PLAIN TALKS WITH OUR FARMERS!

[Written expressly for the NEWS.]

In our talks of decrease in soil fertility we have not dealt in exceptions to the rule, but with the rule itself, and while "Over Forty" can afford to farm on the lines he mentions in his letters he is one of the few that can do so.

We would suggest that he add enough cattle on his farm to consume all of his roughage, then he would never be tempted to use the word infinitesmal in an argument on manure and would be taking one step on the road of profitable farming.

As we understand the word theory it means a scheme of the relations subsisting between the parts of a systematic whole and is with us in all our work. But perhaps we have not taken it in the spirit that "Over Forty" intended we should.

Arguments in a paper to be interesting must be progressive and deal with seasonable topics. And as the time has arrived for peach orchard work we will tell what we are doing, making our complaints as we go along.

First, we have one orchard, coming three years old, of 4,000 trees we are worming them now and it is a back breaking job. We prefer to do it at this time because we find the borers come out with the wax. This avoids a good deal of cutting and punching that injures the trees. We do not believe in ploughing the orchards before the last of March as we want the soil to warm up to a depth of at least six inches, the top soil being exposed to the sun's rays is naturally the warmest and by turning it down at that time we have a hotbed that grows hotter as the season advances. After ploughing we will fertilize with 400 pounds per acre, using 10 per cent. of phosphoric acid and 6 per cent. of potash. Abut the middle of June the eggs for the next crop of borers are laid on the neck of the trees and we will try to stop them by using 40 bushels of lime per acre, using it liberally on and around the trees themselves.

Is our scheme of fertilization, ploughing and limeing right? If not, why not? We will prize highly any suggestions that will help lighten the labour, the expense, and increase the profits. We have another orchard that was dehorned two years ago and while we think it pays on cattle it does not seem to agree with our peach trees.

The season for corn planting is rapidly approaching. The farmers about Masseys have the reputation of raising the biggest corn in Maryland and of course we are all interested in their methods. A farmer who raised 100 bushels of corn to the acre last year says he only plants white corn and that he believes he can raise at least ten bushels per acre more than of yellow. He plants 3 foot 2 inches each way, two stalks in the hill, and drills fertilizer as if for wheat, but close to the surface. He says he uses about four hundred pounds of fertilizer to the acre and would not think of raising a crop without phosphate.

Judge F. H. Harper says some years ago he tested the merits of corn and raised four bushels more per acre of white than of yellow.

Alsyke is meeting with favor among Kent farmers. One gentleman remarked in the NEWS office that if the seed cost $25 he would not fail to get it. He advises the mixing of seed as the alsyke is not strong enough to stand of itself.

CAPT R. S. EMORY and son, Mr. Edw. W. Emory, have made a thorough examination of their peach trees and state that four fifths of the buds on yellow varieties are dead!

Reed Case Decided.—The Court of Appeals yesterday sustained the lower court in its decision in the Amos Reed case. The lower court decided that the home farm should go to Amos Reed.

M. E. CONFERENCE ADJOURNS

Drs. Baker and Corkran Convicted of Gambling—Changes at Pomona, Still Pond, Betterton and Union.

A profound sensation was caused at the session of the Wilmington Methodist Episcopal Conference Monday afternoon, when Rev. Chas S. Baker, a doctor of divinity, former presiding elder and delegate to the General Conference of the church, was summarilly deposed from the ministry.

The expulsion was a great shock to Dr. Baker, who trembled like an aspen leaf when the full force of the verdict was realized by him. The vast throng in the church was greatly surprised that the sentence imposed on Dr. Baker is greater than that inflicted upon Dr Wilbur F. Corkran, who was merely suspended from the ministry for one year. The severity of the penalty also astonished the counsel for the church, as, it is said there was an understanding among counsel that the sentence should be the same as that imposed upon Dr. Corkran, but the committee did not see it evidently in that light.

Rev. J. A. B. Wilson, senior counsel for the ministers, gave notice of an appeal to the general conference.

No Oral Testimony.

The charges against Dr. Baker were various alleged improper business deals and transactions, buying stocks on margins, selling stocks in various goldmining and alleged wildcat companies to his church members and in engaging in secular affairs outside the ministry. It was said that Dr. Baker had practically pleaded guilty.

Hearing reports of minor committees and considering statistics occupied the final day's business session. The probationers of conference number 4,153, an increase of 204; full members, 37,746, a decrease of 81; baptisms, 2,345, a decrease of 47; adult baptisms, 311, a decrease of 93; value of churches, $1,723,650, an increase of $44,694; parsonages, $290,910, an increase of $8,531.
