Corn is quoted at 58½ cents in Baltimore.

Don't forget to register next Tuesday. If you have moved from one district to another you will need a transfer.

THE suffrage Amendment deserves the vote of every white man in Kent County be he Republican or Democrat. Its passage means an elevated condition of affairs socially and an improved condition in labor on the farm. It is hard to comprehend how honest and conscientious voters who favor an intelligent electorate can find objection to a proposition to do away with ignorance and diseonesty in the franchise. Do not let partisanship blind you to your duty.

An Honest Confession.

The republicans have been offering all sorts of objections to the adoption of the franchise amendment, none of which bear the analysis of reason and fact. The reason for Republican opposition has been concealed by press, writers, Bonaparte and all the lesser lights until stated by the Examiner, a Republican paper of Annapolis, in a recent issue. It said—

"The amendment can only be defeated by recording against it every negro vote in Southern Maryland and upon this recording of every negro vote in Southern Maryland depends the very existance of the republican party in the State. Its life comes to a sudden end otherwise."

That is just it. Without the negro vote the Republican party would come to an end in Maryland, as a formidable factor. In half a dozen counties, in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore, the Repuplican party would not number 500 in any, with the negroes eliminated. In every county, except two, the Republican party would be far in the minority.—Democratic Avocate, of Westminster.

The Labor Situation.

For the past ten days or two weeks the Eastern Shore farmers have been making a strong demand for city laborers to assist them in cutting off one of the heaviest corn crops in recent years and in preparing to plant their fall wheat crops. Scores of farmers from Queen Anne's, Kent, Caroline, Cecil and Talbot counties have been compelled to secure their labor through city agencies, which charge $1 for each man furnished. The men are paid $1 a day and boarded as compensation for their work, and even then they will not work. Mr. T. A. Hudson engaged some help in Baltimore last week. Several came and ate a meal and then left, whil others hired to different farmers at better pay after they reached Kent! We have an abundance of labor on the Eastern Shore, but it is virtually worthless. Some of the negro labor from the city is fairly good, but much of it is worse than the home supply, if that be possible. They not only won't work, but don't know how, even if they would. The labor situation is driving scores of farmers from the country to the small villages. Indeed, many of the country towns are largely made up of men who, as soon as they manage to get a few hundred dollars ahead, retire from the farm to escape the harassment of the labor question. The situation in the matter of domestic labor is even worse than with farm labor.

RACE ISSUE AT PITTSBURG.

The city of Pittsburg is about as unanimously a Republican community as there is in the land, and it is one of the numerous birthplaces of the Republican party. Was it not in Pittsburg that Owen Lovejoy opened a Republican convention with what they called "prayer," in which he besought the Almighty to change Franklin Pierce's politics or "remove" him from among the haunts of men?

Pittsburg is having some race troubles, and they are wondrously like race troubles in Kansas. Pittsburg has numerous "African-American" citizens, and these African-American citizens have children. These children entered schools with white children at the September opening the other day, and there was a riot, a moo, a fight, and many cruelly assaulted and sorely wounded negro children as a result. All this in the loyal and Republican city of Pittsburg.

Suppose negro children had been assaulted, beaten and bruised in a Southern community—Norfolk, Va., or Columbia, S. C., or Mobile, Ala.—for no other crime than that they were negroes. What would Pittsburg have thought of it? We know what Pittsburg would have said about it. She would have called it infamous, met in indignation conclave and passed resolutions denunciatory of the "barbarism." She did that a hundred times in the days when "the Southern outrage mill" ground out grist for the G. O. P.

But when the South fights a negro it is a negro man. There is not a case on record where a Southern community mobbed negro children. There is not a Southern State that has not taxed its property owners to establish schools for negro children, and there is not a community in the South where negro children do not attend school in perfect security.

The anti-slavery party dissolved too soon. It should have waited until the negro had secured some rights in Pittsburg that the whites were under obligation to respect.—Washington Post.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has reiterated his determination not to be a candidate for President again. He considers that he has served two terms.

KIND words never cost anything. Speak all the kind words you can. Tell people the good things you hear about them, but for mercy's sake refrain from telling them the evil or unkind things.

THE anti-negro suffragists are stretching things a little too far when they publish a list of Democratic lawyers who are opposed to the amendment, in which list are some of the best known and ablest Republican lawyers of Baltimore. Campaign material is scarce with Bonaparte and company.

The Great Issue.

The resolution adopted by the Democratic Convention on the subject of the proposed negro franchise amendment to be submitted to the voters of the State in November is straighforward and emphatic, placing the issue fairly before the people. Similar amendments have been adopted in the States to the south of us, and the result has been most salutary; that it's adoption here would have a simliar effect no man who studies the conditions can have the least doubt.

We believe in the supremacy of the white race, and just as firmly do we believe that if something is not done to prevent it Maryland will be overrun with lawless and vicious negroes from the more southern States. To give the negro the right of franchise in the first place was an egregious blunder, both as to its effects upon the negro and its indirect harm to the white man. This fact is now admitted by many of the brainiest and most influential Republicans of the country. Instead of depending upon his own industry he has in too many instances learned to prey upon the resources of the political party with which he has affiliated.

Those who wish to make a study of the truth of this assertion need go no further than the neighboring State of Delaware. There they can observe fully the damaging effects of politics upon the negro, and the damaging effects of the negro upon politics—for the rule invariably works both ways. Delaware has become notorious throughout the world for corrupt politics since the negroes were colonized there by the vast corruption fund employed to carry the State for a Republican Legislature; the Delaware negroes have since that time become more lawless and criminal than ever, and scarcely a week passes that the papers do not record some new infamy committed by one of their number, and in some sections of the State it is no longer safe for women to remain alone in their homes or travel the public highways unprotected. Prior to the granting of the right of franchise the planters and farmers of the South could safely leave their families in the care of negroes employed about the places; twenty years after "political equality" had been granted they dared not dream of such a thing.

The effort of politicians to force an inferior race to a plane of equality with the white man will be resisted to the uttermost; the white laboring man will never submit to their purpose of putting him on a level with a negro. How can a political equality be sustained unless supported by a social equality? Is that what we are expected to bow our necks to? The yoke would be too grievous to be borne.

The amendment will permit every white man who could vote in 1869, or whose father or grandfather, whether native born or naturalized, was entitled to vote at that time in this State or any other, to enjoy the privilege of registration and the right to vote, whether he is able to read and write or not. And following the adoption of the amendment, there can be no doubt that a return would be made to a simplified ballot, so that all could vote easily yet be safe-guarded by secrecy.

The present form of ballot, as all know, was adopted to restrict the negro vote, the necessity for which was apparent to everybody. In one county of the State the negro vote exceeds that of the white people—Democrats and Republicans combined—and in several other counties the negro vote is so large that it can dictate all elections. Many Republicans realize the effect this is having on their party, driving into seclusion men of ability and bringing into prominence others whose chief claim to leadership is their power to corral and control the negro vote, and for their own protection will vote for the amendment; for they realize that good government is only to be secured for the people by the restricting influence of an intelligent and virtuous constituency, and can never be maintained by a lot of ignorant negroes who know nothing and care less about the character or fitness of the candidates for whom they cast their ballots.
