Sumner's Equality Amendment.

SPEECH of SENATOR VICKERS.

In the United States Senate on Monday, there was an important debate on the amnesty bill, and Mr. Sumner's supplementary civil rights amendment. Mr. Sumner spoke at length in favor of his amendment, and was followed by Mr. Vickers, whose speech is thus reported in the proceedings of Congress published in the daily papers:

MR. VICKERS, of Maryland, said the amendment proposed by Mr. Sumner was not only not germane to the amnesty bill, but it was so palpably unconstitutional, seeking to forfeit every charter granted by States to private corporations in certain contingencies, that he would not attempt to reply to it, but would confine himself to a discussion of the amnesty bill itself.

Mr. Vickers then discussed the constitutional relations of the States to each other, and to the general government, maintaining that the general government was a confederation of delegated powers, and that the States were sovereign, with the exception of such powers as they had delegated. He quoted from the views of Daniel Webster and other statesmen of the North, concurring in the views held by Southern statesmen as to the limited powers of the general government and the reserved rights of the States. He pointed out how the trade and prosperity of the country was indebted to the products of the South, and said the renown and honor of the country had always been upheld by the men of the South. They had poured out their blood and their treasure for the defense of that government. In 1860 the first sectional President was elected, and the South, believing that its reserved rights were in danger, undertook, in pursuance of what it believed to be its undoubted right, to withdraw from the Union. It was encouraged in its course by many of the leading men and journals of the North. It had fought and suffered beyond any other people for its convictions. While he admitted that the South had been unwise in secession, the North had been equally unwise in its plan of reconstruction, and every attempt which had been made by Congress to amend that plan had only made it worse. He believed that had President Lincoln's plan of reconstruction been adopted, we should to-day be a united, happy and prosperous people, with no traces of the bitterness engendered by the war. It could not be denied that but for the aid of the democrats of the North the government could not have succeeded in subduing the South, and they should have had some part in shaping the policy to be pursued toward the vanquished section. The disabilities which had been imposed upon a large part of the people of the South were utterly at variance with the spirit and the teachings of the constitution; they were unwise in the beginning, and it was doubly unwise to continue them. In judging the South, he contended that in some degree at least things should have been looked at from their standpoint. The dictates of sound policy and of humanity forbid that his discrimination should have been resorted to.

He then discussed the Ku-Klux act, and maintained that much of the disorder which had prevailed in the South could have been avoided if a different treatment had been meted out to those people. He deprecated the suspension of the habeas corpus, which up to the time of Mr. Lincoln had never before been suspended in the history of the government. No proper justification, he contended, now existed for this suspension. On this point he quoted.

Mr. Vickers then proceeded ably and eloquently to argue for a removal of all traces of proscription, and to bring back to a common fellowship those who are bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh.

Mr. Vickers concluded his speech of an hour and a-half as follows: "It has been said that the sublimest word in our language is duty, and the most important, responsibility; that the man who has conquered a nation is not great until he has conquered himself, for true greatness is moral greatness and nobility of spirit, and that he who cannot forgive others breaks the bridge over which he himself must pass. Let us rise to the moral grandeur of duty and responsibility, achieve a victory over our prejudices, over our memories of the past, our resentments and spirit of retaliation, rise to the dignity and honor of our station, and to the exalted standard of pure and generous patriotism, forgetting ourselves and all our conflicts and differences in the love we bear to our fellows, equal in all the elements of true manhood to ourselves. It was said by an eminent historian that the true end of politics is to make life easy and a people happy. Let us verify in our history to-day this adage of a wise man, and leave no blot on the history of our times by maintaining distinctions among equals.—You boast of having struck the manacles from the hands of the slaves, while you place them upon the mind, the volition, the freedom of the whites. Let us act up to the wisdom of statesmen, and while you proclaim the liberty of the bondman pronounce the emancipation of our race; withdraw your military from Southern soil and restore tranquillity and order. Suffer not the fleeting and unworthy influences of party to weigh down the mighty balances of human rights, the immunities of the citizen and the demand of the nation; but, in view of the humiliations, sufferings and destruction of the past, looking with prescience and hope of the patriot to the stupendous greatness and glories of a happy future, rise to the true character of our position, and restore to our people and the States justice, confidence, equality and constitutional rule, the only secure and solid foundations of free republican institutions. Can there be anything in the history of governments and of men, higher, nobler, sublimer than a great people, by their Representatives and Senators, obliterating all traces of proscription, and bringing back into a common fellowship, into full communion and brotherhood, those who are bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, who speak, our language, worship the same God, and seek to serve the same country? Send, therefore, the white-winged messenger of peace, reconciliation and hope to those who will contribute to our growth, unity and prosperity."

