closing hours of the last session by Senator Sherman, and was referred. Mr. Wilson anticipates its reintroduction at the beginning of the session, so that it cannot be smothered. The bill, he says, provides for State boards of election to be appointed by the President. Its ostensible object is to protect the colored voters at the South, but its real purpose is to entrench in power the wealthy class which owns the republican party. Its most baneful result would be to array the races of the South against each other. The colored people would be particularly aggressive, as they would believe that they were backed by the federal government. Its ultimate result would be that the election boards, in which no majority representative is mandatory, would control all doubtful States. A change of a small percentage of votes cast would effect this result. Maryland would thus be one of the States to be added to the republican column. This bill has already received the indorsement of the President, and Mr. Wilson believed that every subterfuge will be resorted to to push it through. He thought it a far worse measure than the Force bill, which the democrats succeeded in defeating fifteen years ago, when he was in Congress, but only by the greatest persistency.

Dr. Talmage's Church Burned.

The famous Brooklyn Tabernacle, of which Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage is pastor, was early on Sunday morning last, for the second time in its history, totally destroyed by fire.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The sexton of the church dénies the rumor that fires had been lighted on Saturday in the furnaces, and thus explodes the defective flue theory. Edison's men were in the building until 5.30 P. M. Saturday arranging a new electric plant, and it is thought that during the thunder shower which prevailed during the night lightning had been carried into the building by the wires they introduced, and which ran around the gallery about on a level with where the flames were first seen.

The loss on the church building, including the organ, which was one of the finest in the country, is $150,000. It is said to be covered by insurance in a number of companies. The building was of fourteenth century Gothic architecture, and was dedicated Februry 22, 1874. It was of brick, with stone trimmings, with a frontage of 150 feet and a deeph of 113 feet, to which had recently been added an extension sixty feet wide and twelve deep. The seating capacity was 2,800, and it was always fully taxed at the Sunday services. The previous structure, which was built of corrugated iron, was destroyed by fire on Sunday morning, December 22, 1872, which was also of unexplained origin.

The trustees give the total insurance at $129,450. The building originally cost $118,000, to which improvements costing $85,000 have been added. The organ cost $20,000; church furniture, $26,800, new carpets, &c., $5,800.

Dr. Talmage has issued an appeal to the public for help, saying that the church has never confined its work to its locality. The church, he says, has never been large enough for the people who came, and he wants $100,000 besides the insurance to build a large and more suitable structure.

The Right Sentiment.

Gov. Chauncey F. Black, of Pennsylvania, made a ringing speech the other day. We give a single paragraph:

"The democratic societies must, by the very law of their existence, by the principle implied in their name, by the inspiration of their historic faith, carry forward to the final and complete triumph of the people the struggle for tariff tax reform, to which they were summoned by Grover Cleveland—reform for the relief of the American taxpayer, for the emancipation of American labor, for unrestricted access to the materials of American industry. This is the American system; the true and only American system. It rests with us to restore and maintain it in its integrity; to save not the form only, but the substance of republican institutions; to make it as clear to this generation as it was to the generations of Jefferson and Jackson, that centralization is the cruel coil which crushes out alike the life of civil liberty and of private industry, and that it is not in a splendid government, supported by powerful monopolies and aristocratic establishments that the people will find happiness or their liberties protected, but in a plain system, void of pomp, protecting all and granting favors to none, dispensing its blessings like the dews of Heaven, unseen and unfelt, save in the freshness and beauty they contribute to produce. This is no fight for party; it is a holy crusade for humanity and for liberty, and we expect, as we have a right to expect, the help of every good man who has a heart to feel for his kind or an ambition to leave to his children the inheritance of free institutions, with equal opportunities to all, which he received from his fathers."

A VERY interesting number was a quartette by two mandolinos, a guitar and a mandola rendered by the Ricca Mandolin Players. The time was Spanish and the effet was quite charming. The mandolino is a kind of guitar, and the notes are struck in a peculiar continuous trembling way, which has a very novel and peculiar effect. Two encores of this selection were demanded by the audience.—Brooklyn Times.

Notes from Galena.

THERE was quite an exciting time in this place on the closing days of the registration last week. Two colored men came before the registration officer, accompanied by J.H. Deakyne, white, (who is under bail for aiding the negroes to register) and got registered. A short time afterwards it was found out that both the colored men had been in the penitentiary. One of them had sworn that he had never been in that institution, when it was proven by others that he had. The register had him taken before the magistrate and committed for the action of the grand jury for perjury. Constable Miller locked him up over night in the town lock-up, which, by the way, is a terror to some.

