A Ghost Worth Having Around.

The Bridgeport (Conn.) Farmer says that city possesses a wonderful materializing medium. The story is as follows: "It was only a few weeks ago that the person to whom we refer became conscious of his peculiar powers, but since the discovery he has continued to exercise them and they have rapidly developed. Thus far the seances have been held in the presence of a small party of his acquaintances, in a darkened room which, with the exception of a small table, is utterly destitute of furniture. No believer in spiritualism has yet attended these sittings, so that it cannot be said that any of his audience were unduly prepared to give credence to the genuineness of the manifestations, and yet all of the spectators with whom we have conversed are convinced that there was no collusion or trickery in the effects produced. One of the remarkable feats performed by the spirits is the bringing upon the table a supply of fresh tropical flowers. The flowers exhale a beautiful fragrance, are fresh with dew, and of varieties which cannot be procured in this vicinity. The members of the circle the other evening were also regaled with splendid cigars dropped upon the table by spirit visitors, and the medium himself was refreshed a day or two ago with a plate of ice-cream furnished by the same mysterious agency. The medium can also materialize the spirits so that they become visible to those in the room. The spirits also play on musical instruments and write messages on the wall and table, which to the ordinary observers are mere hieroglyphics, but to the spiritual vision of the medium are really intelligible. This is only a small part of what we are assured has been accomplished, but it serves to indicate the marvelous character of the whole. We do not pretend to relate the above as facts, or expect that they will receive general credence, but are perfectly convinced of the honesty of intention and good faith of our informants. The medium is a tailor by occupation, and, it is said, could not accomplish the feats mentioned by slight of hand, even if desirous of so doing. He is only 22 years of age, and his associates and employer say he is perfectly frank and honest. He was never previously interested in spiritualism, and found out his capabilities only by accident. He decidedly objects to notoriety; and does not intend to give any public exhibitions, and says he soon intends to relinquish all intercourse with the spirit world."

A REPORTER of the New York Sun has been perambulating the Peninsula and interviewing the peach orchards, and after describing the immense orchards of Gen. Van Vorst, near Milford, Col. Wilkins and J. S. Harris, near Chestertown, and S. F. Shallcross, near Middletown, whose orchards embrace from 1000 to 2000 acres each, concludes with the following general discription of the Peninsula:

Nearly all of the peaches that reach the New York market are raised on the peninsula that is surrounded by the Chesapeake bay on the west and southwest, the Atlantic on the east and southeast, and Delaware bay and river on the northeast. The neck of this tract is twelve miles wide. From this point it extends southward a hundred and eighty miles, tapering off at Cape Charles. The peninsula broadens, from the neck, to an average width of about fifty miles, expands near the centre to seventy miles, and then quickly narrows again to a strip ten or fifteen miles long and seventy miles wide. This tip forms the counties of Accomac and Northampton, in Virginia. North of the tip, and between it and Delaware's southern line are three counties in Maryland, Worcester, Somerset, and Wicomico. On the eastern shore of the Chesapeake are the Maryland counties of Dorchester, Talbot, Caroline, Queen Anne's, Kent, and Cecil, forming more than half of the peninsula. All the remainder of the peach tract is in Delaware. The area of the tract is about 6,000 square miles, of which four-ninths are in Maryland, three-ninths in Delaware, and two-ninths in Virginia. The population is about 300,000.

At Westover, on the Eastern Shore, a hundred and twenty miles from Wilmington, is a cluster of old English estates. Of these, Westover contains 750 acres; and the third, Workington, 313 acres.—There are three fine old houses on these estates, built of brick imported from England more than a century ago, and the interior woodwork, of carved oak, was also wrought in England. Before the war, the proprietors of these estates had five hundred slaves each, but now they are fine peach orchards, Arlington having 10,000 trees.

THE SITUATION IN NORTH CAROLINA.—Mr. Charles Nordhoff, of the New York Herald staff, has shifted his ground to North Carolina, and there a different situation confronts him from any that he has studied in the South. North Carolina, he declares, is at peace, and he makes this declaration on the authority of the ablest and foremost republicans in the State, one of whom said to him: "The democrats mean no violence, no wrong to any one, no hostility to the government; there is no practical crime in the State; there is no intimidation by the whites; they only mean to defeat the radicals and keep them down, and they dislike negro rule." Both black and white republicans of the more intelligent classes said that enforcement acts were no longer of any use in North Carolina, and a prominent colored man and politician told Mr. Nordhoff that he was convinced that the civil rights bill had done serious harm to his people. The republicans acknowledge that if they are defeated next month their party organization in that State will be pretty thoroughly destroyed, and they will make a desperate struggle for their salvation. Mr. Nordhoff's opinion is as follows: "I do not hesitate to say that any northern republican, desirous that the State shall be prosperous, and that a permanent political settlement should come about in it, may safely wish for the defeat of the republicans here in the August election."

If you are in trouble with Dyspepsia, pain in the region of the Heart, Liver or Kidneys, or any other painful symptoms, do not wait to confirm the disease, but break it up at once by using Dr. Bull's Vegetable Pills. You will thank us for advice.

Is Your Life worth 10 Cents?

Sickness prevails everywhere, and everybody complains of some disease during their life. When sick, the object is to get well, now we say plainly that no person in this world that is suffering with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and its effects, such as Indigestion, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Heart burn, Palpitation of the Heart, Depressed Spirits, Biliousness, &c., can take Green's August Flower without getting relief and cure. If you doubt this, go to your Druggist C. F. STAM & BRO., and get a Sample Bottle for 10 cts. and try it. Regular size 75 cents. Two doses will relieve you.
