Cider as a Medicine.

That this beverage has wrought some wonderful cures, is susceptible of the most positive proof. Its hourly, or even daily use as the most common drink is not what I here refer to, but its use in certain cases of debility, derangement of the liver, and chronic diarrhœa, has, in many cases, had a most marked effect. Especially in the long lingering debility that follows intermittent and remittent fevers has it been used with decided success. It has even been said that good health depends mainly, so far as what is taken into the stomach is concerned, in the proper supply of acids and alkalies. The acids of cider are mainly malic, but I have good authority for saying that it contains lactic, which is the acid of milk. It is at least a singular coincidence that some perceive the same effect upon digestion from cider and milk. The writer was witness to the cure of a case of the most obstinate chronic diarrhœa, effected in one day by a pint of hard cider administered in two doses, while another sudden and violent attack in another person, was cured the same day by a small dose of bi-carbonate of soda. Two other cases of remarkable cures from cider I will relate. Mrs. H., as reported to me by herself, had a lingering cough with loss of appetite, and a general decline, and was supposed by herself and friends to be rapidly approaching her end, with consumption. On a visit to her father, she saw him come from the cellar with a pitcher of cider, and asked for a drink, which had so good an effect that she continued its use for a few weeks, in which time she fully recovered. This and the following were doubtless cases of affection of the liver.

Some 15 years since, in my walk from my residence to my place of business, I met S. M., whom I knew to have lately returned from the army. His countenance showed a bad condition of the liver, his gait showed great debility, and I looked forward to the day when I should meet him no more. In answer to my inquiries, he said he had been treated by several physicians without benefit. I advised him—(not professionally, oh, no!)—try some hard cider, but to be very cautious, for I thought he was far gone. Meeting him two days after, and asking him of the effect of his new medicine, he replied, "First rate! I drank a full glass of what you brought me with a keen relish, went to bed and slept soundly all night, a thing I have not done before for months." He then told me his case was one of chronic diarrhœa, contracted in the army. I had the satisfaction of seeing him fat and hearty in a few weeks, and of hearing that his physician said to him, "It was the cider that cured you; I had done all I could for you." It is not claimed that either this remedy or alkalies will be effectual in all cases. Acids in the stomach are necessary to healthy digestion, and when the food for a long time has failed to supply them or the stomach from disease has failed to supply them then the deficiency must be made up in the food or beverage. In these cases the appetite is a very good guide if not depraved with bad habits. If a little soda is swallowed and it effervesces and causes an escape of gas from the mouth, it is pretty good evidence that acids are not required. If no gas escapes, it is at least a strong hint that acids may do good.—S. P. Peck.

Singing Mice.

In Nature was recently published an account of a singing mouse. A correspondent gives us his testimony to a fact which is rare, though as certain as that canaries sing. A few winters since, while one of his family was amusing herself at the piano, a mouse made his appearance at the threshhold of the apartment, and, undismayed by the light or presence of the family, chirped and carolled with intense satisfaction to itself, and to the great delight of its audience. Frequently afterward, but always in the evening, the rare songster repeated his performance. The piano keys were never struck that the mouse did not follow: but when the instrument was not touched, the music from the mouse would come, as if for a reminder. Sometimes the little animal made himself visible and sometimes was hidden in the pantry which, for reasons obvious to housekeepers, he, she or it had selected as an abode. One evening the mouse was traced to the stairway.—Under the carpet sat the little creature, throwing his soul in his song. A lamp was placed beside him, and the family stood and looked and listened for half an hour or more. His head was up, and the movement of the muscles of his throat were plainly visible. Unfortunately our correspondent undertook to capture the singer. Many mice were caught and each was given twenty-four hours grace to sing for its life. But never after the treachery of the trap was the sound of the mouse's carol heard. If caught he died and made no sign.—Scientific American.

He Knew Him.

A police inspector on being informed that a restauranteur in his bailiwick was serving game out of season, visits the restaurant in mufti, and orders dinner. "Waiter," says he "can't you give me a salmi of partridge?"

"Sartingly, sir," replies the waiter promptly, and yells to the cook, 'Partridge for one.'

The inspector finished his dinner leisurely, and then says to the waiter, "Ask the boss to step this way a minute."

"What for?"

"I wish to notify him to appear in court to-morrow, and answer for shooting partridges out of season."

"O, I guess it ain't worth while bothering him about that."

"Do as I tell you. I am police inspector, and have secured the necessary evidence against him."

"O, I spotted you and guessed what you were after. It wasn't partridge you had."

Police inspector (uneasily)—"What was it then?"

Waiter (cheerfully)—"Crow."

THE consciousness of being loved softens the keenest pang, even at the moment of parting; yes, even the internal farewell is robbed of half its bitterness when uttered in accents that breathe love to the last sigh.—Addison.