DURING the progress of the registration Mr. Jacobs thought a certain negro ought to be restored to the list of qualified voters, as he was back now; but our constable had been carrying a State writ for him for some time. When he found out from Mr. J. where he was, Bob put off, and in a little while had him locked up also. So in place of having him restored to the registry list he was a prisoner. He was shortly afterwards set at liberty by Mr. Jacobs bailing him out until court.

BISHOP CURTIS preached at the Roman Catholic Church here on Sunday last, morning and evening, to large audiences.

THE REV. MR. FOSNOCHT is holding a protracted meeting here with good attendance nightly.

THE FARMERS are busy finishing wheat, seeding the rain preventing them finishing up the first of the week.

POLITICS are still very quiet here. The Republicans are making a vigorous still hunt and hope to catch the Democrats napping. While the Republicans have their midnight meetings in colored churches under the guise of religion, the Democrats always know what transpires at these meetings. A young man of this place said in a crowd that he read Mr. Vickers' speech in the KENT NEWS, and that settled him then and there; that he would certainly vote the Democratic ticket always; that he would be one of not only 40,000, but of 140,000 or more, to put down Bill Perkins' 40,000 negroes, for they can't govern in Kent yet and never will.

WE HAVE had one of the Old Defenders here paying a visit to Mr. Wm. H. Pennington ever since the anniversary in September. His home is in Newark, N. J.—Mr. E. B. Glenn. He is 94 years old and hale and hearty, being, I believe, one of the only two left of the Old Defenders' Association. He returned home about a week ago. When he came on here in September the weather was very wet and disagreeable. His son, a man about 50 years old, came along to take care of the old gent, but the young man when he got here had to go to bed with a bad cold and used up generally. The old gentleman laughingly remarked that he had to care for his son in place of the son caring for him. The next time he intends to visit here he says he will have to look for an older man, as he cannot depend on younger ones, as they cannot stand the travel and rough weather.

THE accident to the steamer Tockwogh has deprived us of a daily boat to Baltimore, which we miss very much, though we have a boat every other day. P.

Dance at Millington.

A pleasant social dance was given by the young men of Millington in the town hall on Friday evening of last week. Among those present were, Miss Sparks, of Philadelphia; Miss Morris, of Burlington, New Jersey; Miss Bessie Boyer, H. Griffith, Fletcher and Ford Caulk, of Sassafras; William Cacy and sister, Miss Minney Massey, J. J. Spear and Miss Ophelia Hackett, of Massey's; Miss Alice Platt, of St. Augustine; Miss Blanche Hackett, Miss Rose Comegys, Carrie Sparks, Dr. Hackett, Will Neville, and Charles Comegys, of Sudlersville; Miss L. Ireland, of Chestertown; Mr. C. Green, Harry Beasten and F. Watkins, of Middletown; Mr. R. W. Comegys and wife, Miss Addie Thomas, J. H. Crane and sister, John Staats and sister, John Barnes and sister, Miss Marie and Lillie Cacy, Ethel and Emma McWhorter, Della Massey, Eben and Bruce Massey, R. E. Fedderman, Will E. Cacy, Wood Mallalieu, J. E. Spear, of Millington; Jack Comegys and W. Woodland Hurtt, of Locust Grave; Dennis McCauley and G. Woodall of Galena.

THE dredging season opened on the 15th instant and already a number of captains have been arrested and fined for taking oysters from forbidden waters. Among the vessels captured was the schooner J. C. Mahony, Capt. G. T. Rice, of Baltimore, which is one of the boats that were sunk in the battle with captain Howard in Chester river in December last. So far this season the dredgers have not resorted to armed resistance to arrest, their only tactics being a desperate effort to escape. Chester river thus far seems to have been exempt from their depredations this season; at least there has been no mention of any arrest in its waters. Prompt arrests and punishment to the full extent of the law in every case will do much to keep these pirates from depredating in forbidden waters. The police boats have started out with a determination to enforce the law to their utmost ability, and when the dredgers see this spirit manifested in all directions they will be more discreet in their operations and fear to violate the law with impunity.

A CONSPIRACY TO DEFEAT JUSTICE.—A conspiracy to prevent the conviction of the four men on trial in Chicago for the murder of Dr. Patrick H. Cronin, of the Clan-na-Gael, who was enticed from his office in that city last May, and whose dead body was subsequently found in a sewer in the suburbs, was uncovered on Saturday. A man who was summoned as a talesman, was approached before his examination and offered $1,000 to vote for acquittal, if accepted on the jury. If he would accept his wife was to wear a dress of a certain color. The man refused and informed his employers, who communicated the fact to the State's attorney. A special grand jury was summoned, and Alexander J. Hanks and Mark Solomon, bailiffs of the court in which the trial is going on and four others were indicted. Chicago justice must be badly demoralized, when officers of the court can be bought to screen the guilty from punishment.

