THE PRICE OF HORSES

Automobiles And Bicycles Have Not Displaced Them.

They have talked a good deal about the displacement of the faithful steed, but at present there is a universal scare over the fact that he is so nearly displaced. It takes more money to make the mare go (from one owner to another) these days than ever before when no war was on. In fact, horses are a great deal in price now than they were during the Spanish-American spankfest, and even higher (although not perhaps relatively to the purchasing value of money) than during the Civil War.

The bicycle came along some years ago and scared the horses. Nearly everybody rode one of these horse-frightening instruments. There was prophecy in the way horses shied at a bike, a superstitious hunch in their snorting and rearing as the silent thing whizzed by with the accompaniment of only a brief and nerve-racking bell trill. The thing seemed to threaten not only the horse's temporary peace of mind, but also to put the horse tribe in the dodo class. The horses was scared at the bicycle and the horse breeder was ditto. He was so scared that he slowed down on breeding for a while. The price of horses went up. The breeders breathed easier and the market was supplied.

Hardly had easy respiration among the breeders been resumed when the automobile began dispensing its gasolinferous miasma along the thoroughfares. Not only were they used for pleasure—these devil wagons—but they were used for drafting purposes. Autocabs, autotrucks, auto-every-old-thing! Dobbin shied worse than ever at this new contraption with the demoniac hiss and splutter and stench. His prophetic hunch was working again and working harder. Here, indeed, was a rival which he feared would stop the annual procession of new-born colties with wabbly legs, short backs, little crinkly tails and mischievous upper lips. This fright in its turn was shared freely by the breeder. The result is the present horse panic.

A doctor in an Illinois town told me recently (and I verified his statement so far as was necessary to convince me of its truth) that he purchased 12 years ago a colt, paying $60 for it. He used that colt in his practice till a few weeks ago, and then he sold it for $175. This may seem incredible to you, but if you knew of some of the other horse dickers that occur at the present time you wouldn't be surprised. In the same Illinois town, for instance, a team of stone-blind horses sold for close to $150. Those blind horses 10 or 20 years ago wouldn't have brought $10 apiece.

I traveled lately from Chicago, as far East as I could stand him, with a horse buyer from a good town in New York State. He showed me a list of the horses he had bought in the Chicago market, with the prices annexed. He had purchased one carload for a town in West Virginia and another carload for his own town. The prices read like fairy tales. But I have been close enough to the horse market during the last six months to know they were the bitter truth. One span of black horses weighing about 1,400 pounds each he had bought for $480, and they were not fancy horses either. One of them, on the contrary, was touched in the wind—"not heavy, y' know, but jist a little thick, y' understand," as my informant put it.

Teams of draft horses that run in age from 8 to 12 years and in weight from 1,100 pounds to 1,800 pounds a horse sell for $300 to $700 a span. Those look like fancy prices, and they are. In addition, not half the care is displayed in regard to blemishes that was shown formerly when prices ranged more than 50 per cent. lower.

This and much other evidence that easily might be secured ought to indicate pretty conclusively that the horse has triumphed over handlebar and honk; that he is here for keeps, and that the demand for him will not soon, if ever, grow seriously less. But, of course, the breeders will go ahead and supply the demand and put the prices back where they belong as measured by the intrinsic value of the animal.

Killed By Pitched Ball.

As a result of being struck over the heart by a pitched ball, Mr. William T. Kane, who was engaged in playing a game of baseball at Relay last Saturday afternoon, was instantly killed. Mr. Kane, who was not a regular player on the Relay team, had accompanied his brother, Howard Kane, the catcher. The Relay team was short of a player and Mr. Kane was used as a substitute in right field. The Relays had for their opponents the Newark Athletic Club of Baltimore. Mr. Kane was at the bat when the ball struck him. He started to run toward first base and fell about 10 feet in front of the bag. He was carried to the grandstand, and several physicians who were on the ground, tried to revive him, but he had apparently died as soon as he fell. He was 27 years old and leaves a widow and one child. He resided at Morrell Park.

Cured Hemorrhages of the Lungs.

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take Foley's Honey and Tar, and my lungs are now as sound as a bullet. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble." Foley's Honey and Tar stops the cough and heals the lungs, and prevents serious results from a cold. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

FACTS IN NATURE.

Not Only Do We Get Inspiration From Nature, But Health as Well.

For people who are run-down and nervous, who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, or torpid liver, coated tongue with bitter taste in the morning and poor appetite, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will assist Nature and help them to get on their feet and put the body into its proper condition. It is becoming more and more apparent that Nature's most valuable health-giving agents are to be found in forest plants and roots.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. R. V. Pierce, now consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., discovered that by scientifically extracting and combining certain medicinal principles from native roots, taken from our American forests, he could produce a medicine which was marvelously efficient in curing cases of blood disorder and liver and stomach trouble as well as many other chronic, or lingering ailments. This concentrated extract of Nature's vitality he named "Golden Medical Discovery." It purifies the blood by putting the stomach and liver into healthy condition, thereby helping the digestion and assimilation of food which feeds the blood. Thereby it cures weak stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, or biliousness, and kindred derangements.

If you have coated tongue, with bitter or bad taste in the morning, frequent headaches, feel weak, easily tired, stitches or pain in side, back gives out easily and aches, belching of gas, constipation, or irregular bowels, feel flashes of heat alternating with chilly sensations or kindred symptoms, they point to derangement of your stomach, liver and kidneys, which the "Golden Medical Discovery" will correct more speedily and permanently than any other known agent. Contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed in plain English on wrapper.

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make a little more profit. He gains; you lose. Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One a laxative; two or three are cathartic.

Heat on Tobacco Improves it Like Roasting Improves Green Coffee. Heat Develops the Stimulating Aroma and Taste found in Schnapps Tobacco and Coffee

Three ways are used by farmers for curing and preparing their tobacco for the market; namely sun cured, air cured and flue cured. The old and cheap way is called air cured; the later discovery and improved way is called flue cured.

In flue curing the tobacco is taken from the fields and racked in barns especially built to retain heat and there subjected to a continuous high temperature, produced by the direct heat of flame heated flues, which brings out in the tobacco that stimulating taste and aroma that expert roasting develops in green coffee. These similar processes give to both tobacco and coffee the cheering and stimulating quality that popularizes their use.

The quality of tobacco depends much on the curing process and the kind of soil that produces it, as expert tests prove that this flue cured tobacco, grown in the famous Piedmont region, requires and takes less sweetening than tobacco grown in any other section of the United States and has a wholesome, stimulating, juicy, full tobacco taste that satisfies tobacco hunger. That's why chewers prefer Schnapps, because Schnapps cheers more than any other chewing tobacco, and that's why chewers of Schnapps pass the good thing along—one chewer makes other chewers, until the fact is established that there are more chewers and more pounds of tobacco chewed to the population in states where Schnapps tobacco is sold than there are in those states where Schnapps has not yet been offered to the trade.

A 10c. plug of Schnapps is more economical than a much larger 10c. plug of cheap tobacco. Sold at 50c. per pound in 5c. cuts. Strictly 10 and 15 cent plugs.
