LINEN THE FINEST FABRIC.

Always Considered the "Purest Covering"—Why It Is Cooler Than Cotton.

Why is linen cooler than cotton? Why is linen, aside from its cost, always preferred to cotton? Ancient writers tell us that the people of their time shared the present day preference for linen. The wise Apuleius says:

"Can any one impressed with a sense of religion wonder that a man who has been made acquainted with so many mysteries of the gods should keep at home certain emblems and wrap them in a linen cloth, the purest covering for divine objects, for wool, the excretion of the sluggish body, taken from a sheep, was deemed a profane attire even according to the early tenets of Orpheus and Pythagoras? But flax, that cleanest and best production of the field, is used not only for the inner and outer clothing of the most holy priests of the Egyptians, but also for covering sacred objects."

Herodotus makes statements that show that linen was as highly regarded in his day as it is now. A man wounded in an engagement, he says, has his torn limbs bound up. "Now, supposing that the persons concerned had their choice between linen and cotton, there can be no doubt that they would choose linen as most suitable for such a purpose. Cotton when applied to wounds irritates them."

Good Conductor of Heat.

The cooling quality of linen as compared to cotton is due to the fact that the structure of the flax fiber makes linen a good conductor of heat and one that freely condenses the vapor of perspiration. Notwithstanding the fact that the cooling quality of linen when applied to wounds has been well known it is only lately that an absorbent linen surgical dressing has been produced under the name of "oxolint." This is one of the byproducts of the first American linen mills established at North Brookfield, Mass., and operating under a method of manufacture that accomplishes in a few hours the work that requires from eight to ten weeks by European methods of linen making. The World Today in an article on this innovation says:

"The one reason why linen fiber has never been made in this country is that the European process would be impossibly expensive unless carried out by labor of the very lowest cost. There is no labor in the United States cheap enough for this purpose, and for this reason Americans have been sending over $20,000,000 a year to Europe for linen. Now mills have been built in Massachusetts to operate the Mudge process, and there is an assured market for the millions of dollars' worth of flax straw that we have been burning up for years and a chance to get linens for little if any more than the present cost of fine cotton fabrics."

HONOR FOR INVENTOR DELANY

Receives Gold Medal For System of Automatic Telegraphy.

Formal notice has been given by the secretary of the Franklin institute that its committee on science and the arts has recommended the award of the Elliott Cresson gold medal to Patrick B. Delany of South Orange, N. J., for his system of automatic telegraphy. The Delany system is controlled by the Telepost company, which is now building up a national telegraph system to compete with the Western Union and the Postal. The Delany automatic apparatus sends and receives at the rate of a thousand words a minute. The economies it makes possible in operation and construction are so great that the new company has already announced that it will charge only a cent a word for telegrams between any two points on its lines.

Among inventors the Elliott Cresson medal is one of the most highly valued honors. It is bestowed under a deed of trust dating from 1848 which restricts awards to "some discovery in the arts and sciences or for the invention or improvement of some useful machine." This latest honor earned by Mr. Delany follows the highest awards for his telegraphic inventions from the Pan-American exhibition and the St. Louis world's fair.

GERMS IN PLAYING CARDS.

London Medical Authority Points Out New Danger of Bridge With Oft Used Packs.

"Dangers hitherto unsuspected lurk, it appears, in the innocent playing cards," says a special cable to the Pittsburg Times, "and packs that have been used more than once are hotbeds of deadly microbes which deal forth colds and influenza to the luckless bridge player.

"This is the latest discovery of the Lancet, the current number of which contains an article discussing cards from the hygienic point of view. Packs of cards which have been circulating for weeks at bridge parties sooner or later get soiled by constant contact with the human hand, and an examination would doubtless show an appalling selection of micro-organisms."

From this article it would appear that the American hostess is a little more careful than her English cousin, for no American woman would think of putting before her guests cards which have been "circulating for weeks." It would be well for the English matron to adopt the American rule to have fresh, clean cards on her tables for each entertainment.

PLAGUE IN CASTROLAND

Defying Edicts, Black Death Has Spread Until the Whole Country Is Now Under the Ban of the Outside World.