By Universal Accord, AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious and successful chemical investigations, and their extensive use, by Physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative Pill that medical science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other Pills can be compared with them, and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are specially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

Poultry-Keeping—How to Begin.

There is a very general desire to engage in keeping poultry. The business does not require hard work; and is attractive and agreeable. It also promises to be profitable, and profit is the chief inducement to the majority of the novices who desire to attempt it. A few general cautions are needed by those who would undertake this business.

A novice can not, by the mere use of money, take up poultry-keeping and make a success. On the contrary, he will be more than likely to lose all the money he invests, if he supposes that the business consists only in buying some fowls and feed, and in selling eggs and chickens, by simply permitting the hens to produce eggs while he gathers them. Success only comes to the long experienced poultry man who knows precisely what is to be done to secure this result. It is best to begin with a few fowls, making their keeping a secondary business, until this can be managed with success and profit. Then the number may be increased, and when the business pays sufficiently, then sole attention may be given to it. It is more profitable to purchase fowls than eggs. This is a simple matter of figuring. If a dozen of eggs of choice fowls are procured at a cost of say $5, a year may elapse before any profit can be gained from the three or four pullets that may probably be hatched from them. If a trio of birds are purchased at a cost of $20 now, a number of eggs will be procured before setting time arrives, and then each hen may bring out a brood of eight or ten chicks. After these are raised, more eggs will be laid, and if good care is given, there may be on the whole 20 dozen of eggs, ten pullets and ten cockerels, as the produce of this trio within the same time that it would have taken, from the dozen of eggs first mention, to produce three or four pullets. There is an obvious difference in favor of beginning with birds, both as to profit or time.—American Agriculturist.

WHAT AILED HIM?—Tim, the newsboy, was seen coming out of a store the other day with a box of paper collars in his hand, and as two or three of his associates were very inquisitive as to what he was going to do with them, he answered with considerable pomposity:

"I shall appear in one of them this very afternoon, and regularly thereafter until death."

"Ho! ho! ho!" they sneered, "but ain't you just flinging on the style though! You've allus looked as mean and ragged as any of us, and now all at once you begin to prance around and wear paper collars."

"Yes, all to once my sister is going to get married, and all to once the old lady has bought a sewing machine, and a big accordin on trust, and all to once my dad has been on three coroner's juries, and fixing things to run for constable, and all to once I am going to keep up the end of my family if it takes my last dollar, and that's what ails me."

RYDER'S boy writes as follows about the ocean: "The ocean is generally called the see and sometimes the ragin mane ships sale on the ocean and when a tornado blows a hole throu them they are cassed away and then they are called racks. It is more dangerus to sale on the ocean than to sale on the land I should like to be a saler but not a pirat for pirats is very wicked my Uncle william went to see once and a pirat ship come along and histed a black flag and killed all the cru and he jumped over bord and swum a hundred miles on to an iland and the natives was going to jab a stick into him and rost him but he seen a ship a coming and tide his shirt onto a pole and waved it and the ship seen him and lowered away and took him off when I get big enuff bet yer life I'll go to see."—Boston Herald.

A YANKEE wooing, in which the sweetness was long drawn out, has ended in a law suit for room rent and lights. A long time ago a shoemaker in Harom, N. H., began to pay attentions to a young lady who sighed and smiled for him to speak out. The days passed, the weeks rattled on, the months swept by, the years marched on with stately tread, the terrestrial ball rolled on in the roomy universe, and the shoemaker was still wooing. Four years after the courtship opened the stepfather of the maid lost patience, and forbade the deliberate lover to come again to his cozy parlor. Then he brought suit against the fellow for room rent, fuel and lights, estimating his damages at $300. Tardy suitor, take warning! Loafing is not loving.

BISHOP CLARK, of Rhode Island, always will have his joke, and it's always worth having, too. He once went to see one of his parishioners, a lady with a prodigious family, which recently had been increased. As he arose to leave the lady stopped him with, "But you havn't seen my last baby." "No," he quickly replied, and I never expect to!" Then he fled.

"IT SEEMS as if I should cough my head off," is sometimes the impatient exclamation of a sufferer from a very severe cough. Quell the paroxysms with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar. The relief is immediate and the cure certain.—Sold by all Druggists. Pike's Toothache Drops cure in 1 minute.

"NOTHING," remarked a teacher of botany the other day, "Nothing will come up when the ground is frozen." If the teacher will just try to put the crupper on a bay mule when it is feeling a little dyspeptic, he will discover that there are things which come up like rockets without any regard to the weather.

ALL who are troubled with Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat and other affections of the throat and lungs will find it to their advantage to get a bottle of Leary's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar, and be cured in a short time. Only 35 cents a bottle. 9-2.

A DETROIT boy stood an umbrella, with a cord tied to it, in a public doorway. Eleven persons thought that umbrella was theirs, and carried with them the length of the string. They then suddenly dropped it and went off without once looking back or stopping to pick it up again.

