PLAIN TALKS WITH OUR FARMERS!

[Written expressly for the NEWS.]

Messrs. Bartus Trew and A. C. Loud predict a very small crop of peaches.

Mr. John G. Westcott is the first farmer in Kent to stick a plow in the ground this spring. He is plowing an old apple orchard which has not been broken for forty years and in which he will sow clover.

Mr. Jno. F. Dodson, one of Kent's oldest farmers, says he don't see any use buying clover seed as his experience proves that it will not live. Mr. A. S. Crawford thinks to the contrary and says he always has good clover but he does not sow until April.

Mr. Wilbur Eliason says his experience proves that it is of no benefit to lime farm land.

Prefers the Files of the "NEWS."

MESSRS. EDITORS KENT NEWS

In as much as "Plain Talks to Farmers" refers me to the bureau of statistics of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., I will say that it is often misleading. I am sure it is in this case. I would much prefer the files of the "NEWS" the accounts I gather from my fellow farmers of this my native county and my own observations. I believe the farmers will agree with me that our crops of wheat and corn are not deteriorating.

I will say again that we are not growing clover as formerly, and that the productiveness of our farms is kept up by the judicious use of fertilizer and manure. I do not keep many cattle and yet manage to consume all of my straw and stalks into manure. I will also call "Plain Talks" attention to the fact that the part of our roughage that passes through our cattle is an infinitesmal part of our manure. I have been farming all my life and am egotist enough to believe that I have learned some things by following the plow and the hoe that all the theories cannot knock-out. I would not exchange one hour of practical farming for that of a year's theory.

I will be glad to hear what "Plain Talks" has to say about peaches, I expect he lives in a peach growing section and it will be interesting to hear from him.

COLORED CHILD BURNED!

A colored woman named Biscoe living at lower branch, near Galena, left her two small children at home one day this week while she went out to work. During the mother's absence the smaller one took fire from sitting too close to the stove and the older one dashed off for her mother. When she returned she found the child frightfully burned. Dr. E. A. Scott was summoned but the child only survived a few hours.

It authorizes the Burnt District Commission to acquire the property and appropriates $750,000 for the purpose, the money to be taken from the Western Maryland Railroad surplus. The commission proposes to give those now engaged in business along Light street ample time in which to secure new locations. Light street is to be widened on the west side to Calhoun alley, or to a width of about 123 feet. The width of the street, from Baltimore to Pratt street, will be about 108 feet. Let it be soon.