STEAMBOATS ON THE TRAPPE RIVER.—The Maryland Steamboat Company, in conjunction with the Trappe Wharf Association of Trappe, Talbot county, Md., has completed the dredging and widening of Trappe river. The company's steamers made their first trip up the stream on Monday. The opening of the river is of great advantage to the thickly-populated district through which it flows. The landing is one mile from the town of Trappe. It is the first time that a side-wheel steamer has ever navigated the stream.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

Christ Church, Chestertown, Celebrates—Sermon, Addresses, Music and Flowers.

Last Sunday was the first anniversary of the dedication of the new Methodist Protestant Church in Chestertown, and the membership celebrated the occasion with special exercises. A neat printed program was distributed in the morning, which indicated the services for the day. The decorations consisted principally of pot flowers which filled the altar and pulpit spaces with beauty and fragrance and added to the general appearance of the rich furnishings of the auditorium. The morning service included an anniversary sermon by the pastor, Rev. Walter R. Graham, and some excellent music by the choir of the church. The sermon was able and eloquent and only a mere hint of its leading points can be given in the short space allotted for this article. Mr. Graham's text was Ephesians, ch. 4; vs. 11, 12. He said the church's ministry is a subject which should claim our special attention on this glad anniversary day. For this our beautiful building was erected and to this cause was it dedicated one year ago. The element of affection finds expression in this commemoration, for behind this work were your hearts which gave it worth. Privilege is connected with the responsibility of service. Our responsibility is to send the force of the heart into the church, for only in this way do we send the force of the church into the world. The inequalities in privilege and endowment with men individually and with associations lead to a proper development. A church of superior possession and privilege must diffuse blessings commensurate therewith. God first put into the hearts of a few the thought that this temple should be built. But the many said we will arise and build and the many helped in the execution of the purpose and it stands today in its beauty not for the few, yea, "Whosoever will may come," for "One is our Master and all we are brethren." It is well to rejoice today that we have these pleasant surroundings, it is better when the joy is transformed into service. Our culture and position are to form the leverage by which we are to lift this community. Life always seeks life. The law of sympathy intertwines with the law of life and leads to the well-spring of perfect church life. This is today leading the young in the line of succession, and already they feel responsibility in the work of this church. This anniversary is not for the inflation of church pride, but the strengthening of moral earnestness, the increasing of our sense of responsibility and our gratitude to God through whom this work was brought to a blessed consummation. The reverend gentleman closed with an earnest but loving appeal to his congregation for personal consecration to the service of the Master.

The afternoon was occupied by the Sunday school in its regular interesting exercises and a monthly missionary meeting.

The evening was set apart for the more elaborate and varied features. The weather was inclement but a large audience was present, and the following order of service observed: 1, organ voluntary; 2, doxology; 3, invocation; 4, hymn; 5, apostles' creed; 6, anthem; 7, responsive service; 8, prayer; 9, offertory; 10, address by Rev. D. W. Bates, D. D.; 11, responsive service; 12, solo; 13, address by Rev. B. F. Benson, A. M.; 14, anthem; 15, hymn; 16, benediction.

Dr. Bates said he did not think the great reformer, Wesley, had any thought of inaugurating a new denominational movement when he first awakened the Christian world with his new doctrine; he sought only enlarged opportunities for the people to worship. He bought land and built churches and organized societies to this end. The fact that the titles to these church properties rested in him, and the apprehension that his death might result in legal entanglements, led him to form the Wesleyan Society of one hundred; that organization exists today and is still a self-perpetuating body of one hundred. Dr. Bates briefly refered to the events leading to the organization of the Methodist Protestant Church; in the discussions of that day, he said, much was said that ought never to have been said; but, happily, all that is now in the past. A brotherly feeling exists between the denominations and each rejoices with the other in the blessings of peace and prosperity. The eloquent Stockton and the sainted Jacobs were the first appointments to this charge, and their field of labor extended from Talbot county to Rock Hall! Dr. Bates said he first visited Chestertown in 1842, and he thought the place then was about finished; all it needed was to be fenced in and whitewashed! The first M. P. Church here was a small brick building on one of the back streets where gnats and flies made music, but where God's people were owned and wonderfully blessed. Dr. B. said he was sent to this charge in 1858, and while here it was determined to build a new church to cost $3,000. This was considered a big undertaking, and indeed it was, for there remained a debt of nearly one-third the whole sum when the building was finished; but on dedication day Dr. John J. Murray preached the sermon and the whole amount was raised with something to spare, and a glorious revival of religion followed. The "fathers" of that day, the speaker included, would have been startled had any one then predicted that in thirty years a new edifice to cost $30,000 would be erected on the main street of the town to take the place of the one then finished. But this has come to pass. Those were noble souls—Christian men and women "in deed and in truth"—who stood by our beloved Zion in the days of weakness and trial. No good cause is dependent upon any one man or set of men. God will always have a people for every emergency. When Dodd and Vickers, Collins and Greenwood, Vannort and Russell, and others of the faithful heads of our church, were called to their reward, some thought the cause here had received a fatal blow. But not so; A and B and C and D and others of the children stepped into the vacant places and Zion's prosperity is more substantial and more glorious than ever before! The venerable and popular speaker was specially fitted for the task assigned him and he had the undivided attention of his large audience during the entire delivery of his half hour address.