Once more public interest is centered upon Venezuela, this time by the outbreak of the bubonic plague in President Castro's realm. For his temerity in reporting that it was the "black death" that made its appearance at La Guayra the medical man who first investigated the disease was promptly clapped into jail. Castro did not want the commercial world to shun his ports. But soon it was impossible to conceal the real state of affairs. The "sickness," as it is still officially called, spread to Caracas and other cities. Castro spurned the efforts of the United States to induce him to make the necessary sanitary precautions, and by June the whole country was under the ban of the outside world.

From the trade viewpoint conditions in Venezuela could hardly have been worse even before the plague made its appearance. The American Exporter has this to say on the subject:

Venezuela's Mainspring.

"Castro is more than dictator. He is Venezuela's mainspring today. He is sometimes suspected of having stolen a leaf out of the diplomatic books of the sublime porte, but one leaf only. Secure in his littleness and hedged round with problems that make foreign interference extremely difficult, he confidently plays his game of 'bluff,' but in abject, crass ignorance of the elementary principles of courtesy and good breeding as they prevail in the family of nations. It is not to be wondered at. Even the sultan of Turkey may be called a 'gentleman.' The president of Venezuela never was and never can be.

"President Castro is only about forty-five years old. In 1906 he retired from office and was said to be fatally ill. In a month he was back in power again. For a year he has been gradually recovering from that illness, and it was as late as April that he returned to his capital from a two months' sojourn at a health resort called Los Teques. According to the cable reports, he has 'evidently been very much benefited' and is able to mount on horseback for the first time in two years. Coincident with his return came the violent and virulent outbreaks in the Venezuelan press upon the attitude of the United States and our officials.

Honest Government Needed.

"In seventy-eight years Venezuela has placed fifty-one revolutions to her credit or discredit. Five days distant from New York, the country is wonderfully rich in natural resources. It cannot be developed until an honest and stable government is established that will confirm the security of foreign investments which are vitally essential.

"Castro has undeniably robbed and plundered every foreign capitalist who has attempted to exploit the country's riches, but Venezuela must see the error of her ways and tempt foreign capital, guaranteeing peace and security, before her commerce and industry can be reclaimed from their present condition of chaos."

MODERN FANS ARE BEST PROTECTION FOR MINERS.

No Reason Now For Failure to Provide Proper Ventilation Under Ground.

"Build for us two fans not over thirteen feet in diameter capable of exhausting 500,000 cubic feet of air per minute." This is the substance of an actual order lately sent to the manufacturers of the "Sirocco" turbine fans.

It means that the day of the huge but inefficient and costly paddle wheel fan has gone by and that the turbine type of blower has come. It means also that the problem of how to safeguard the underground worker has been solved. This is what a writer in the Engineering and Mining Journal has to say on the subject:

"The best care a mine owner can give his miners is good ventilation. With horsepower at $50 per year as a basis of calculation, I will consider the cost of ventilation with efficient and inefficient apparatus.

"Most of the old style paddle wheel and screw propeller fans are working with less than 20 per cent mechanical efficiency, while the latest high speed fans are working at about 60 per cent mechanical efficiency. Assuming that 100,000 cubic feet of air per minute is required, 157.55 horsepower will be needed to drive the old style fan to produce the required ventilation, while only 52.51 horsepower will be required to drive the new high speed fan. Thus the new high speed fan will save 105.04 horsepower.

Good Ventilation Cheapest.

"It follows that the saving effected with the new high speed fan is $5.252 per year. This amount of money will install a fan and produce the required 100,000 cubic feet of air per minute under the worst conditions likely to be found and would therefore return to the owner the entire value of the fan each year."

Noninflammable Roofing.

A new material for use as roofing, siding, interior sheathing, etc., in buildings of various classes is composed of a core of annealed sheet steel which is heavily coated with a special compound of an asphaltic nature rendered virtually noninflammable. Firmly imbedded in this compound on both sides of the sheet is a layer of asbestus felt.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 304 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervousness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and since taking it I feel so much better, and I can again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.
