FARMERS' DEPARTMENT

"He who by the plow would thrive,
Himself must either hold or drive."

From the Maryland Farmer.

TO YOUNG FARMERS--NO 3.

In my last I spoke about raising a large yield of corn and potatoes. In this article we will consider the raising of wheat. There is a general complaint—a fact too—that the yield and quality of wheat, in Maryland and Virginia, are deteriorating; and the inquiry is how shall it be prevented and restored. The answer is, by recuperating the soil and bringing it back to original condition, or supplying the exhausted elements. This is not done alone by manuring, though that helps; but wheat does not like raw or undiluted manure, but it likes homeopathic doses or preparations, well mixed with the soil—completely incorporated with the natural elements of the earth. This is affected, in a great measure, by deep plowing and perfect pulverization. Liberal manuring and growing hoedcrops, as corn, potatoes, &c., one or two seasons, then fine deep plowing and thorough harrowing, for a crop of wheat; which process enables the growing plants to appropriate such ingredients of the earth as they need, and secures a more constant retention of needed moisture, than when the ground is moderately plowed and continually cropped with sowed crops of wheat, oats and rye.

But very important and efficient too is the effect of clover, the large kinds, and better still is lucerne; why? Because the large sorts of red clover, and more, the lucerne, make heavy, long roots, almost equal to parsnips, which penetrate the ground deeply, nearly a foot, sometimes more, and suck up and devour the new elements of new ground, much below what other crops get, besides opening the way for the rise of moisture from below, through spouts or pores made by these long tap roots; and besides, when plowing these crops under, the plow share cuts them off at the depth which it runs, and leaves the pieces below to rot and form a much needed humus and rich fertilizer, which greatly aids and stimulates the growth of the crops which follow; this effect and benefit of those greensoilers I have more than once proved; so that it can safely be said that lucerne and the giant red clover, liberally sowed and plowed under, are the cheapest and handiest restorers of exhausted wheat lands, when attended with deep plowing, that the farmer can use.

If sowed in the fall a clip of good hay may be cut early the next summer, while it is young and tender; then another good clip may be cut later in the season, and still leave time for it to grow sufficiently to cover the ground; then later in the autumn let it be liberally mulched or top-dressed with fine manure or compost; the next summer it will give a still larger clip of hay, and also in early autumn; when it may be plowed 7 to 10 inches deep for corn the next spring, but should be again plowed five or six inches before planting, all to be done in a careful, thorough manner; the corn may be taken off early and wheat drilled in that fall without plowing, and a good yield may be expected; it may be, at the same time, liberally seeded down with clover as before; and after the harvest a fair clip of tender hay may be cut; then, in late autumn it should be again top-dressed—next summer a fair crop of hay may be cut, and in due season be plowed under and wheat again drilled in that fall, and a good, profitable yield be very sure; and in this way old lands may be restored, or new, good lands be preserved from exhaustion.

This course may be varied by substituting other crops in place of corn occasionally, as potatoes, roots, spring oats, &c., but the clover or lucerne, the deep plowing and mulching must be kept up; and the fertility or tilth of the land will be surely preserved, and at the same time profitable crops be regularly procured.—But continual cropping with winter crops without hoeing and mulching, gradually and surely both hardens and robs the ground, and meagre wheat crops will as surely be the result, no matter how good the soil was originally. It is not enough merely to manure the soil, but it must be deepened and stirred and darkened and sheltered from the sun-rays by mulching, while the lucerne roots are great subsoilers, as well as top-feeders. Those who have never proved or practised mulching have little idea of its usefulness, both in stimulating meadows to vigorous growth and yield, and in preserving and invigorating winter wheat, if the muck be put on it late in autumn as soon as the ground becomes frozen. The grain is protected from winter-killing, by freezing, thawing and heaving out; while the young leaves of the meadow are protected from the sun-heat in spring, before it is sufficiently grown to shade and shelter itself;—and in both cases—wheat and grass—are lightly fertilized and stimulated, by the leaching or dripping of the surface manure to the roots in winter, and spring showers. No one operation is more profitable than this mulching, as I have often seen tried and proved in both cases.

Therefore, my young agricultural friends, I advise you early to adopt the better way as fast as you can learn it, in all your operations, and not stubbornly and unthinkingly follow some old way, simply because it is on old time practice; such a course never leads to improvement or progress in anything; but if you think and read and observe, you surely will improve, advance, and be happier as well as greater. LAND MARK.

Pig Breeding and Feeding.

Mr. Mechi, the prince of experimental farmers, says the same rule applies to pigs as well as to other animals; choose the best male parent of a thrifty breed.—Let the breeding sow work for her living, for if you feed her bountifully she will get fat and have few pigs. But he says, to have good pigs, she must have the right sort of food to make bone, muscle and fat; but avoid the fatal mistake of giving the sow a large quantity of roots before parturition. Let her run in pasture and have a moderate supply of bran, a little meal and boiled potatoes, a few turnips, but very few mangolds; a moderate supply of peas, beans and barley, or soaked Indian corn may be added, also clover and green beans in the pods.

