FARMERS' DEPARTMENT

"He who by the plow would thrive,
Himself must either hold or drive."

THE LIFE OF A FARMER--SOME KINDLY SUGGESTIONS.

The life of a farmer can be made easier, pleasanter and healthier, and his home more attractive, beautiful and enjoyable, by a careful attention to certain rules too often forgotten.

First.—Too much work is frequently undertaken, or more land attempted to be cultivated than the means at his command will fairly allow. Having once started on the wrong path, and only looking to the profit that may accrue if all his plans can be accomplished, he presses all his energies into the service, only to find at the end of the season that the task he had imposed upon himself was too heavy, and that much of his labor has been wasted from the want of prudent, cautious calculation at the beginning. It would have been far better to husband his strength and that of the force at his command, so that the work shall be kept within the ability of the field hands and nothing slighted. Larger areas under cultivation that can be cropped successfully, make more show and put on an outward appearance of prosperity; but it is wholly delusive where there is weakness behind it all. Less land, better tillage, and fewer mortgages would do some of our counties an immense amount of good, and not only keep the minds of embarrassed owners easy, but ultimately bring them, by concentration of means and power, an increase of prosperity. The sentiment underlying the desire to preserve intact "the paternal acres," is one which every right-thinking mind will respect. But there is a point at which a sturdy adherence to it tends to work serious injury to the owner of property which has become an incumbrance. This is especially the case when the paternal acres are sadly weighed with paternal debts.

For the working farmer it is far better that he should lay out for the season only so much work as may be within his means and his capacity, and to do well whatever work he undertakes. It is also most desirable that the impoverished land owner, and there are many such, should partition off portions of his land into smaller farms, or sell outright what he cannot manage conveniently, and concentrate all his ability on a smaller number of acres. A hundred acres, well manured and well tilled, will bring him more profit than three hundred acres indifferently manured and hurriedly tilled.

Second.—The work on the farm should be better systematized than it is usually. It is important that the work should be so arranged that there should be time allowed for doing everything that may be required to be done, without undue strain, and allowing for contingencies, so that there shall be a fair margin to count upon in any event. When once such regulations are laid down they should be rigidly adhered to, for any departure from them, unless under exceptional circumstances, would be likely to prove embarrassing.—More time is frequently lost at the last moment in thinking what to do and how to do it, or where the means to do it shall be found, than in performing the work when once determined on and begun with method and conducted with precision.—Think, then, beforehand; map out the things to be done, and it will be a matter of surprise after a while to find how easily the days' routine runs in its groove.—Of course, perfect regularity, under all conditions of time, place and weather, is not expected, for the best plans sometimes fail, just as the best regulated railway train may break a wheel or be shunted off the track by a damaged rail.

But any method carefully devised for carrying on the work of a farm systematically and with a due regard to the circumstances of the farmer or planter, and his ability to command a sufficient force of field hands, when it is more wanted, is infinitely superior to a hap-hazard, "happy go lucky" way of trying to do the same things, and just missing it. There is nothing more beneficial in carrying on systematic farming than the keeping of a regular account of income and expenditure, and a simple diary of each days' occupation, with the condition of the crops and the state of the weather. We venture to say that the man who does this, for two years faithfully, will find it of so much advantage as a means of reference, and as assisting to correct slips of the the memory, that he will scarcely fail to continue it thenceforward.

Third.—Pay more attention to the health of the body. Care in changing from thin to thicker garments, or the reverse, as the case may be, in accordance with the variations of the weather, will often prevent severe attacks of sickness. Malaria should always be guarded against, not only by caution in exposing one's self to its baleful influences, but by the use of small doses of quinine, and in damp situations by keeping the apartments dry, even in hot weather some fire has to be used. The farmer, especially of the Middle States, is constantly exposed to sudden alternations of cold and heat, and is further liable to suffer from checked perspiration, when severe labor demands a short period of rest. It is such things as these combined with hard work, that break down, after awhile, the strongest constitution. Reason would tell us that a life passed without violent mental strain, in the open country and in a pure atmosphere, would be more likely than almost any other, to reach the limit of threescore years and ten. The statistics show that the average duration of life among persons engaged in agricultural pursuits is actually less than that attained by persons engaged in some of the most laborious occupations of a town.

