Grapes and Their Easy Culture.

It is surprising that so many families in the country are willing to live year after year without cultivating a single grape vine about their dwellings. They are compelled to purchase this delicious fruit for the table, or not taste it during the season. There is a common impression that to cultivate grapes perfectly, a vast amount of knowledge and tact is required. To many the simple trimming of a vine is a mystery, more difficult to comprehend than the hardest problem of Euclid. This is an erroneous view, and ought not to prevail. Any person of common intelligence can learn in an hour how to trim and nourish vines; and, if instruction cannot be obtained from some experienced cultivator, there are books filled with cuts and illustrations which make everything plain. Three vines of as many different varieties, planted in some sunny nook, or by the side of some building, so as to obtain shelter, will, if properly cared for, furnish many a bushel of delicious grapes every year. Select a Concord, a Delaware and an Adirondack; make the ground mellow and rich by the use of a spade, and by employing old manure, finely ground bones, and ashes; and set out the plants. In three years the rich clusters will appear, and in four years the product will be abundant. It is well to have vines planted so that the waste liquid from the dwelling can be used in fertilization. If there is any food the vine especially loves it is the soapy liquids which accumulate on washing days in families. Vines drenched every week with these liquids will flourish astonishingly, and extend themselves so as to cover large buildings, every branch bearing fruit. We say to our readers, plant vines.—From Science of Health.

How to Get Plenty of Eggs.

Dwight, of Hudson, Michigan, writes to the Germantown Telegraph:

"I fed my hens plenty of corn and got but few eggs. I reasoned upon the matter, and happened to think that the constituent part of milk and the whites of eggs were much alike. Now, it has long been known to milkmen that wheat middlings and bran are about the best of any feed to make a cow give milk; why, not, then, the best then to make the hens lay eggs? I tried it, and since then have had no trouble.

"My mode of preparing the food is to mix about five parts of the bran with one of middlings. In the morning I mix up with water about four quarts of the mixture in a large tin pan, taking pains to have it rather dry, though all damp.—This I set in a warm, sunny spot, south of their shed, and they walk up, take a few dips, don't seem to fancy it like corn, and start off on a short hunt for something better, but always coming round in a short time for a few dips from the dish of bran. There is but little time during the whole day but what one or more are standing by the pan and freely helping themselves. At night, just before they repair to roost, I usually throw them about a pint of shelled corn, well scattered, so that each one can get a few kernels. If your hens don't incline to eat the bran at first, sprinkle some Indian meal on it. I would like all who complain of not getting eggs to try my plan, and I think they will never be sorry."

Osage Hedges.

It is as yet an open question among some of our best and most practical farmers, whether osage orange hedges pay with fencing timber at present prices.

One fault which all hedges have, is that of exhausting the soil for a considerable distance on either side of them. Admitting that we can plow as close to the hedge as to a post and rail fence, still we find the plow cutting and turning up osage roots ten feet out in the field. This must necessarily lead to more or less exhaustion of the soil, and hence a loss to the crops. The annual labor of keeping the hedge in good order is more than that of keeping a good post and rail fence in good condition when first cost of the timber is not taken into consideration.

Those who have osage hedges are, we find, about equally divided in their opinion as to their economy. One of my friends says, with regard to his hedges, that in planting so much hedge has entailed so much labor on posterity. The objection, if applicable at all, is so with regard to all hedges, but, we think, particularly so with regard to the osage oranges.

Age of Cows.—A cow's age may be determined by the teeth, but the horns are the surest method. Count the rings around the horn and add to this number three years, which is the lapse of time before any rings make their appearance.

A correspondent of the Iowa Homestead says he set, in 1840, two oak fence posts, from the same tree. The one set but end down rotted off in thirteen years, the other is as good as ever.

Colonel King, of Texas, has a snug little farm of 84,132 acres, whereon are pastured 65,000 horned cattle, 10,000 horses, 7,000 sheep and 8,000 goats.

How to get Along.—Do not stop to tell stores in business hours.

If you have a place of business, be found there when wanted.

No man can get rich by sitting around stores and saloons.

Never "fool" in business matters.

Have order, system, regularity, and promptness.

Do not meddle with business you know nothing of.

Never buy an article you do not need, simply because it is cheap, and the man who sells will take it out in trade.

Trade is money.

Strive to avoid hard words and personalities.

Do not kick every stone in the path.—More miles can be made in a day by going steadily on than by stopping.

Pay as you go.

A man of honor respects his word as he does his bond.

Aid, but never beg.

Help others when you can, but never give what you cannot afford to, simply because it is fashionable.

Learn to say "no." No necessity of snapping it out dog-fashion, but say it firmly and respectfully.

Have few confidants—fewer the better.

Use your own brains rather than those of others.

Learn to think and act for yourself.

Be vigilant.

Keep ahead rather than behind the times.

Young men, cut this out, and if there be folly in the argument, let us know.

A Narrow Escape.—"See there!" exclaimed a returned Irish soldier to a gaping crowd, as he exhibited with some pride a hat with a bullet hole in it.—"Look at that hole will you? You see that if it had been a low-crown hat, I should have been killed outright!"

THE EUREKA FANNING MILL.

THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!

Farmers Look to Your Interest!

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public.

It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras—EUREKA!—signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by the inventor himself. It embraces the three great essentials necessary in every invention:

It combines ECONOMY, UTILITY and PRACTICABILITY!

THE "EUREKA" MILL

is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented.

IT IS THE ONLY MILL

that will successfully remove from wheat all such pests as Cockle, Garlic, Oats, Rye, &c.

Should an extra quality of grain for seed or gristing purposes be required, it can be so arranged as to catch in one box perfect grain, and in the other, grain fit for market or mill. Here is made a great saving usually lost sight of: for nearly one quarter of the grain cleaned in the common Mills is lost when sown, on account of shrunken kernels and inferior grain. The Eureka Mill saves all this, and gives seed every kernel of which will grow when put into the ground, and this saving will, in a hort time, pay for the Mill.

HINES & BURCHINAL,

Chestertown, Maryland,

Owners of the Mill, are having them manufactured at the Sash Factory and Planing Mill of Noland & Co., Port Deposit, Md., which is a guarantee that they will be put up in the best manner. je17-tf.

Caution.—The popularity of "Excelsior," as the only reliable substitute for Peruvian Guano, has induced unscrupulous parties in this and other cities to use our trade mark—"Excelsior"—to sell their worthless compounds. Every bag of genuine "Excelsior" has our name on it in RED LETTERS. All others are counterfeits.
