GOVERNOR HAS A SWEETHEART

Surprise For a Big Audience Which Enjoyed a Lively Discussion of Members of The Local Debating Society of The Proposition "That Governor Crothers Could Better Uphold the Dignity of His Office by Getting Married"—The Decision of the Judges Was in Favor of Those Who Argued for the Bachelors.

Belair, Md., February 7.—If Governor, Austin L. Crothers could have been present tonight at a meeting of the Belair Debating Society and heard the spirited arguments of six good debaters as to the most expedient method for upholding his official dignity, he would have a most convincing expression of the opinion of the citizens of this place as to whether or not, during his term as chief executive of the state, he should remain a bachelor or become a benedict.

W. E. Robinson, one of the debaters stated at the conclusion of his remarks that he had it from good authority, but that it was a profound secret, that Governor Crothers has a sweetheart and is soon to be married. The announcement was received with applause and cheers.

Ever since the announcement in The American last Monday of the subject for the debate this evening, viz., "Resolved, That Governor Crothers Could Better Uphold the Dignity of His Office by Getting Married," the interest as the result of the debate has spread through out the county. Tonight the large hall was filled with an attentive audience.

A feature of the meeting was the presence of many ladies, all of whom, before a single argument has been made, were standing as a unit on the affirmative side of the question, and as the speakers championed their side of the question they were loudly applauded.

At 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order, and the announcement of the subject for debate was received with applause and cheers for the Governor. The affirmative side of the question was represented by three married men—Dr. Benjamin Smith, Rev. John I. Yellott and William E. Robinson—and the negative side was championed by three single men—William P. Stedman, Charles H. McNabb and M. A. Reckord—and after a debate, which lasted over two hours, the case was given over to the judges, composed of three married men—Rev. C. K. McCaslin, of the Methodist Protestant church; George L. Van Bibber and Richard Dallam—and two single men—Frederick R. William and Edwin H. Webster. The two latter were added to the jury at the last moment as the result of a strenuous objection by the negatives, claiming that they stood no show whatever for a verdict with the judges all married men. There was also a strong effort on the part of the affirmatives during the week to have added to the judges two ladies, making a total of seven to decide as to the fate of the Governor, but this was denied.

The five judges took sometime for their deliberations, and then returned a verdict of "Not guilty. Therefore, according to the decision of this meeting, it will not be absolutely necessary for Governor Crothers to take unto himself a wife in order that he may be better enabled to uphold the dignity of his office."

Mr. Yellott's Argument.

Rev. John I. Yellott, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church here, opened the argument for the affirmative side. Mr. Yellott said his side was not only required to prove that matrimony is a desirable institution for all men, but especially advisable for the Governor, and that for a particular purpose, viz., to add dignity to his administration.

"The Governor," he said, "evidently feels the need of a lovely woman in the Executive Mansion, hence the appointment of adjutant General Warfield, whose strongest recommendation is a charming wife, and the Governor presses her into service at his first reception, of course. What's an administration without receptions? Annapolis answers, 'Unthinkable'; and what's a reception without the fair sex? An abomination of desolation. The Governor can borrow his friends' wives for his receptions. Perhaps such a course is scarcely dignified. The Governor retires at 9 A. M., like a schoolboy. A wife is needed to regulate his hours in the interest of great dignity, and, finally, the Governor does not talk. Can an administration be impressive and silent? The authorities say 'No.' Ask the President, the ex-Governor, William J. Bryan or Mr. Seth."

A Bachelor's View.

Prof. William P. Stedman, principal of the Belair Academy, for the negative, said, in part:

"The question before us tonight for discussion is of far-reaching importance. After the arguments will have been heard impartially there will be but one just verdict for the jury to give, and the verdict should be transmitted post haste to His Excellency.

"We may be bachelors by necessity and not by choice, and it would be a sad thought, indeed, to feel that we had ruined our matrimonial prospects, especially in this leap-year season; so please bear in mind that it is the Governor of the State whose fate we are determining this evening and not our own.

"In keeping himself free from entangling alliances and in showing his independence as a man we are proud of our Governor, and all unite in saying 'how admirably he upholds the dignity of his office.' While we admit that the social side of his life is one of importance, and we would not detract one iota from it, you will surely agree with us that the most important phase of his work is the administrative side, and it will be the burden of the opposite side to prove that being married would better enable him to perform these administrative duties.

"How in the world will having a wife enable Governor Crothers to keep shy of the political machinery, steer clear of factional quarrels or to care for the interests of the people? If it would, then why did we not elect a wife for him at the polls simultaneous with his election by the ballots if there is any doubt that he could not uphold the dignity of his office as a bachelor? We, therefore, of the negative, affirm that he can in his present unattached state guide the reins of state as well as though he were in attached state as it were."