Fourth.—Make the home life cheerful and bright, as well as comfortable, see that the house is made pleasant by neat adornments, and that it has also pleasant surroundings, books, papers, pictures, music, some of these at least, if not all, are within the reach of all those whose minds crave them, and whose eyes appreciate them. When homes are bleak, bare and cheerless, life is robbed of some of its chiefest blessings. The outward beauty of a country dwelling is a matter of no less consequence. Its adornment, though simple and inexpensive, may yet be made to add a new charm to the inner comforts. Flowers over the porches, and shrubs and flowers on the lawn, are nature's arts, and though cheap, are in their natural beauty more attractive than any other thing that the costliest art can supply.—Maryland Farmer.

THE CODLING WORM.—An apple grower in New York, whose orchard has been to some extent infested with this pest, says late fall plowing has reduced their numbers very materially, and if closely followed, he thinks this practice will exterminate them from an orchard. As the parent worms winter in the ground, if they are cast to the surface when torpid, late in the fall, death ensues.

AN Iowa gentleman was recently foiled in his laudable purpose of committing suicide by the reprehensible conduct of an apothecary, who gave him prepared chalk for arsenic, and the might-have-been widow threatens to sue the apothecary for obtaining money under false pretences.

TO CATCH CUT-WORMS.—It is very annoying, says the Rural Carolinian, after having set out a nice lot of sweet potato or cabbage plants, to see them cut down, one by one, by cut-worms. We have tried ashes, lime, soot, and, in fact, everything we have ever heard of, but never found anything effectual until, by accident, we found three or four of the worms one morning, gathered under a small board, which had been left by some children on a sweet potato hill. Acting upon this hint, we placed small pieces of board, large chips, etc., all through the patch, and we trapped them by hundreds. The boards must be lifted early in the morning, and on very warm days again about noon. A little care, for a few days, will clear these pests out of the garden. One trial will satisfy any person of the merits of this plan.

Clear and Harmless as Water!
NATTANS' CRYSTAL DISCOVERY
FOR THE HAIR!
A PERFECTLY clear preparation in one bottle, as easily applied as water, for restoring to gray hair its natural color and youthful appearance, to eradicate and prevent dandruff, to promote the growth of the hair and stop its falling. It is perfectly harmless and entirely free from any poisonous substance and will therefore take the place of all the dirty and unpleasant preparations now in use. In everything in which the articles now in use are objectionable, CRYSTAL DISCOVERY is perfect. It is warranted to contain neither Sugar of Lead, Sulphur, Litharage, or Nitrate of Silver. Bear this in mind when you want anything for your hair.
Clear and clean as water, it does not soil the scalp or clothes, is agreeably perfumed, and makes one of the best dressings for the hair in use. It restores the color of the hair more perfect and uniformly than any other preparation, and always does so in from 3 to 10 days. Virtually feeding the roots of the hair with all the nourishing qualities necessary to its growth and healthy condition, it restores the decayed and induces a new growth of the hair more positively than anything else. The application of this wonderful discovery also induces a pleasant and cooling effect on the scalp and gives the hair a glossy appearance.
We call especial attention to the fact that a limited number of trial bottles will be given away gratuitously to those desiring to try it. You will notice that in pursuing this course our aim is to convince by the actual merits of the article. ARTHUR NATTANS, Inventor and Proprietor, Washington, D. C., to whom all orders must be addressed.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5, 1870.
Mr. Arthur Nattans:
Dear Sir—I do not hesitate to say that your Crystal Discovery deserves to supercede all other preparations claiming to restore the growth and color of the hair. I have used it a week now, and my hair has already returned to its natural color, and has ceased falling almost entirely. I cheerfully recommend it.
Respectfully,
felly. MRS. ANNIE MORRAIN.

THE EUREKA
FANNING MILL.
THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!
Farmers Look to Your Interest!
THE attention of Farmers and Merchants is particularly directed to the convenient economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public.
It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Pythagoras—EUREKA!—signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill
In this Mill are all the former improvements to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible on the inventor himself. It embrace the three great essentials necessary in every invention:
It combines ECONOMY, UTILITY and PRACTICABILITY!
THE "EUREKA" MILL
Is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented.
IT IS THE ONLY MILL that will successfully remove from wheat all such pests as Cock
