Political Items.

The Best of his Letters.

Horace Greeley has written many good things, but none surpass, we think none equal in spirit and vigor, the letter in which he replied to the New York club that threatened him with expulsion, when he and Gerrit Smith and others signed the Jefferson Davis bail bond. This was not the letter of a politician or a nominee for office. It was written five years ago. The date of it is May 23, 1867. But it anticipates and fully warrants the attitude of Horace Greeley, now on the platform of Cincinnati and Baltimore. After referring to other declarations consistent with it, the letter thus concludes, with a prophecy of the way in which his act would come to be regarded—a prophecy already fulfilled:

Gentlemen:—I shall not attend your meeting this evening. I have an engagement out of town and shall keep it. I do not recognize you as capable of judging or even fully apprehending me. You evidently regard me as a weak sentimentalist, mislead by a maudlin philosophy. I arraign you as narrow-minded blockheads, who would like to be useful to a great and good cause but don't know how. Your attempts to base a great, enduring party on the hate and wrath necessarily engendered by a bloody civil war, is as though you should plant a colony on an iceberg which had somehow drifted into a tropical ocean. I tell you here that out of a life earnestly devoted to the good of human kind, your children will select my going to Richmond and signing that bail bond as the wisest act, and will feel that it did more for freedom and humanity than all of you were competent to do, though you lived to the age of Methusaleb. I ask nothing of you, then, but that you proceed to your end by a direct, frank, manly way. Don't sidle off into a mild resolution of censure, but move the expulsion which I deserve, if I deserve any reproach whatever. All I care for is that you make this a square stand-up fight, and record your judgment by yeas and nays. I care not how few vote with me, nor how many vote against me; for I know that the latter will repent it in dust and ashes before three years have passed. Understand once for all, that I dare you and defy you, and that I propose to fight it out on the line that I have held from the day of Lee's surrender. So long as any man was seeking to overthrow our government, he was my enemy; from the hour in which he laid down his arms, he was my formerly erring countryman. So long as any is opposed to the national unity, the federal authority, or to that assertion of the equal rights of all men, which has become practically identified with loyalty and nationality, I shall do my best to deprive him of power; but when he ceases to be thus, I demand his restoration to all the privileges of American citizenship. I give you fair notice that I shall urge the re-enfranchisement of those now proscribed for rebellion so soon as I shall feel confident that this course is consistent with the freedom of the blacks and the unity of the republic, and that I shall demand a recall of all now in exile only for participating in the rebellion, whenever the country shall have been so thoroughly pacified that its safety will not thereby be endangered.—And, so, gentlemen, hoping that you will henceforth comprehend me somewhat better than you have done. I remain, yours,

May 23, 1867. HORACE GREELEY.

WHAT MR. GREELEY IS AND WILL DO.—Hon. Judge J. S. Black, of Pennsylvania, ex-United States Attorney General, in a letter to W. H. Welsh, Esq., one of the editors of the Baltimore Gazette, presents an able review of the political situation. He draws a striking contrast between General Grant and Horace Greeley, summarizes the effect of republican legislislation, and concludes that it is the duty of the democracy to support Mr. Greeley. He says:

I have looked into his past history only to ascertain what he is now and what he is likely to be in the future. I am bound to care nothing for his "antecedents," except as they furnish the means of estimating his character. I think I have found out with reasonable certainty how far we may confide in him. I devoutly believe that, if chosen President, he will keep his oath, preserve the constitution inviolate, execute the laws faithfully, restore the States to their rightful autonomy, protect individual liberty by jury trial and habeas corpus, put the military in proper subordination to the civil authority, use neither force nor fraud to carry elections, keep his hands clean from corrupting gifts, set his face like a flint against all manner of financial dishonesty, purify the administration of justice as much as in him lies, maintain the public credit by a prompt discharge of all just obligations, economize the revenue and lighten taxation, give to capital the rights which belong to it, and at the same time see that labor is not robbed of its earnings. He will certainly hold his power of appointment as a public trust, and not as a part of his personal possessions, to be used for the support of his family, or to encourage the private liberality of his friends. He will, so far as he can without transgressing the limits of his legal authority, relieve the Southern States from the gangs that are now preying upon their vitals in open partnership with the present administration.

I think he will do all this; and my faith is founded on the testimony of his friends and enemies, on the known facts of his history, and on the moral influence which the democracy will necessarily exert upon his conduct. The errors of his past life were caused by certain evil communications, from which he has clean escaped. He heads a great revolt against wickedness in high places, and I do not believe he will go back upon us and be guilty of the same wickedness himself. The contrast between the two candidates being so very strong, no fair-minded democrat can doubt what he ought to do.

CHLOROFORMING SEA LIONS.—There is an old salt hereabouts known as Captain Eastman who makes a regular business of catching sea lions alive. There is a large and constantly increasing demand for these pets from Eastern showmen, and Captain Eastman now has a schooner out on a hunt for a whopper for a man named Barnum, who runs a small side-show in New York. The animals are usually lassoed, though sometimes chloroform is used. A great many are killed after being lassoed—if they reach the water—the lassoes stopping their breath and drowning them. The captain has one now caged which weighs nearly 2,500 pounds. The best plan of catching them is by the use of chloroform, which renders them powerless; but they require an immense amount of this costly drug. The captain is now making a mammoth net, with which he believes he can capture them cheaper and better than by any other method.—San Francisco Chronicle.

CHEAP Funerals are now advertised in London, where a person can be shrouded, coffined and buried, with four experienced mourners for about twenty dollars.

THE EUREKA FANNING MILL.

THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!

Farmers Look to Your Interest!

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public.

It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras—EUREKA!—signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by the inventor himself. It embraces the three great essentials necessary in every invention:

It combines ECONOMY, UTILITY and PRACTICABILITY!

THE "EUREKA" MILL

Is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented.

IT IS THE ONLY MILL

that will successfully remove from wheat all such pests as Cockle, Garlic, Oats, Rye, &c.

Should an extra quality of grain for seed or gristing purposes be required, it can be so arranged as to catch in one box perfect grain, and in the other, grain fit for market or mill. Here is made a great saving usually lost sight of: for nearly one quarter of the grain cleaned in the common Mills is lost when sown, on account of shrunken kernels and inferior grain. The Eureka Mill saves all this, and gives seed every kernel of which will grow when put into the ground, and this saving will, in a short time, pay for the Mill.

HINES & BURCHINAL,

Chestertown, Maryland,

Owners of the Mill, are having them manufactured at the Sash Factory and Planing Mill of Noland & Co., Port Deposit, Md., which is a guarantee that they will be put up in the best manner. jel7-tf.
