SATURDAY.....JULY 9, 1881.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

A superior remedy for a sore throat is, on retiring to rest, to rub on the outside a little volatile liniment and swallow slowly a few drops of paragoric, letting it dissole in the saliva and spread along down the inflamed parts. The liniment is generally sufficient alone. Volatile liniment is simply a mixture of sweet oil and aqua ammonia (called liquid hartshorn.) Thes are put into a vial and shaken, using such proportion as to form a semi-liquid soap. An ounce or two can be got cheaply at the druggist's, and, if tightly corked, it will keep for months. Rub it on with the fingers. This is also good for soreness of the chest and joints, or for lameness, stiff neck, &c.

An improved kind of glue dressing for wounds has recently been suggested consisting in the addition of acetic acid to ordinary glue and a little ottar of roses to cover the odor of the glue and the acid. This compound, spread on paper or muslin, is found to furnish a good substitute for adhesive plaster in surgical use. It is easily and quickly prepared, simply by putting into a vessel of boiling water a bottle containing one part of glue to four, by measure, of the acid, and letting the bottle remain in this bath until the glue is fully dissolved and mixed with the acid. It is best kept in a wide-mouthed bottle, well closed by a long cork, which can always be removed by heating the neck of the bottle.

Corn silk is said to be an efficient and powerful remedy for dropsy, bladder troubles and diseases of the kidneys. The Louisville Medical News gives an account of the medical properties of corn silk and the cures that have been effected by its use. The way to use it is to take two double handfuls of fresh corn silk and boil in two gallons of water until but a gallon remains. Add sugar to make a syrup. Drink a tumbler of this thrice daily, and it will relieve dropsy by increasing the flow of the urine most enormously. Other diseases of the bladder and kidneys are benefitted by the remedy, which is prompt, efficient and grateful to the stomach. The treatment can be continued for months without danger or inconvenience.

Very few young mothers are able to control their nerves so completely as to keep from being startled when confronted with a cut finger with dripping blood and the loud cries which announce a catastrophe. Sometimes she cannot collect her thoughts sufficiently to recall any of the good remedies with which she is acquainted. One way to avoid this is to write out a list of help in trouble and tack it up on the door of your room, after the manner of hotel regulations. There is nothing better for a cut than powdered rosin. Get a few cents' worth of rosin, pound it until it is fine and put it into an empty, clean paper or spice-box with perforated top; then you can easily sift it out on the cut, put a soft cloth around the injured member and wet it with cold water once in a while. It will prevent inflammation and soreness. In doing up a burn the main point is to keep the air from it. If sweet oil and cotton are not at hand, take a cloth and spread dry flour over it, and wrap the burned part in it. It is always well to have some simple remedies in the house where you can get them without a moment's loss of time; a little bottle of peppermint, in case of colic, chlorate of potash for sore throat, pepsin for indigestion and a bottle of brandy. Have them arranged so that you could go to them in the dark and reach the right remedy, but be sure never to do it, even if you know they have not been disturbed; always light a lamp or the gas, and make sure you have what you are after. Remember that pistols are always loaded and that poison may have been put in the place of the peppermint.

A Pound of Flesh.

A ST. LOUIS MAN WHO COULD HAVE SATISFIED SHYLOCK.

St. Louis Republican.

An interesting surgical operation was performed by Dr. Hodgen on Friday last at a private house, the subject being a well known real estate agent of this city, a pound of adipose tissue being taken from the back of his neck. The patient is a very large man whose weight is now 249 pounds. The fat had begun to gather in such heavy folds about the neck as to become a source of constant annoyance, the head having been crowded forward and held in an unbecoming position. The skin was divided at right angles, so that the wound made a sort of cross from beneath which all the underlying fat was taken. The piece of flesh is said to have weighed exactly one pound.

The patient took nothing to sustain him in the trial, and didn't appear to suffer much, even when the parts were being cauterized to prevent the formation of a new tissue. The wound being closed up and bandaged he lighted a cigar, and ordered the pound of flesh to be cast into the sewer, and sat quietly down to read the paper. Only a few drops of blood were lost and no serious consequences are expected. In fact the patient may be seen taking his customary walks, and appears to enjoy life as much as ever. He expects to be able to attend to business this week as usual, the principal care being taken not to catch cold.

Ma. B. Everett Smith, editor of the Shield, Snow Hill, Md., is to be the manager of the Central Land Agency, with headquarters at Snow Hill, for the sale of farms of all sizes in Worcester county, Md., Accomac county, Va., and Sussex county, Del. There will be branch offices of the agency in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. The parties to this agency have nearly 11,000 acres in about fifty farms in Worcester county alone, and these will be sold on easy terms. All are nicely located, and convenient by railroad and water transportation to Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. The Baltimore American says that people now thinking of going West should change their minds and go down on the Eastern Shore.

Boys and girls do not always think how cheaply they may part with their honor and principle and good name. They may do this in their play, by telling what is not exactly the truth, in order to get the advantage of their mates; or they may do it when giving an account of themselves to their parents after being away from home without permission, or in returning late at night. They may also do it in furnishing excuses to their teachers for absence from school, or for badly recited lessons.

Boys and girls who have been at Sunday school, or who have read their Bible, will remember that Esau, in from the fields and very hungry, sold his "birthright"—his great blessing and privilege—for a "mess of pottage;" and men and women are selling themselves everywhere for what is of very small value and for some very perishable thing. This they do without looking at the consequence as the story told of the farmer who sold a load of corn will show:

"When it was weighed he slyly stepped on the scale, and then drove off to unload. When the wagon was weighed he took good care not to be in it, and congratulated himself that he had cheated the buyer by his own weight. The grain dealer called him in, and after figuring up the load, paid him in full. As he buttoned his coat to go out, the buyer kindly asked him to smoke with him, and then talked over the crops and the prices of hogs, and the likelihood of the Maple Valley railway building up that way, till the farmer fairly squirmed in his chair with uneasiness about his chores at home. At lait, he could stand it no longer, and said he must go. The dealer quietly said that was not to be thought of, that he had bought the farmer at full weight and paid him his own price, and that he would insist on doing as he pleased with his own property. The raiser of corn saw that he had indeed sold himself, in one sense, at least. He acknowledged and compromised the affair. Now when he markets grain he don't stand on the scales."
