A WORTHY CHARITY

The Claiborne Fresh Air Cottage Association Is An Eastern Shore Institution—Kent Ladies Who Are Helping It Along.

The people of Kent county have an opportunity to do something that is unselfish and most worthy. Will you do what you can to help?

The Claiborne Fresh Air Cottage was opened during the summer of 1910 as a recreation home for mothers and their children from the Eastern Shore towns and Baltimore.

After two years' work in inadequate quarters, the Association has purchased a site at Claiborne, facing the Chesapeake Bay, and have procured a State appropriation for maintenance, provided the new building is completed by June 1913. In order to do this $800 must be raised by March. The managers for Kent county are the following:

Mrs. Curtis E. Crane, Chairman; Miss Rebecca Wickes, Mrs. J. D. Urie, Mrs. W. B. Usilton, Jr., Mrs. James A. Pearce, Mrs. W. W. Hubbard, Mrs. Joseph A. Wickes, Mrs. J. D. Bacchus, Mrs. T. W. Eliason, Mrs. H. B. Simmons, Mrs. W. W. Beck, Mrs. L. A. Costello.

Mrs. Anna S. Herkner, the assistant to Chief of the Bureau of Information and Statistics, says: "We all like to think of woman as sheltered in a home where her chief care is her children. It is a comfortable picture to contemplate. But the truth presents 34,253 women over 16 years of age in the factories, mills and workshops, and 20,079 women in stores and offices in the State of Maryland. And their children?—over 8,000 of them are likewise wage-earners in the wealth-producing establishments of our State. It is these women and children who help to place us in the front ranks of the industrial States of the Union, and we should all feel some measure of responsibility towards them. The Claiborne Fresh Air Cottage provides opportunity of rest for mothers and their children among these unfortunates and asks you to do your part to aid in its good work."

SCENE AT THE CLAIBORNE HOME

Mrs. Mary E. Lent, Superintendent of the Visiting Nurse Association of Baltimore, says: "We have on our visiting list approximately 1,000 families. In many of these homes the mother is the breadwinner, and by reason of the lower wage paid for women's work, we are witness to a desperate struggle for subsistence. However hard, a man may work during the day, when he reaches home his work is done. Not so with the mother. She not only has the same number of hours in factory or shop which are required of men, but when she returns home she must do all the household work which women more fortunately situated are able to do by day. There was one mother whom we knew who worked in a canning factory from 5 A. M. till 3 P. M. She came home for two hours' cooking and washing for her children, then she left them to go into an office building at 6 P. M. to scrub marble floors until 10 o'clock in the morning.

"These are some of the tired mothers that we know about. These are the mothers for whose sake we ask you to support this vacation home. It is for you to give them and their children their one brief rest during the whole year."

The Kent county managers are making strenuous efforts to help this cause.

Retired Georgia Planter's Advice to Kidney Sufferers

Regarding the wonderful curative merits of your Swamp-Root, I cannot say to much. After suffering severely for three years or more with severe pains caused by weak kidneys, I was finally induced to try Swamp-Root through a testimonial I read in one of the newspapers. I was in such a condition that I was obliged to arise from my bed six or eight times every night. I purchased a 50 cent bottle and before it was used I felt so much relief that I purchased a one-dollar bottle and by the time this was taken the old pains had left my back and I could sleep the whole night through. I am a retired planter, 70 years of age, and owing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am in the best of health and feel like a boy. I am always glad to recommend Swamp-Root to those who are in need of it.

Sincerely yours,
C. E. USSERY,
Bowersville, Ga.

And Notice To Creditors.

R. Bruce Massey, Assignee, versus
Anna L. Duling, John W. Duling, her husband.

In the Circuit Court for Kent County, in Equity. No. 1829.

The object of this suit is to have the surplus proceeds of sale under a mortgage applied to pay the creditors of Anna L. Duling, late of Kent county, deceased, mortgagor.

The Petition stated that Anna L. Duling died before the sale under the mortgage, indebted unto Benjamin W. Duling in $59.55 on an open account and an open account for $37 25 for expenses incurred for the estate of the said Anna L. Duling, deceased, after her death, and to others, that she left no personal estate and no administration has been granted on her estate, that the land sold for more than enough to satisfy the mortgage and her creditors are entitled to the surplus proceeds; that Anna L. Duling left surviving her and now living a husband, John W. Duling, and the following heirs at law, namely: Benjamin W. Duling, a Son whose wife's name is Laura Duling, residing in Maryland, Dora Duling, a daughter whose husband's name is Harry Duling, residing in Delaware, Mary W. Bamberger, a daughter whose husband's name is David Damberger, residing in Maryland, Olin C. Duling, a son whose wife's name is Ida Duling, residing in Maryland, Sara Edna Vansant, a daughter, widow of B. E. Vansant, deceased, residing in Maryland, Oscar Brown Duling, a son whose wife's name is Mary Duling, residing in Pennsylvania, and the following children of Anna R. Clough, a deceased daughter, namely: John H. Clough, whose wife's name is Clara Clough, Clarence Clough, whose wife's name is Clara Clough, Eva W. Porter, whose dusband's name is Robert E. Porter, and George E. Clough, whose wife's name is Ida Clough, all residing in Maryland, and Edward Clough residing in New Jersey, and Herman S. Clough, whose wife's name is Mollie Clough, residing in Delaware when last heard from, and may now be residing in Maryland, all of the above named heirs at law being adults, except Edward Clough, who is an infant and the following children of John Duling, a deceased son, all of whom are minors, namely: Bayard Duling, residing in Pennsylvania, and Clara Duling and John Duling, both residing in Delaware.