A FARMER went one day to a Western justice of the peace and said he wanted a writ. "Against whom?" asked the justice. "I don't care who it's agen," replied the farmer; "the cattle have broken in and trod down all my corn, and I want a writ."—Hartford Courant.

A GENTLE HINT.

In our style of climate, with its sudden changes of temperature.—rain, wind and sunshine often intermingled in a single day,—it is no wonder that our children, friends and relatives are so frequently taken from us by neglected colds, half the deaths resulting directly from this cause. A bottle of Boschee's German Syrup kept about your home for immediate use will prevent serious sickness, a large doctor's bill, and perhaps death, by the use of three or four doses. For curing Consumption, Hemorrhages, Pneumonia, Severe Coughs, Croup or any other disease of the Throat or Lungs, its success is simply wonderful, as your druggist will tell you. German Syrup is now sold in every town and village on this continent. Sample bottles for trial, 10c.; regular size, 75c.

VEGETINE.

HER OWN WORDS.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 13, 1877.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:—Dear Sir: Since several years I have got a sore and very painful foot. I had some physicians, but they couldn't cure me. Now I have heard of your VEGETINE from a lady who was sick for a long time, and became all well from your Vegetine, and I went and bought me one bottle of Vegetine; and after I had used one bottle, the pains left me, and it began to heal, and then I bought one other bottle, and so I take it yet. I thank God for this remedy and yourself; and wishing every sufferer may pay attention to it. It is a blessing for health.

MRS. C. KRABE, 638 West Balt. street.

VEGETINE

SAFE AND SURE.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:—In 1872 your VEGETINE was recommended to me, and yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time I was suffering from nervous debility and general prostration, superinduced by overworking and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose; and under its persistent use I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not hesitated to give Vegetine my most unqualified indorsement, as being a safe, sure, and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. VEGETINE is the only medicine I use; and as long as I live I never expect to find a better.

Yours truly, W. H. CLARK,
120 Monterey St., Alleghany, Penn.

VEGETINE

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

CHARLESTOWN.

H. R. STEVENS:—Dear Sir: This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that for Scrofula or Cankerous Humors or Rheumatic affections it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine. Yours, respectfully,

MRS. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russell Street.

VEGETINE.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

BOSTON, Feb. 13, 1871.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.—Dear Sir: About one year since I found myself in a feeble condition from general debility. Vegetine was strongly recommended to me by a friend who had been much benefited by its use. I procured the article, and after using several bottles, was restored to health, and discontinued its use. I feel quite confident that there is no medicine superior to it for those complaints for which it is especially prepared, and would cheerfully recommend it to those who feel that they need something to restore them to perfect health. Respectfully, yours,

U. L. PETTENGILL,
Firm of S. M. Pettengill & Co.,
No. 10 State st., Boston.

VEGETINE.

ALL HAVE OBTAINED RELIEF.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.

Dear Sir:—I have had Dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicines without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the Vegetine, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking Vegetine, and all have obtained relief.

Yours truly, THOMAS E. MOORE.

RICHARD BOYER,
vs.
THOMAS JONES AND WIFE, et al.

In the Circuit Court for Kent county, in Equity, January Term, 1878.

THE object of the Bill filed in the above entitled case is to procure a Decree for the sale of certain real estate and its appurtenances, lying and situate in Chestertown, Kent county, Maryland, which is particularly described in said Bill.

The Bill states that a certain Jack Salter, late of Kent county, deceased, was in his life time seized and possessed of a certain lot or part of a lot of land in Chestertown and known on the plot of said town as part of lot No 44, and being so thereof seized and possessed, some time in the year 18—, departed this life intestate, leaving certain persons in said Bill named his only children and heirs at law.

The Bill further states that Mary Salter, one of the children and heirs at law as aforesaid, intermarried with a certain Richard Boyer, both of whom are since deceased, leaving children; Eliza Boyer, who has intermarried with a certain Isaiah Jones of Baltimore city; Emily Boyer, who has intermarried with a certain Step Sprittle, of Baltimore city; Charles Boyer and your orator in this Bill, Richard Boyer; Lizzie Ann Salter intermarried with a certain Thomas Jones of Kent county; Betsy Salter intermarried with a certain George Brown, who has since departed this life; Caroline Salter died unmarried, leaving an illegitimate child, Charles Salter, who is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, all above the age of twenty-one years.

The Bill further states that the said Jack Salter, during his life time made advances to his daughters Lizzie Ann and Betsy, though he never gave to either of them any equitable title thereto; that after his demise, by mutual consent of all parties interested, the balance of his real estate was seized and possessed by the two other daughters, Mary and Caroline as tenants in common; that the said Mary and Caroline are since deceased, leaving the aforesaid married children and heirs at law who are seized and possessed of the right of their deceased parent as tenants in common.

The Bill further shows that the said real estate is not susceptible of [illegible] amount [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] That [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
