The more we live, more brief appear Our life's succeeding stages; A day to childhood seems a year. And years like passing ages.

The gladsome current of our youth Bre passion yet disorders, Steals lingering like a river smooth Along its grassy borders.

But as the careworn cheek grows wan And sorrow's shafts fly thicker, Ye stars, that measure life to man,

Why seem your courses quicker?

When joys have lost their bloom and breath And life itself is vapid,

Why, as we reach the Falls of Death, Feel we its tide more rapid? It may be strange—yet who would life

WILL HONOR MASTER

TRNEST SCHELLING, eminent American pianist and con-I'ductor, is the only pupil of the great Paderewski. Sunday evening, February seventh, Schelling plans to honor his famous teacher who is now living virtually in exile at his Swiss estate, by leading the members of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the only symphony composed by Paderewski. This performance will be particularly timely in view of the widespread interest aroused by the recent publication of the longawaited memoirs of the Polish pianist and statesman.