The Louisiana Muddle.

The lower House of the Louisiana Legislature consists of 101 members, whereof 56 are a quorum. Of these 101 members 75 are Republicans and 26 are Democrats. According to the original division of the two hostile bodies now claiming to be the House of Representatives, there are assembled at the State House, with Mr. Brewster in the chair as Speaker, 55 Republicans and 5 Democrats, being 4 more than a quorum. There are assembled in the bar room of the Gem tavern, with ex-Confederate Carter as Speaker, 20 Republicans and 21 Democrats, being 15 less than a quorum. Since the first division two or three members from the bolting body at the Gem have joined the regular body at the State House, the only place where either branch of the Legislature can constitutionally or legally meet.

An outside observer would think that this was a pretty clear case for General Grant, whether viewed in the light of the laws or of political propriety. And so it would doubtless be universally regarded, were there no conspiracy between Grant, Casey, Packard and Carter to overthrow the State government simply because Grant believes that Gov. Warmouth and his friends at the State House are opposed to his renomination for President, while the recusant Republicans at the Gem gin-mill are in favor of it. The majority of the Democratic members very naturally go with the recusant Republicans, for the obvious reason that they desire to scatter the Republican party of Louisiana to the winds.—N. Y. Sun.

STOKES AND MANSFIELD—The Murderer and his Mistress as they Appeared Before the Assassination.—The New York World thus describes the appearance of Mrs. Mansfield and Stokes on the occasion of the trial: "The dashing Mr. Stokes sat near to Josie, and occasionally, resting his elbow on the back of her chair, and shielding his moustached mouth with his ungloved hand, he would speak to her in a subdued tone of voice. Mrs. Mansfield wore a heavy corded black silk dress, trimmed with velvet and point lace all around, about half a yard from the bottom of the dress, from which perpendicular pieces of black velvet extended to the end. She had on a rich black velvet hammer-claw basque, cut en reverse, and trimmed with black ostrich feathers and deep black point lace; the sleeves were cut tight to the elbow, then flowing to the waist, around which portion was heavy point lace. Inside all this nestled her two purple-kidded hands. Around her neck, Mrs. Mansfield wore a large link gold chain, from which pended an exquisitely formed gold and blue and black enamel cross, a becoming little hat of the same material as her basque covered her head. That was trimmed also with point lace and ostrich feathers, and from the left a dazzling blue jay feather shot skyward. Ponderous gold earrings set off her very full face to advantage. Her eyes are large and hazel, yet seem to have little depth of expression; and over her face attached to her hat a short, spotted drab veil enhanced her complexion. Mr. Stokes looked as neat and stylish as ever in dark blue, fashionably cut, well fitting English sack coat and vest, light striped pants, and over all a white chinchilla beaver overcoat. Mr. Stokes continually flourished a little Irish thorn cane. First he would thrust the handle of it into his mouth; then he would give it a right shoulder-arms position, holding it much in the manner that Mr. Fisk holds his sword when on horseback and tries to look imposing."

A Body and Mind Disease.

Such is dyspepsia. The stomach and the brain are too intimately allied for the one to suffer without the other so that dyspepsia and despondency are inseparable. It may be added, too, that irritation of the stomach is almost invariably accompanied by irritation of the temper.