Messrs. Record and McNabb.

M. A. Reckord, for the negative, said that the Constitution defines the duties of the Governor. "His duties," said he, "are definite and precise, and if he does what is required of him, unhampered as he is by a wife, then he has upheld the dignity of his office. It is very easy to see that it would be absurd for the Governor to saddle upon himself the burdens of a wife to hinder him in the proper performance of his duty."

Charles H. McNabb, on the side of negative, said, in part: "The very act of the Governor being married at this time during his term of office would be a catastrophe to the state. How could he give his attention to the public and at the same time to his bride? Governor Crothers has the influence of many noble women who have in the past no doubt to some degree influenced him and who will in the future stimulate him by social suggestions as to the proper dignity of his office. Marry him, and he gains a wife, but he loses the interest of every one of these married women, those widows, these charming maids."

HICKS' FORECAST FOR FEBRUARY.

Rev. Irl R. Hicks didn't hit it very well in his weather prognostications for January, but there is still hope for him in February. The secret of whatever success he has had seems to be that he predicts storm periods for every day in the year, and he is bound to strike it right sometime. A "reactionary storm period," whatever that may be, is promised from February 5 to 8, and these conditions will rise, he says, to the "dignity" of decided storms of rain and snow about the 6th and 7th. Thunder and lightning are also predicted for the 6th. A cold wave will follow, lasting until the "regular" storm period, which is stated to begin on 12th. This is likely to happen, the prophet tells us, because the moon, reaching its fatherest northern point on the 13th, will immediately proceed to get into apogee. Another point for the Anti Saloon people.

This storm period is to commence with squalls, and the weather will get squalier and squalier until just what might be expected happens and it will storm right. Rev. Mr. Hicks hardly violating conservative views regarding the weather when he promises that after this storm there will be northwest winds and colder weather.

No sooner will we be rid of this storm than we will have another on our hands. During the 18th, 19th and 20th a steady procession of rains and snows will march eastwardly across the devoted country "followed promptly and progressively" by gales and colder weather. The prophet sagely remarks that "there is always a probability of equinoctial and West India storms on and about the Gulf of Mexico at any storm period after the middle of February," and the hints that the opportunities in that line this year will be unusually good. Plenty of earthquakes are promised within sixty hours of 6 a. m. on February 17. He urges that people get scissors, scrap book and paste pot ready to preserve the newspaper clippings of these seismic disturbances.

Another storm period is predicted to follow the one just mentioned as promptly as the new year follows the old. This will culminate in the West Rev. Mr. Hicks says, on the 22nd, but it will not be until three days later that the outposts of the storm will flee out over the Atlantic Ocean. Colder weather will follow and another "reactionary storm period" will be in progress during the last two days of the month. A warning to look out for ice gorges along streams is given for the later part of the month, although it is intimated that these will not come in February if the ice does not break up until March. After having prophesied all the storms, covering practically every day of the 29, the seer says: We believe that this month will bring an average if not above the average, of favorable conditions." But he qualifies this by reminding us that under the best possible weather conditions, February must be regarded as one of our worst months.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving but sad rememberance of our dear little Elsie, beloved daughter of Hamilton and Mattie E. Neal, who died after much suffering Jan. 2, 1908, aged 6 years and 5 months.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

Once our home was bright and happy,
Oh, how sad and drear to-day,
For our dear and loving Elsie
Has forever passed away.

We have put away her little playthings,
Laid away her little clothes,
She will need them on earth, never,
She has climbed the golden stairs.

Elsie, darling, can it be
No more thy look of love I'll see?
Those bright little eyes now closed in death,
I'll think of 'till my latest breath.

Oh, my we miss our little daughter and sister.

PAPA, MAMMA AND FOUR LITTLE SISTERS.

A PECULIAR WILL.

I, Henry E. Sullivan, being of sound and disposing mind, do hereby make, publish, and declare this as my last will and testament * * *

"I do hereby direct the executors of this my will to have made out of bones circular buttons of the dimensions of from one-half inch to one inch in diameter.

"I do further direct my said executors to have the skin of my body tanned and made into pouches.

"I do hereby further direct my said executors to have made out of such parts of my body as may be suitable strings for the violin.

"I hereby give, devise and bequeath unto my beloved friend and clubmate, James Hayes, the buttons, violin strings and tanned skin made out of my body, as aforesaid, the same to be by him distributed according to his discretion to my intimate friends."

So reads the will of Henry E. Sullivan, a prominent member of the Nameoki Club, at 238 W. 100th st. Made in all seriousness, this queerest of queer wills, reflects the ultarianism that has been a factor in every act of the man's life.
