PROPOSALS

BY JOSEPH SCOTT,

Author of the United States Gazetteer—The Modern Geographical Dictionary, in 4 vols 8vo. The Elements of Geography, for the use of Schools, &c. &c.

FOR PUBLISHING

Celestial & Terrestrial Globes.

TWO considerations have induced the publisher, to issue these proposals; the first is, that it will require a considerable capital to engage in the business; and secondly, that some of the booksellers in this city, entertain doubts as to the success which the undertaking will meet with from the public; it would therefore be imprudent to hazard the publication, unless there is previous encouragement given.

Although we owe allegiance to no government but our own; yet we cannot say that we are really independent, so long as we are obliged to have recourse to foreign nations for their manufactures, &c. Let us diminish, as soon as possible, the number of our applications to foreign nations to supply our wants and encourage the industry of our own citizens.

CONDITIONS.

I. The Celestial and Terrestrial Globes shall each be twelve inches in diameter.

II. They shall be constructed similar to Adams' twelve inch Globes.

III. They shall be mounted and finished in the most elegant manner, and equal in correctness to any of the imported globes

IV. The price shall be Twenty Eight Dollars each pair, Four Dollars less than those imported.

V. As soon as the publisher receives sufficient encouragement he shall commence constructing them
