WIN AND WEAR.

There's no royal road to greatness;
Men must ever climb to fame;
All the wealth in miser's coffers
Wouldn't buy a deathless name.
Is a noble goal before you?
Would you great achievements bear?
Brothers, then be up and doing!
Brothers, you must "Win and Wear."

Toil and labor—never stopping
Till you make the prize your own:
For you know 'tis constant dropping
Wears away the hardest stone.
Never slack sublime endeavor;
Nor 'mid cheerless toil despair;
If you'd rise above your fellows,
Brother, you must "Win and Wear."

'Tis the lesson nature teaches
All throughout her wide domain;
And the text from which she preaches
Is "That labor leads to gain."
Moral Worth and honest merit—
Better crowns than monarchs bear—
These you never can inherit—
Brothers, you must "Win and Wear."

New Catechism.

Q. What is the chief end of woman?

A. Woman's chief end is to be like man, only smaller.

Q. How can woman be like man?

A. By wearing pants, joining clubs, and quarrelling with newspapers.

Q. What is the natural disposition of woman?

A. Woman's natural disposition is to progress.

Q. Why don't she do it?

A. The inhumanity of man in all ages obliged woman to consent to a most enslaving devotion.

Q. What doth this doctrine teach?

A. This doctrine principally teaches, first, that the man is to be the head of the woman, and the woman the glory of the man; secondly, that it doth become her to attend the baby; thirdly, that the value of the human race doth require that for the preservation of order, comfort and peace, mankind be divided into families, and that the husband make the laws, the wife execute them, and the children keep them.

Q. Whom that history doth record have suffered the evils?

A. Eve, an Asiatic lady of rank; Sarah wife of one Abraham; Ruth, the grandmother of David; Esther, Queen of Persia; Mary and Martha, sisters of Lazarus; the mother of Washington, the Empress of France, and others.

Q. Wherein consisteth the misery of woman's condition?

A. The misery of woman's condition consisteth in having to stay at home and read novels.

Q. Are all women equally miserable?

A. No. Most women are contented with their wretchedness, and rear sons to greatness and daughters to loveliness without a murmur.

Q. Is any occupation more noble than bringing great men into the world?

A. Yes. To run for chief scavenger is more commendable.

Q. Where will those noble women go after this life, who seek to revolutionize their sex?

A. [Torn out.]—Savannah News.

WHERE TO WEAR GARTERS.—A handsome leg is a rarity—we had almost said an impossibility—among the American woman. The reason of this is the place where they wear garters. No French woman, no English woman of cultivation, now a days wears her garter below the knee. It is ruinous to the shape of the calf. More than this, it has serious consequences of another kind. The principal vein of the leg (vena saphena pres is) runs just beneath the skin until it nearly reaches the knee, when it sinks beneath the muscles. Now if this is constricted at its largest part by a garter, the blood is checked in its return to the heart, the feet are easily chilled and more liable to disease, the other veins of the leg are swollen into hard, blue knots become varicose, as it is called, and often break, forming obstinate ulcers. This is a picture which a physician sees nearly every day. With a garter fastened above the knee all that pain and deformity is avoided, but it is still better to wear no garter at all.

ADVANTAGES OF BEING A WOMAN.—A woman says what she chooses without being abused for it. She can take a snooze after dinner while her husband goes to work. She can go out in the street without being asked to stand treat at every saloon. She can stay at home in time of war, and get married again if her husband gets killed. She can wear corsets if too thick, and other fixings if too thin. She can get her divorce from her husband, if she sees one she likes better. She can get her husband in debt, all over, until he warns the public not to trust her on his account. But all these advantages are balanced by the great facts that she cannot sing bass, wear a beard, go sparking, or climb a tree, with any propriety.

A SAN FRANCISCO school teacher received the following note from the "ostensible" parent of one of his pupils: "I hope as to my John you will flog him just as offin as you kin. Heas a bad boy—is John. Altho I've bin in habit of teachin him miself, it seem to me he never will learn anything—his spellin is ottrageously defishent. Wallop him well ser, and you will receive my thanks.

THE water that flows from a spring does not congeal in winter. And those sentiments which flow from the heart cannot be frozen by adversity.

IT is with narrow-souled people as with narrow-necked bottles—the less they have in them, the more noise they make in pouring out.

Two ladies preached from Boston pulpits last Sunday.

Death of Henry Clay's Eldest Son.

A SAD STORY OF LOVE AND MADNESS.