Ordered this 7th day of January, 1913, by the Court that the creditors of Anna L. Duling, deceased, file their claims, with vouchers with the Clerk of this Court on or before the fifteenth dap of March next; or be excluded from participation in the distribution of said surplus proceeds of sale.

Ordered further that notice of the object and purpose of said petition be given to Dora Duling, Harry Duling, Oscar Brown Duling, Mary Duling and Herman S. Clough and Mollie Clough, adults, and Edward Clough, Bayard Duling, Clara Duling and John Duling, infants, all non-residents, by publishing this Order in some weekly newspaper published in Kent county once in each of four successive weeks before the eighth day of February, 1913, to show cause, if any they have, why the petition should not be granted.

STORIES OF PIUS IX.

The Lady Who Told the Pontiff She Wished He Were Dead.

Lady Paget in the Nineteenth Century has a chapter of recollections dealing with life in Rome during the first years of completely united Italy, when Lady Paget's husband was British ambassador to the Quirinal. Among her stories are some of Pope Pius IX., which show that pontiff in a most amiable light. Though the pope had twice excommunicated the king, they really loved each other, says Lady Paget, "for they were made of the same kind of stuff, and both belonged emphatically to the days that are past and gone. Impulsive in action, primesautier and generous in temperament, they allowed themselves the luxury of sometimes letting their feelings deviate from what others might consider the stern path of duty."

When King Victor Emmanuel died his chaplain, against all rules, gave him absolution for everything, though he was under the major excommunication. The pope sent for the priest, inquired most feelingly about the king's last moments, and when the chaplain confessed Pius IX., with tears in his eyes, cried: "Hai fatto bene! Hai fatto bene!" ("You have done well! You have done well!")

Another story illustrates Pius IX.'s sense of humor. It concerns Mme. de Corcelles, the wife of the ambassador to the Vatican, a delightful old lady, who often visited Lady Paget, in spite of prohibitions. "For," she declared, "I am the granddaughter of Lafayette, and I do what I please." She never addressed the cardinals as eminence, but hailed them in cheery tones as her "dear cardinals." When one day she visited Pius IX. he asked her whether she had seen all the sights of Rome. "Yes, holy father," she replied, "but I should dearly like to see a conclave."

This story was told by the pontiff himself.

PORT SAID GAMBLERS.

Traps They Have Ready Baited to Fleece Unwary Tourists.

Picturesque Port Said, at the entrance to the Suez canal, is given an unsavory reputation by I. Johnston Abraham in his book, "The Surgeon's Log." Ugly stories are told about the town, the writer says, and his description of a gambling house fitted on purpose to fleece the unwary traveler bears out his assertion:

Suddenly as we drew near one house the strains of music came echoing into the empty sandy street. As if at a signal the decrepit chariot stood still, my guide got down and suggested I should go in. I thought rapidly and then followed him. It was queer, and I wanted to know. He led the way upstairs into a large room, where several men were playing roulette. None took any notice of me, but apparently the bank was having a very bad time of it. Every one was winning. The music from the automatic piano was deafening. I looked on silently for some time and then made a move for the door. An oily looking Greek intercepted me.

"Won't you try your luck?" he said.

"I'm not drunk enough," I answered.

He shrugged his shoulders, and I passed on. On the stairs I paused and then stole quietly back. The music had ceased, and all the confederates who had been playing so feverishly and winning so much had ceased also and were preparing to resume the siesta my advent had so fruitlessly interrupted.

Free Drinks.

In the French chamber of deputies each speaker has to mount a tribune near the president's chair. On a deputy coming forward to address the assembly an usher invariably brings a glass of some beverage and places it at his side. Under the empire orators were allowed only a glass of sweetened water, and nowadays when a new speaker advances the usher, to be on the right side, gives him a glass of sweetened water, but among the veteran speakers water alone is not very high in favor. Cold soup, coffee, wine, spirits and lemonade are among the favorite beverages.

Perpetual Motion.

Perpetual motion machine? Suppose that man could finally perfect a machine that would run itself. It would not deliver a trace of power. The entire force would be employed in the running. It would have to be free from friction, not nearly, but absolutely. This man cannot accomplish. But the machine would of necessity have to start itself, an impossibility. Only creative mind is able to do this.—New York American.

No Excuse.

"We shall never have her in another club we get up."

"What's the matter?"

"Her mother died last week, and she resigned on that account."

"I don't see how you can blame her for that. It seems to me that she did the proper thing."

"I knew you'd think that. But it was her turn to entertain next."—Detroit Free Press.

Reasonable Anxiety.

"Captain," said the pilot anxiously, "I fear the vessel is ashore."

"Humph," ejaculated the captain as the steamer's nose went farther into the mud, "your fears seem to be, like the vessel, well grounded!"—Baltimore American.

Not Lost.

"Sam Johnson, you've been fightin' ag'in. Youse lost two of yo' front teeth."

"No, I ain't, mammy, honest. I's got 'em in me pocket."—Life.