The invigorating and tranquilizing operation of Hostetter's Bitters is most powerfully developed in cases of indigestion. The first effect of this agreeable tonic is comforting and encouraging. A mild glow pervades the system, the chronic uneasiness in the region of the stomach is lessened, and the nervous restlessness which characterizes the disease is abated. This improvement is not transient. It is not succeeded by the return of the old symptoms with super-added force, as is always the case when nonmedicated stimulants are given for the complaint. Each dose seems to impart a permanent accession of healthful invigoration. But this is not all. The aperient and antibilious properties of the preparation are scarcely secondary in importance to its tonic virtues. If there is an overflow of bile, the secretion is soon brought within proper limits, and if the biliary organ is inert and torpid it is toned and regulated. The effect upon the discharging organs is equally salutary, and in cases of constipation the cathartic action is just sufficient to produce the desired result gradually and without pain. The Bitters also promote healthy evaporation from the surface, which is particularly desirable at this season when sudden spells of raw, unpleasant weather are apt to check the natural perspiration and produce congestion of the liver, coughs and colds. The best safeguard against all diseases is bodily vigor, and this the great Vegetable Restorative especially promotes.

TO Executors, Administrators AND GUARDIANS.

AGREEABLY to an order of the Orphans' Court for Kent county, passed December 12, 1871.—This is to give notice to all delinquent Executors and Administrators, that the law requires them to pass their first Administration account, within Twelve months from the date of Letters, and an additional account every Six months thereafter, until the estate is fully settled.

And that every Guardian, where the income of the ward is over $50 per annum is required to pass an account once in each year agreeably to law; and on the arrival of their wards at age to exhibit and pass a final Guardian account before the Orphans' Court.

Frequent complaint having been made to the Court, relative to such delinquency, the above is published for the informative of all whom it may concern. E. CROUCH,

THE AMERICAN WASHER.
PRICE $5.50.

The AMERICAN WASHER Saves Money, Time and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little Machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! it is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One-half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket, three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief are equally within the capacity of this LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once becomes its but friends.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements. It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price—another paramount inducement to purchasers—has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

NOTICE.

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public in general, that I have opened a fine assortment of

to which I may leave to call their particular attention. I am dealing with a first class house and shall endeavor to keep none but goods of the VERY BEST QUALITY.

Physicians and all others interested may rely upon having their prescriptions and orders accurately filled with FRESH and PURE MEDICINES, at prices lower than they have previously paid in this place. Prescriptions carefully compounded day and night, and all packages plainly and properly marked.

Also the principal Patent Medicines in use.

I hope by careful attention to business, and fair and honest dealing with my customers, to merit and receive a liberal share of their patronage. JOSEPH E. WEER, Clear and Harmless as Water!

NATTANS' CRYSTAL DISCOVERY
FOR THE HAIR!

A PERFECTLY clear preparation in one bottle, as easily applied as water, for restoring to gray hair its natural color and youthful appearance, to eradicate and prevent dandruff, to promote the growth of the hair and stop its falling. It is perfectly harmless and entirely free from any poisonous substance and will therefore take the place of all the dirty and unpleasant preparations now in use. In everything in which the articles now in use are objectionable, CRYSTAL DISCOVERY is perfect. It is warranted to contain neither Sugar of Lead, Sulphur, Lithurage, or Nitrate of Silver. Bear this in mind when you want anything for your hair.

Clear and clean as water, it does not soil the scalp or clothes, is agreeably perfumed and makes one of the best dressings for the hair in use. It restores the color of the hair more perfect and uniformly than any other preparation, and always does so in from 3 to 10 days. Virtually feeding the roots of the hair with all the nourishing qualities necessary to its growth and healthy condition, it restores the decayed and induces a new growth of the hair more positively than anything else. The application of this wonderful discovery also produces a pleasant and cooling effect on the scalp and gives the hair a glossy appearance.

We call especial attention to the fact that a limited number of trial bottles will be given away gratuitously to those desiring to try it. You will realize that in pursuing this course our aim is to convince by the actual merits of the article. ARTHUR NATTANS, Inventor and Proprietor, Washington, D. C., to whom all orders must be addressed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5, 1870.

Mr. Arthur Nattans:

Dear Sir—I do not hesitate to say that your Crystal Discovery deserves to supercede all other preparations claiming to restore the growth and color of the hair. I have used it a week now, and my hair has already returned to its natural color, and has ceased falling almost entirely. I cheerfully recommend it.

Respectfully,
felly. MRS. ANNIE MORRAIN.