The Cincinnati Enquirer of May 17th, gives some particulars of the death and weary life of Theodore Clay, eldest son of Henry Clay, who died recently in the Lexington (Ky.) Lunatic Asylum, after a long confinement. The record of his blasted life is briefly thus:

At thirty years of age Theodore Clay was a promising lawyer. He was the image and hope of the statesman whose fame was on every tongue. It is true that there were whispers of wild living and of indifferent morals that somewhat tinged the fair repute and even darkened the future prospects of this scion of a noble house. Still it was hoped that these were but the results of youth, and would be cast aside when circumstances called upon the matured man to assert himself and make his talent felt in the community.

It was at this turning point in his life that Theodore Clay began to pursue, with an unwearied perseverance that caused his friends great uneasiness, a young lady of Lexington, whom he had long loved hopelessly. The object of his attachment, who is at the present moment one of the brightest ornaments of Kentucky society, repulsed, firmly but kindly, every attention offered by the infatuated young man, after his meaning had become manifest. It was no use; he would not be refused, and followed his fair fate in the streets by day and wandered in the neighborhood of her home by night, in an annoying manner, until at last it became evident that he "was not all there"—to use the soft phrase by which a kindly peasantry express insanity. Subsequent violent demonstrations tended to confirm the impression, it being even related that he went to the house of Mr.——— and demanded his daughter at the pistol's point, until at last the wretched truth could no longer be ignored, and confinement in the asylum became a stern necessity. This was accordingly done, (in 1832, we believe,) his father providing for his support at that time, and leaving $10,000 in his will, the income from which was secured to Theodore for life. That life, after thirty-eight years of imprisonment in what in the earlier days of his confinement he was wont to call "a good boarding-house, but having some of the biggest fools he ever saw as boarders," has just closed.

For nearly thirty years he was one of the most noted of the inmates, not only his proud descent but his graceful manners and flow of conversation rendering him an object of interest to all visitors. He labored under the hallucination that he was George Washington, and was fond of assuming the traditional attitudes of the father of his country. At the occasional balls given to the inmates (averaging some five hundred in number) he was always exquisitely dressed in the style of the day, and was the beau par excellence. During all these long years, despite his general gentleness and cheerfulness of manner, he was restless and discontented, and required close watching—it never in fact having been considered prudent to allow him to go out in the grounds without attendants. About the year 1860 his condition began to grow worse, and he soon after became demented, continuing in hopeless idiocy until a few days since, when death, greater healer than time, placed him again upon an equality with the peers of his early manhood who had gone before him to the God that created him and did with him according to His inscrutable will. And so ends as sad a story as the truth of history ever commanded to be written.

Two sons of Henry Clay yet survive him—T. H. Clay, ex-minister to Honduras, now residing on his "Mansfield," near Lexington, and John M. Clay, the raiser of Kentucky, and one of the greatest turfmen living.

IMPRISONMENT.—Mr. Martin Baker, of this county, was arrested and put in jail in this place last Friday. It seems that Mr. Kent, of Louisa, got judgment in Louisa court against Mr. Baker some time ago, for a sum of money, but just before the rendition of the judgment Mr. Baker sold his land for cash. The execution was sent up to this county and served on Mr. Baker, and he admitted that he had the money and intended to keep it. This the sheriff reported, and he was ordered to arrest Baker and put him in jail. This was done on Friday last, and on Saturday Baker got out a writ of habeas corpus; but after a full hearing of his case he was remanded to jail by Judge Shackelford, presiding in the circuit court now in session here, to stay until he should show just cause why he should not satisfy the execution.—Charlottsville (Va.,) Chronicle.

There are others who should share the fate of Baker. The man who has the means and will not pay his just debts should be punished in some way.

AN inventive genius has produced an apparatus which he says is a cure for snoring. He fastens upon the nose a gutta-percha tube leading to the tympanum of the ear. Whenever the snorer snores he himself receives the first impression, finds how disagreeable it is, and of course reforms.

YOUNG GENT—"I am going to give the teacher a piece of my mind!"

Young Lady—"I would not, if I were in your place; he has got all he wants, and you havn't any to spare!"

P. T. Barnum, the noted exhibitor, ascribes his success in accumulating a million of dollars in ten years to the unlimited use of printer's ink.

THE INFALLIBILITY DOGMA—The Scheme and its Discussion.—A correspondent of the New York Tribune furnishes what is alleged to be the true text of the infallibility scheme now reported to be occupying the attention of the Vatican Council in Rome. The paper is as follows:

1. If any one shall say that the Episcopal Chair of the Roman Church is not the very true and infallible chair of the blessed Peter, or that it has not been divinely chosen by God as the most solid, enduring and incorruptible rock of the whole Christian Church—let him be anathema.

