The Bird of Baltimore.

The Baltimore Oriole, the beautiful bird which figures so extensively on everything connected with the grand October celebration to be held in Baltimore, is one of the most interest of our summer visitors, and is universally admired, both for the richness of its plumage and the sweetness of its song. It is a thorough-going American bird, and may be seen at favorable seasons of the year all the way from Brazil to the Canadas. It is also called "gold robin," "hang bird" and fire bird. The adult male bird, has the head, neck, forepart of the back, wings and tail black, the quills, except the first, margined with white, the breast and lesser wing covers of a bright orage, tinted with vermilion on the neck and breast. This is the plumage of the third year, before which time the colors are less bright and more or less mixed with olive, brown and white. The orioles enter Louisiana, probably from Mexico, in early spring, and gradually make their way North, to return in autumn. Their motions are very lively and graceful, and they may often be seen clinging by the feet in search of insect, which form their principal article of food in the spring. Their song is a beautiful descant of from four to ten clear, full mellow notes, which make most agreable music to the ear. Their nest is placed at the bottom of a very skillfully constructed network of strings and fibres, suspended like a pouch from the end of a branch, and shaded by over-handing leaves. During migration their flight is high and straight and mostly during the day.

When the first Lord Baltimore visited the shores of the Chesapeake, in 1628, shortly after he was raised to the Irish peerage, he was so much pleased with the combination of colors in the plumage that he adopted them for his own, and the oriole thenceforward became known as the Baltimore oriole.

Whenever Baltimore puts on her holiday apparel the black and gold colors of the oriole may be seen at every turn of the decoration, and in the present instance a representative of the bird and its colors is given on the beautiful posters that meet the eye in every direction, and on the cards of invitation issued to all parts of the country.

The chief feature of the celebration, the grand mystic and allegorical parade on the evening of Tuesday, October 11, has been aptly styled the Oriole Pageant. The Baltimore newspapers and the committee in charge of the celebration were at a loss for a time how to christen their parade, when the mayor of the city came to the rescue and styled it the "Oriole," a name which was at once recognized as the most beautiful and appropriate that could be fournd. The name gave a new significance to the festival and infused into Baltimoreans a new enthusiasm, which has urged them to increased effort to make their festival one that will prove a credit to the reputation of the city and State.

Garments of Spider's Webs.

"Have you seen the dress of spun glass said to have been made in Pittsburg?" was asked a Broadway dealer in curiosities.

"No, I have not. I have tried to get one for my display, but failed. Some years ago I learned of a dress that was made in Brazil out of spider's web, and I would have tried for that, but its probable price and its delicacy made the task a foolish one to undertake. I had kept informed upon the use of the spider's web, and had heard that all the attempts to employ it in the manufacture had failed. The Spaniards tried to make gloves, stockings and handkerchiefs of the thread spun by the spider, but although fabulous sums were offered, the articles proved so troublesome to manufacture that they could not be made at a profit. A traveler told me that it required 700,000 spiders to make a piece of silk. I have heard that in some parts of South America garments made of spider's webs are worn. It may be true, because spiders are large there, but I doubt the story."

"What is the greatest curiosity you ever saw?"

"That is a broad question."

"Well, I mean the most curious article in a lady's toilet."

"It was a fan. It was in a collection of fans now famous. This particular fan was of fine yellow lace, and had richly carved wooden sticks, each stick inlaid with a crescent of clear shell like substance. It was made by a lady of Normandy. The lace was made—well, what do you think it was made of?"

"Spider's web!"

"No," said the collector, laughing. "It was woven from her own golden hair, and the tiny crescents, so highly polished, were the tips of her finger nails."

OLD SHOES.—You probably think that if you look sharply at an old shoe when you throw it away you will know it again if it ever comes back to you. But that doesn't at all follow. One of these days you may button your dress with an old pair of slippers, comb your hair with a boot, or grasp a cast-off gaiter while at your dinner. You don't see how this can be? Well, we'll tell you. Old shoes are turned to account by manufacturers in the following manner: They are cut into very small pieces, and kept for a couple of days in chloride of sulphur. The effect of this is to make the leather hard and brittle. Next the material is withdrawn from the action of the chloride of sulphur, washed with water and dried. When thoroughly dry it is ground to powder, and mixed with some substance like glue or gum, that causes it to adhere together. It is then pressed in molds and shaped into buttons, combs, knife handles, etc. So you see how it may come to pass that you will comb your hair with a boot and fasten your clothes with a slipper.

A MENAGERIE RACE at Singapore recently gave rise to much sport. Any animal could be entered, but it had to be led with a string by the person entering it. The trouble was to make them go straight. In this race there was a frog, a goose, a young pig, a cock, a cat, a dog, a turkey, a duck, a young monkey, and a pelican. The pelican got away and flew up into a tree, so was distanced. The dog made for the pig, and the monkey and the cat lay down and would not move a step. The goose finally won the race, as he was the only one that could be induced to go straight.

MR. GEORGE A. MILLINGTON, proprietor of the Woodland Beach Hotel, is said to have the finest pair of driving mares in Delaware, or on the Peninsula. They drive elegantly together, are well matched, are without spot or blemish, and can trot to a road wagon inside of 2.40. It is said that Mr. Millington has several times refused $1,000 for the pair. Both were bred in Kent county, Del., and are half sisters.

AN artesian well at Ocean City struck a stream of pure, clear water at the depth of 74 feet, which is discharging through a pipe one and a-half inches in diameter at the rate of twenty-five gallons per minute.

"THERE'S some things as old as the hills anyhow," said old Uncle Reuben. "What are they?" asked his neice. "They're the valleys between 'em, child," solemnly answered the old man.

To WHEAT GROWERS.

The undersigned, PIONEER in the manufacture of FERTILIZERS, in this city and ORIGINATOR in 1858 of the formulas and processes of manufacture of

"EXCELSIOR" and Ammoniated Phosphate

So well and favorably known by the agricultural public, relying upon his experience and personal reputation hitherto acquired ni the uniform excellence of these Fertilizers, as manufactured by him, continues to offer them to the Farmers and Planters of Maryland and Virginia, with the assurance that the High Standard Quality of each will be maintained as heretofore.

The above are the most concentrated FERTILIZERS ever offered to the Farmer, combining all the stimulating qualities of Peruvian Guano and the ever durable fertilizing properties of Bones in fine, dry powder, prepared expressly for drilling.

For growing Wheat, it is the universal opinion of the farmers of Maryland and Virginia, after over twenty years' experience in the use of these Fertilizers manufactured by me, that an application of 100 pounds is equal in its effects to 200 lbs. of any other Fertilizer or Guano, therefore fully 50 per cent. cheaper.

With my present advantages and superior facilities for manufacturing, I challenge competition with any Fertilizer sold in the United States, in quality, mechanical condition and price.

By strictly adhering to my original formulas, using only the most concentrated materials and superintending in person their manufacture, as for the past 23 years he was the only one that could be induced to go straight.

Uniform Quality is Guaranteed.

Farmers, to secure the ONLY GENUINE EXCELSIOR and PHOSPHATE prepared according to my original formulas established in 1858, should see that every bag is branded as above, with the ANALYSIS and MY NAME IN RED LETTERS.
