SATURDAY ..... NOV. 6, 1880.

AN INDEPENDENT FARMER.

Let sailors sing the windy deep,
Let soldiers praise their armor;
But in my heart this toast I'll keep,
The Independent Farmer.
When first the rose, in robe of green,
Unfolds its crimson lining,
And 'round his homely porch is seen
The honeysuckle twining.
When banks of bloom their sweetness yield
To bees that gather honey,
He drives the team across the field,
Where skies are soft and sunny.

The blackbird clucks behind his ploughs,
The quail pipes loud and clearly;
Yon orchard hides behind its boughs
The home he loves so dearly;
The gray old barn, whose doors enfold
His ample store in measure,
More rich than heaps of hoarded gold,
A precious, blessed treasure;
But yonder on the porch there stands
His wife, the lovely charmer,
The sweetest rose on all his lands;
The Independent Farmer.

To him the spring comes dancing day,
To him the summer blushes,
The autumn smiles with mellow ray,
His sleep the winter hushes;
He cares not how the world may move,
No doubts or fears confound him;
He smiles in calm content and love
On children gathered 'round him.
He trusts in God, and loves his wife,
Nor grief, nor ill may harm her,
He's nature's nobleman in life—
The Independent Farmer.

Overworked Hearts.

No organ in the body is so liable to be overworked as the heart. When every other part of the body sleeps, it keeps on the perpetual motion. Every increased effort or action demands from the heart more force. A man runs to catch a train and his heart beats audibly. He drinks wine, and the blood rushes through its reservoir faster than ever was intended by nature. His pulse rises after each course at dinner. A telegram arrives, and his heart knocks at his side. And when any one of these "excitements" is over, he is conscious of a corresponding depression—a sinking of emptiness as it is called. The healthy action of all members of our frame depends upon the supply of blood received from the central fountain. When the heart's action is arrested the stomach, which requires from it a large supply of blood, becomes enfeebled. The brain also waiting for the blood, is inactive. The heart is a very willing member, but if it be made to fetch and carry incessantly, if it be "put upon," as the unselfish member of a family often is, it undergoes a disorganization which is equivalent to its rupture. And this disorganization begins too often nowadays in the hearts of very young children. Parents know that if their sons are to succeed at any of those competitive examinations which have now become so exigent, high pressure is employed. Hence young persons are stimulated to overwork by rewards and punishments. The sight of a clever boy being trained for competition is truly a very sad one.

The precocious, coached-up children are never well. Their mental excitement keeps up a flush, which, like the excitement caused by strong drink in older children, looks like health, but has no relation to it; in a word, the intemperance of education is overstraining and breaking their young hearts. If in the school room some hearts are broken from mental strain, in the playground and in the gymnasium others succumb to physical strain.

The Lord's Prayer.

Did you ever think, short though it is, how much there is in it? Oh, it is beautiful! Like a diamond in the crown of a queen, it unites a thousand sparkling gems in one.

It teaches all of us, every one of us, to look to God as our parent—Our Father.

It prompts us to raise our thoughts and desires above the earth—Who art in Heaven.

It tells us that we must reverence our Heavenly Father—Hallowed be thy name.

It breathes the saints' reward—Thy kingdom come.

And a submissive, obedient spirit—Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven.

And a dependent, trusting spirit—Give us this day our daily bread.

And a forgiving spirit—Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.

And a cautious spirit—Deliver us from evil.

And last of all, an adoring spirit—For thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

Bob Ingersoll, in defending himself from the charge of drunkenness, says: "I don't pretend to be a teetotaler. I heard a story the other day that illustrates my position: There was an Irishman who joined the Sons of Temperance, and a few days afterward one of his friends saw him in a saloon with a glass about half full of whiskey in his hand. Said he: 'Pat, I thought you were a teetotaler?' 'So I am,' said Pat, 'but thank God, I am no bigot.'"

In England the cost of raising a bushel of wheat is in round figures $1.50. From a number of records kept in Minnesota and Kansas the average cost per bushel, counting all material, labor and interest on investment, was about forty-five cents per bushel. Allowing forty-five cents for carrying the wheat to England, the cost would be ninety cents delivered. These figures are significant and speak for themselves.

A doctor, being out for a day's shooting, took an errand boy to carry the game bag. Entering a field of turnips, the dog pointed, and the boy, enjoyed at the prospect of his master's success, exclaimed, "Lor, master, there's a covy; if you get near 'em won't you physic 'em!" "Physic 'em, you young rascal, what do you mean?" said the doctor. "Why kill 'em, be sure," replied the lad.

In the sight of God no man is poor but he who is wanting in goodness, and no man rich but him who abounds in virtue.

MALTBY HOUSE,
BALTIMORE.
Recognizing the fact that the relationship existing between the counties of Maryland and the City of Baltimore is such that residents of the Counties have occasion to visit the city frequently during the year; in consideration of these facts and the liberal patronage extended the "Maltby" in the past, I deem it but a matter of justice that some discrimination should be made in their favor. I have therefore concluded to Reduce Price of Board to $2 per Day feeling confident that the same will be fully appreciated by them, and at same time merit and secure an increased share of their patronage. Assuring them that nothing will be left undone that can add to their comfort during their stay.
