Maryland a Mecca During Garden Week

Ninety-one gardens, homes and public buildings of historic interest were opened throughout the State during Maryland's Garden Week, which closed Thursday, and was sponsored by the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland.

Many hundreds of visitors poured into all sections of the State. Arrangements had been made for the opening of private estates which at other times of the year were not available to the public, and many of which have not hitherto been open. Approximately 40 more places were opened this year than were to be seen in the last pilgrimage in 1931.