2. If any one shall say there exists on earth, distinct and separate from the chair of the blessed Peter, any other infallible chair of the truth of the Gospel of Christ the Lord—let him be anathema.

3. If any shall deny that the Divine supremacy of the chair of the blessed Peter is to all men, whether unbelievers or believers, whether laymen or bishops, necessary as the true road to eternal salvation—let him be anathema.

4. If any one shall say that each and all of the Roman Pontiffs, legitimately elected, are not jure divino successors of the blessed Peter, in the gift also of magisterial infallibility, and shall deny to any one of them the prerogative of infallibility to teach the Church the Word of God, pure from all corruption and error—let him be anathema.

5. If any shall say that Ecumenical Councils are a power placed by God in the Church for feeding the divine flock on the Word of God, superior to the Roman pontiff, or equal to him, or necessary by Divine institution, to the completion of the infallable magistracy of the bishop of Rome—let him be anathema.

A cable dispatch asserts that the discussion upon the infallibility dogma is now being carried on with considerable warmth, and the argument, it is thought, will not be terminated before the latter part of July. The following purports to be a sketch of the debate on Monday:

"The opposition first obtained the floor, and the Bishops of St. Brience and St. Gall spoke against infallibility. Bishop Cefele, of Roethenburg, made an energetic appeal, declaring that three successive Ecumenical Councils had anathematized Pope Honorius, denouncing him as a heretic. Prince Cardinal Schwartzenburg referred in language of contempt to the excuses of partisans of the dogma in their endeavors to explain away the truth and juetice of the arguments against Pope Honorius's affirmation that infalibility was most inopportune, because such arguments were false and ill-founded. He quoted from the works of eminent theologians, adducing authority to prove that Popes could be deposed for heresy. Cardinal Von Rouscher, through a deputy, entered a strong protest in behalf of society and the interests of the civil government against any proceedings prejudicial to the cause of freedom of thought and action. The tenor of the document was blended with expressions of devotion to the Holy See."

UPWARD AND ONWARD.—The two lady brokers, Miss Woodhull and Miss Claflin, who created a sensation in Wall street, New York, some months ago, by entering into competition with the bulls and bears in the stock and banking line, have started a sixteen page weekly newspaper, under the title of "Woodhull and Claflin's Weekly." With the motto "upward and onward," it plunges boldly into politics, finances, fashions, &c., and one of its proprietors, with commendable diffidence, presents herself as a candidate for the next presidency. The editorial articles are on quite a variety of subjects, embracing foreign and domestic policy—not, of course, meaning domestic in the restricted signification of within doors—and in an article headed "New Brooms," the broomstick is flourished over the New York municipality in a lively manner.—Our fair friends are also down on the Fenians, as every one is, now that the Fenians are down themselves. At the same time the lady editors sympathize with the Cuban filibusters. This is inconsistent, but not more so than newspapers conducted by men are at times.—The paper goes it on the "spread eagle" style also as to the whole unbounded continent being ours, which again is not consistent with the condemnation of the Fenian movement. But on the whole the "Weekly" is a readable and wide awake paper, and if its success is equal to its spirit will make its way in the world.

GOLD PRODUCTION.—It would appear from some facts which have been lately elicited in regard to gold production, that gold mining in California and in Australia does not now promise greater reward than ordinary employments, even those in which the labor is far less severe. California papers state that in eight years it has fallen off from $32,000,000 to $23,000,000, and has now become a legitimate business, yielding no more average remuneration than any other, if as much. The business has fallen into the control of associated capital, and the miners themselves receive wages averaging about four dollars a day. No large increase of production is anticipated for the next few years, although it is thought that mining will become a steady and recognized American industry in the future, the same as manufacturing and agriculture.

SMART DOG.—The story goes, that as a well-known sporting gentleman of this city, who owns a handsome pointer, was passing through one of the streets in the northern part of the city, he was startled by seeing his dog come to a dead point. The gentleman looked around, expecting to see some bird, a pigeon, or at least a cat, but there was nothing in sight. Observing that the dog's attention was fixed upon some object across the street, the owner walked over, and the mystery was at once solved; upon a door, in silver letters, was the name, "A partridge." Smart dog, that.—New Bedford Mercury.

HYDROPHOBIA.—A paper recently read before the Paris Academy of Sciences on the subject of "Hydrophobia" gave statistics tending to establish the fact often asserted by physicians that cases of canine madness are no more prevalent in summer than in the other seasons. Also, that muzzling dogs predisposes them of the malady.