Nothing comes amiss to the sow. The great point is to give a variety, and not too much of one sort, especially roots.—But after parturition roots may be more liberally given, especially cabbage in conjunction with other food, but immediately after parturition the diet should be sparing and cooling. In cold weather, shelter and warmth are indispensable. Never allow a pig to bury itself in stable manure, or catch cold by sleeping on the cold ground. For fattening pigs nothing beats one-third pea-meal and two-thirds barley meal; if mixed with skimmed milk, steamed roots and potatoes, they grow and fatten very fast. He fattened two hundred pigs one season without losing any by disease. To promote ventilation they were all placed on sparred floors, and in hot weather they were treated daily with a shower bath, which kept them very clean. He put straw on the floors in cold weather, and he says pigs pay in manure better than most other animals. They should have salt and plenty of pure water.

Gen. Washington's Farm.

The farm of General Washington, at Mount Vernon, contained ten thousand acres of land in one body—equal to about fifteen square miles. It was divided into farms of convenient size, at the distance of two, three and five miles from the mansion house. He visited these farms every day in pleasant weather, and was constantly engaged in making experiments for the improvement of agriculture. Some idea of the extent of his farming operations may be formed from the following facts: In 1787 he had five hundred and eighty acres in grass; sowed six hundred bushels of oats; seven hundred acres with wheat—and as much more in corn, barley, potatoes, beans, peas, &c., and one hundred and fifty with turnips. His stock consisted of one hundred and forty horses; one hundred and twelve cows; two hundred and thirty-six working oxen, heifers and steers, and five hundred sheep. He constantly employed two hundred and fifty hands, and kept twenty-four plows going during the whole year, when the earth and the state of the weather would permit. In 1780 he slaughtered one hundred and fifty hogs, for the use of his own family and provisions for his negroes, for whose comfort he had great regard.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE subscriber most respectfully informs the public that he has made arrangements with Dr. Thos. H. Whaland to carry on his near Chestertown, for the present year.

His long experience in the business and his reputation as a Miller warrants him in the belief that he can give universal satisfaction.—As soon as practicable he intends to keep on hand a good supply of

CORN MEAL,
WHEAT FLOUR of all Grades,
HORSE FEED, &c., &c.,

which he is determined to sell at reduced prices.

He only wants to make the regular toll, and will be compelled to sell for Cash only as his capital is small and he does not intend to keep books.

He will use all means to make the Mill a public convenience as well as a source of profit. A trial is all he asks.

Most respectfully,
SAMUEL A. ANTHONY.

THE BICKFORD
IMPROVED
Family Knitting Machines.

PERFECTION in work and simplicity of construction, has been attained in this Machine. It knits both circular and flat work with perfect selvage edge, making a perfect band stitch. It narrows and widens, knitting heels and toes of stockings to perfection, with ribbed or plain stitch, and is a Crocheting as well as Knitting Machine.

It makes all the intricate fancy stitches of the Crocheting needle better than hand work. It is so simple that a child can operate it, and the rapidity of its work is truly wonderful—20,000 stitches per minute.

This Machine has carried the First Prize at the Maryland State Fair, Maryland Institute and Virginia State Fair, this Fall, and was the principal Machine at all of them. They are more valuable in the family than the Sewing Machine. Price $25 and $35. Send for circulars. Agents wanted in every part of Maryland. Liberal terms.

Clear and Harmless as Water!

NATTANS' CRYSTAL DISCOVERY
FOR THE HAIR!

A PERFECTLY clear preparation in one bottle, as easily applied as water, for restoring to gray hair its natural color and youthful appearance, to eradicate and prevent dandruff, to promote the growth of the hair and stop its falling. It is perfectly harmless and entirely free from any poisonous substance and will therefore take the place of all the dirty and unpleasant preparations now in use. In everything in which the articles now in use are objectionable, CRYSTAL DISCOVERY is perfect. It is warranted to contain neither Sugar of Lead, Sulphur, Litharage, or Nitrate of Silver. Bear this in mind when you want anything for your hair.

Clear and clean as water, it does not soil the scalp or clothes, is agreeably perfumed, and makes one of the best dressings for the hair in use. It restores the color of the hair more perfect and uniformly than any other preparation, and always does so in from 3 to 10 days. Virtually feeding the roots of the hair with all the nourishing qualities necessary to its growth and healthy condition, it restores the decayed and induces a new growth of the hair more positively than anything else. The application of this wonderful discovery also produces a pleasant and cooling effect on the scalp and gives the hair a glossy appearance.

☞We call especial attention to the fact that a limited number of trial bottles will be given away gratuitously to those desiring to try it. You will notice that in pursuing this course our aim is to convince by the actual merits of the article. ARTHUR NATTANS, Inventor and Proprietor, Washington, D. C., to whom all orders must be addressed.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 5, 1870.

Mr. Arthur Nattans:

Dear Sir—I do not hesitate to say that your Crystal Discovery deserves to supercede all other preparations claiming to restore the growth and color of the hair. I have used it a week now, and my hair has already returned to its natural color, and has ceased falling almost entirely. I cheerfully recommend it.

Respectfully,
MRS. ANNIE MORRAIN.

THE EUREKA
FANNING MILL.
THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!
Farmers Look to Your Interest!

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public.

It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras—EUREKA!—signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by