Dr. Benson's address was shorter than Dr. Bates', and it was in every respect appropriate to the occasion. He opened by referring to the fact that it was his privilege to deliver the address at the laying of the corner-stone and also to take part in the dedication of this church. Then the new building was all in the perspective; now it has a retrospect, and though this be but one short year, it goes into the future freighted with precious results. One of the most cheering of these results was the gracious revival of last winter. Of all the memories of the past year that blessed season of grace will remain prominent. Dr. Benson said he congratulated the membership of this church—heartily congratulated them—but not so much for the outward adornings of their beautiful house of worship as for the inward grace of her people which had accomplished such results. The retrospect is pleasant and the prospect is encouraging. The foundations of the building are as solid as brick and stone and the architect's skill could make them, and from base to crown it is beautiful to behold; but all these things are secondary. The more delightful retrospect and the sublimer contemplation is in the sweet peace of her membership and their co-operation in the practical charities of the gospel of Christ. This is what has so blessed, honored and prospered the cause we love in the past; it is the solid foundation, the promise of future endurance and even more glorious achievements in the future.

The music was a special feature of the day. The choir was full and contained as fine voices as can be obtained anywhere outside the professional line. Prof. W. W. Chapman, the talented chorister, was never more efficient, and a young Baltimorean, Mr. J. Harry Deems, Jr., presided at the organ with excellent skill. The beautiful contralto solo, "Ashamed of Christ," rendered by Miss Alice Edmonds, of Baltimore, was highly appreciated. It was not the first time her sweet voice had been heard in the same place, and those who enjoyed the privilege hope it will not be the last.

From the opening service in the morning to the evening's closing benediction everything passed pleasantly and successfully.

A CAR'S AWFUL PLUNGE.

The Frightful Experience of Nine Passengers on a Cincinnati Inclined-Plane Railway Car.

The most appalling accident even known on the inclined plane railways of Cincinnati happened on Tuesday. It was on the Mount Auburn inclined plane, which lies at the head of Main street and reaches to a height of between 250 and 300 feet in a space of perhaps 2,000 feet or less. Two cars are employed, one on each track. They are drawn by two steel wire cables that are wound upon a drum at the top of the hill by an engine located there.

Nine passengers had entered the car at the foot of the plane and a number were on the other car at the top. The passage of the ascending car was all right until it had reached the top, when the engineer found that the machinery would not respond and that he could not stop the engine. The car was arrested by the strong bumper which stops its progress and as the engine continued all its force was expended on the two cables and they snapped like wrapping-thread under its enormous powers.

THE RUSH TO DEATH.

Then the car with its nine inmates locked within began the descent of that frightful slope. The crash at the foot of the plane was frightful. A cloud of dust arose that hid the wreck from view for a moment, but when it was dispelled the scene was horrible. The iron gate that formed the lower end of the truck on which the car rested was thrown sixty feet down the street. The top of the car was lying almost as far in the gutter. The truck itself and the floor and seats of the car formed a shapeless wreck, mingled with the bleeding and mangled bodies of the nine passengers, five of whom were killed outright and the others badly hurt, some of them perhaps fatally injured.

THE case of the State vs. Easton Social Club in the Court of Appeals has been postponed until the January term of the court. The postponement was on account of the failure of Attorney-General Whyte to attend and argue the case, he having been detained in Baltimore in prosecuting a murder case.—Star.

E. T. MACE, the present Sheriff, has been placed on the Democratic ticket for the House of Delegates in Dorchester county to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Daniel M. Henry, Jr. This is a good nomination.
