PROUD OF HER.

"Before we were married," a lady complained, "you always engaged a cab when you took me anywhere. Now you lhink the 'bus or the train is good enough for me."

"No, my darling, I don't think the 'bus is good enough for you. In a cab you would be seen by nobody; while I can show you off to so many people by taking you in the bigger conveyance."

ORATORY'S FINISH.

"Your son won a prize for oratory while he was in college, I believe. What is he doing now?"

"He's got a job in the union depot, announcing the departure of trains."

A SLICK swindler is said to be operating on the lower Peninsula. His method is by going from house to house selling dress goods, making sales on the promise to make the dresses free. He informs the people that there will be an expert tailor around later to take the proper measure. After waiting several weeks the purchasers find to their sorrow that they have been swindled. It pays to deal with home merchants whose honesty is not questioned.

Gov. Warfield's Address.

Governor Warfield in his address at Washington College said: "The State of Maryland has always manifested a deep interest in the welfare of this institution, and has cheerfully aided it. The last legislature appropriated to the visitors and governors of Washington College the sum of $30,000, one-half to be, available during the fiscal year 1907 and the other half in 1908. It was a free gift, and its application and expenditure were left entirely to the business integrity and public spirit of the board of governors and visitors. I congratulate the Board upon their wisdom and good judgment in the erection of this splendid structure. You have proven faithful stewards of the State's interests.

"I cannot, however, let this occasion pass without asking your attention for a few moments to the part that Maryland has played in the establishment of free schools and the promotion of higher education. In 1692 an act was passed by the General Assembly, in session at St. Marys, for its encouragement, and in 1696 King William School was founded at Annapolis—the first free public school established on the continent of America. In 1723 free schools were authorized in each of the 12 counties of the state, and funds provided by previous acts for the support of such schools were distributed equitably among the counties. This movement for free schools was not successful, because it was impossible to secure good teachers. There was no lack of funds for the support of the schools, but there was a decided lack of teaching talent.

"The teachers were, most of them, men who had very little learning or knowledge of teaching, and many were indentured servants or persons without moral standing. This made it necessary for the state to establish institutions in which teachers themselves might be faithfully taught everything that they were afterward required to teach. So, in 1782, the legislature of Maryland, gave serious consideration to the question of founding colleges which would furnish the source of higher education and provide teachers for her free schools.

Founding of Washington College.

"In pursuance of the policy then inaugurated an act was passed founding a college at Chestertown, to be called Washington College, in honorable and perpetual memory of His Excellency General Washington, of the armies of the United States.

"Governor Paca, who was earnest in his advocacy of the cause of public education, exerted himself during his entire administration, both officially and personally, to advance the interests of this institution and for the establishment of a similar college on the Western Shore.

"In his message in 1784 he said: "The act for founding a college at Chester, which passed the session preceeding the last, will reflect forever a lustre upon its proceedings. It is with the greatest pleasure we observe that such has been the zeal of the Eastern Shore for the advancement of learning that the sum of £5,000, which was required and allowed to be raised in five years, has been nearly doubled in less than one year. Nothing can be stronger proof of the happy influence of public encouragement, and we trust that the General Assembly will think this college deserving of their further attention and favors, and will extend their views to the establishment and encouragement of other seminaries of learning in this state.

"Following this recommendation of Governor Paca, who can be truly styled the first educational governor of Maryland, the legislature of 1784 granted a charter to St. John's College, in Annapolis.

Civic Virtue.

"The necessity of having able and upright men to do the work of the various public offices and to perform the duties of life, both civil and religious, is just as pressing and important to-day as it was when this preamble was passed 123 years ago. The State of Maryland believes now, as it did then, that the cornerstone of her present and future welfare is the intelligence, honesty and patriotism of her people. We need men of virtue and knowledge and courage more to-day than we have ever needed them in the history of our state. We need men to meet the grave problems in public affairs and to stand against immorality in politics, in business and in private life—men who will direct the people along lines of public rectitude.

"We need in public service men of ability and independence, who will think for themselves and do that which is best for the whole people, men who will denounce openly the use of money in politics, and who will exert themselves to bring to punishment the perpetrators of such wrongs against the electorate, men who will not countenance the buying and selling of votes and the venal methods in politics that have so long been in vogue in this and other states.

"We need men who will point the finger of scorn at the man who buys his election to high office, and who has attained to places of honor and distinction by purchase and not by the free choice of the voters. This college was established for these patriotic purposes and you, gentlemen, who have the direction of its affairs, should read anew its charter, so that you may be impressed again with high purposes and the serious duties devolving upon you.

The University of Maryland.

"The founders of Washington and St. John's Colleges had in mind the establishment of a University of Maryland for the teaching, not only of the learned languages, but philosophy, divinity, law, physic and other useful and ornamental arts and sciences. The dream of the pro-

NATURE PROVIDES FOR SICK WOMEN

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value.

During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person and every thinking woman.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful functions, weakness, displacements, ulceration or inflammation, backache, flatulency, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No other remedy in the country has such a record of cures of female ills and thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound and what it has done for them.

Mrs Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. For twenty-five years she has been advising sick women free of charge She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and as her assistant for years before her decease advised under her immediate direction. Address, Lynn, Mass.

BULLETIN

PHILADELPHIA'S GREAT WEEK.

July 15 to 20, when the Elks hold their Annual Reunion in Philadelphia, will be a glorious week in the Quaker City. Not for years have such elaborate preparations been made to honor the City's guests as those which are now being made to welcome members of the Order, and to entertain the thousands who are expected to visit the city during the week.

A grand Court of Honor in Broad Street, the most magnificent structure of the kind ever erected in America, and costing $50,000, will be a great feature of the occasion. Every night during the week this Court of Honor, together with the City Hall, will be illuminated by myriads of electric lighs of various colors.

On Wednesday, July 17, a massed band parade of over 2000 musicians will take place.

On Thursday, July 19, the Grand Parade of all visiting Elks will occur. Over 15,000 men from all sections of the country will participate. Each Lodge will have its own band and will wear a distinct uniform. Each uniform will typify the state or city represented by the lodge. Many of the uniforms will be historical and picturesque.

On Saturday, July 20, there will be a grand excursion to the seashore. Atlantic City, Cape May, Wildwood, Ocean City, Asbury Park, and other popular resorts are within easy reach of Philadelphia by the fast express trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Excursion tickets to Philadelphia will be sold July 13 to 17, inclusive, at reduced rates from stations over 100 miles from Philadelphia.

For exact fares and conditions of tickets, consult nearest Pennsylvania Railroad Ticket Agent.
