Takes both to make Good Wheat

POTASH

Good clover follows good wheat, but it takes Potash to set the clover.

Starved clover won't feed the crop that follows it. It needs a vigorous root and a sturdy growth for itself before it can gather nitrogen for you.

Give it a good start by enough Potash with your phosphates in this Fall's seeding of wheat or rye.

The clover will do the rest—you'll see when you cut the clover.

Clover, timothy, rye and oats, for turning under, or a crop in rotation—all need more Potash than most commercial mixtures afford.

Do not use fertilizers that contain less than 6 per cent. Potash. If your dealer does not carry them, then mix 15 pounds of Muriate of Potash with each 100 pounds of your fertilizer. Potash is profit. Buy the Potash first.

Send for pamphlets containing facts about soil, crops, manures and fertilizers. Mailed free.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

THE ELECTION THIS YEAR.

The election this year will take place on the 3d day of November. The voters of this State will be called upon to elect six members of the House of Representatives and eight Presidential electors.

Since the last election several changes have been made in the election laws of the State. Chapter 614 of the laws of 1908 requires the publication in the newspapers of the nominations to office which have been properly certified. This act applies to the counties of Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, Dorchester, Kent, Prince George's, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Somerset, Talbot and Worcester. These are the so-called Wilson bill counties. In the other counties and the city of Baltimore the names of the candidates must be published and "arranged so far as practicable in the order and form in which they are to be printed on the ballots." This publication is, in effect, a sample ballot for the guidance and instruction of the voter, which is denied in the Wilson counties. The Wilson bill counties have been changed since the last election by adding Queen Anne's and Dorchester to the list and omitting Frederick and Garrett. The posting of sample ballots at least four days before the election is required in the city and in the counties where the Wilson law is not in effect. The last Legislature repealed this requirement in the Wilson law counties, so that sample ballots will not have to be posted in those counties.

Chapter 576 of the Acts of 1908, the Lehmayer law, makes more liberal provision for counting ballots, and provides that no ballot shall be rejected solely because any part or portion of the cross mark extends beyond the square, if the point of intersection is within the square. This new law will permit the counting of many ballots which would be rejected under the rigid rule of the laws heretofore in force since 1896.

Attorney-General Straus has affirmed the decision of his predecessor that it will require only one mark to vote for the presidential electors. The question was put up to him some time ago and an official reply awaited. This now appears in the pamphlet recently issued by the Secretary of State embodying the election and registration laws as amended by the last legislature, and the instructions of the Attorney-General to the judges and clerks.

That paragraph headed instructions to voters describes first how a voter can vote for each elector by making a cross mark opposite the name of each, and Mr. Straus then continues: "He can also, if he prefers, make his cross mark in the square opposite the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President and have his ballot counted for each one of the candidates for presidential elector grouped under the names of these candidates."

This means that it will require only two marks to vote the entire ticket. The contention that the law requires every elector to be voted for came from the Wilson law counties, where it was expected such a construction would favor the Democrats.

Large Chesnut Crop In Sight.—Chestnuts, those hard-shelled dyspeptics, that tempt boys to "bag" school in the fall, promise to be very plentiful this year. Early in the summer there was an abundance of blossoms, and now the burrs are beginning to become visible on the trees in great clusters. A few more weeks and "Jack Frost" will come along some morning and touch them with his icy fingers and they will burst open, to the joy of the country boys. Hunting chestnuts seems to have more fascination for the youth than going after other nuts, such as shellbarks, hickory nuts, walnuts, etc. The first requisite of the chestnut hunter, if he wants to get ahead of the other boys, is a chestnut club. Now, a chestnut club is a stout stick about fifteen inches long, on the end of which has been screwed a large nut, taken from a bolt, and it is a great invention. The nut is placed on the end to make it heavy so that it can be easily thrown, and so that when it drops to the ground the club will fall straight, heavy and down, which makes it next to impossible to become lodged in the branches when it has been thrown up a tree. A chestnut club is not a necessity except when a boy wants to get ahead of his fellows and goes after the nuts before "Jack Frost" has thoroughly done his work of opening the burs. This usually occurs when there is a small crop and one set of boys thinks somebody else will get all the nuts if they do not go early. After all their hard work the boys are usually rewarded with about a pocketful of green, white-shelled chestnuts apiece. Of course, they must enjoy the fruits of their labors, and they begin to eat the nuts. Soon they are all gone and the story closes until next morning. However, there are joys of chestnutting time, too. When the crop is ripe large bushels are sometimes gathered and stored away. With a handful of salt sprinkled among them, they keep for months or years, getting harder and more indigestible, of course, as time rolls.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving remembrance of C. Goldie, who departed this life September 7th, 1902.

O, Goldie has gone with the angels,
They came at the break of day,
And whispered that beautiful pleading,
And took him from earth-land away.

Darling Goldie, he has left us,
Left us, yes, forever more,
But we hope to meet our loved one
On that bright and happy shore.

O, tearful and sad was the parting,
When shadows crept over the day
And closed his blue eyes to our pleading,
And darkened our desolate way.

The midnight stars are gleaming,
Upon his silent grave,
He sleeps without dreaming,
Our loved one we could not save.

A loving mother,
MRS. E. A. CRITTENDEN.

In sad but loving remembrance of my darling boy Joe M. Stoops, who died August 9th, 1908. Gone but not forgotten.

The midnight stars are beaming,
Upon a lonely grave,
Where sleeps my darling boy,
The one I could not save.

Had He asked us, well we know,
We should say, O spare the blow;
Yes, with streaming eyes should pray—
Lord, we love him, let him stay.
In love he lived, in peace he died.
His life was asked, but God denied.

We loved him, yes, we loved him,
But angels loved him more.
And they have sweetly called him
To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said 'Come'!
And with farewells unspoken,
He calmly entered home.

CROPS GROW WITHOUT RAIN.

How the Syrian Peasant Makes Use of the Moist Subsoil.

In Syria and Palestine from the beginning of April until October there is practically no rain, yet in July the fields teem with a vigorous growth of watermelons, tomatoes, cucumbers, etc., all flourishing without artificial watering, although at that time no rain has fallen for many weeks.

In fact, the Syrian peasant from the moment his seed has been sown prays that no rain may fall. During the period of growth of a crop the surface of the soil to a depth of six or eight inches is perfectly dry and loose. Below this surface layer will be found moist soil, in which the roots extend and grow vigorously. In this moist subsoil plants continue to grow until late autumn. When the crop is removed in the autumn the rains commence, and the land is plowed after each heavy rain as soon as the soil begins to dry.

Two primary objects are kept in view in plowing—to furnish a favorable surface for taking up all the water and to prevent its upward evaporation from the subsoil. The great point is to keep the upper six inches of soil perfectly loose and friable, so that the moisture from below is not drawn upward and lost in evaporation, but does not ascend higher than the compact subsoil that is not broken up by the plow. For this reason the plowing is shallow, averaging from four to six inches in depth.

When the time for sowing the seed arrives the land is plowed to a depth of about six inches and the seed is sown from an arrangement attached to the plow, falls on the damp subsoil and is covered by the soil closing over behind the plowshare. From this time the upper stratum of loose soil prevents the escape of moisture upward beyond the wet subsoil on which the seeds rest and into which their roots after the process of germination spread.—Chicago Tribune.

MEXICO'S SIGN LANGUAGE.

Gestures With a Meaning Understood by Every Tribe.

Mexico is a land of many tongues, but above the Indian dialects and Spanish there is one universal language, the language of signs. It is the most expressive of all. The Mexican eye and hand are eloquent members. It is capable of infinite variation. Its shadings and suggestions are beyond all translation. But there are certain gestures that have a fixed meaning, a signification well understood by every nation and every tribe from Guatemala to Texas.

A general upward movement of the body, shoulders shrugged, eyebrows raised, lips pouted and palms outspread varies in meaning from "I don't know and I don't care" to a most respectful "Really, sir, I do not understand you."

The index finger moved rapidly from right to left generally before the face means "No more" or simply "No." To move the right hand palm outward from the body toward another person means "Just wait; I'll be even with you yet."

The index finger on the temple moved with a boring twist means "He's drunk."

The right hand held to the lips, three fingers doubled, thumb and little finger erect, varies from "He drinks" to "Have one with me."

To move the open hand over the cheek in imitation of a razor has reference to the idiom "playing the barber" and means "to flatter."

All four fingers and the thumb held points together and moved toward the mouth means "to eat."

The right hand held before the face the two middle fingers moving rapidly is a familiar salutation.—"Modern Mexico."

The Helpmate.

The author's young wife burst in on him joyously.

"Oh, Milt," she cried, "I know now why the magazine has returned all your stories."

Milton Wiskar seemed to see light.

"Why is it?" he demanded, with hopeful eagerness.

"It is because you have always inclosed stamps," said the young woman. "Haven't you ever read the notice on the editorial page which says that no MSS. are returned unless stamps are inclosed.—New York Press.

Idyllic Situation.

"They are such ideal chums seemingly."

"Yes, and thereby hangs a tale, a romance in real life. They fell in love at first sight and were married right away, and for awhile it looked as if there would be no more to the story. But in time their love ripened into friendship—think of it!—and now they are what you see."—Puck.

In Venice.

"Yes," remarked Mrs. Malaprop-Partington, "we had a lovely time in Venice. There are no cabs there, you know, because the streets are all full of water. One hires a chandelier and he rows you about in a dongola."

Presence of Mind.

Few possess the quickness of thought and action characteristic of the costermonger's wife who exclaimed, "She said I wasn't a loidy, she did, and the next minute I 'ad 'er 'ead in the gutter."

Hardened.

Tom—I'm going to ask your father tonight for your hand. Tess—But you don't seem to be a bit nervous. Tom—No. I've been both a life insurance agent and a book canvasser.—Pick-Me-Up.
