William H. B. Merryman,

William H. Brown, Imogen Brown, W. Murray Carr, Amanda K. Carr, T. B. Hynson Brown, Grace Merryman, Elizabeth Stockdale Merryman, Margaret Merryman, Theodore Virginia Hennesy, Lambert Hennesy, Lilly Merryman, Thomas R. Brown, Jean M. Brown, Mary E. Brown, Duncan K. Brent, Harriet C. Brent, Mary C. Brown, Hallie Carrington Brown.

In the Circuit Court for Kent County in Equity. No. 1688.

THE OBJECT of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain property in Kent county, in the State of Maryland, which was devised by the last will and testament of Thomas R. Brown, late of the city of Baltimore, deceased, to his children as tenants in common.

The bill states that the said Thomas R. Brown departed this life in the year 1875, seized and possessed of certain real estate in Kent county, Maryland, and elsewhere, leaving his last Will and Testament, which was duly admitted to probate by the Orphans Court of Baltimore city, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Wills of said city.

That by the provisions of said Will he devised said Real Estate to his four children in equal shares, as tenants in common, namely to Dr. Thomas R. Brown, Mary L. Merryman, William H. Brown and James Brown, to each a fourth part, and he bequeathed to his widow, Mary A. B. Brown, an annuity of twelve hundred dollars per annum during her natural life. That subsequently the said children, with the consent of the said widow, divided certain of said real estate among themselves, and executed deeds therefor, each to the other, in which the said widow united.

That a certain portion of said real estate, a tract of land in said Kent county called Gresham Hall was left undivided. That Dr. Thomas R. Brown married Hallie Carrington and departed this life in the year 1879, leaving Thomas R. Brown, James Brown, Harriett C. Brown and Mary C. Brown, his children and heirs at law, and that said Thomas R. Brown married Jean M. Albert and resides in the city of Baltimore, that James Brown married Mary A. Bowman and resides in said city of Baltimore, that Harriett C. Brown married Duncan K. Brent and resides in Baltimore as does the said Mary C. Brown and Hallie Carrington Brown.

That James Brown married Imogen Bechtel and departed this life intestate in the year 1895, leaving Amanda K. Brown who intermarried with W. Murray Carr, and T. B. Hynson Brown his children and heirs at law, that said W. M. and Amanda K. Carr reside in the city of Pittsburg in the State of Pennsylvania, and said T. B. Hynson Brown resides in the city of Baltimore.

That William H. Brown married the said Imogen Brown and that they both reside in Baltimore.

That said Mary L. Merryman married Richard S. Merryman and that both of them are dead, and left the following children and heirs at law surviving them: William H. B. Merryman, Richard S. Merryman, Theodore Virgina, and Lilly; that said W. H. B. Merryman married Alice, and resides with his wife in Brooklyn, New York; that Richard S. Merryman married Elizabeth Stocksdale, and died leaving his widow and a daughter Margaret, who is an infant, surviving him who live in the State of Illinois; that Theodore Virginia married Lambert Hennesy, and live in Chicago, State of Illinois; that the condition and residence of Lilly is unknown.

That the said Mary A. B. Brown, widow of the testator, Thomas R. Brown departed this life in the city of Baltimore about the month of February of the present year.

That about the year 1898 the undivided one-fourth interest of James Brown in said Gresham Hall farm was sold and conveyed to the said William H. Brown.

That the said Real Estate is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled and in order to make division of said interests, it will be necessary that said real estate be sold.

It is thereupon this 5th day of November 1908 ordered, by the Circuit Court of Kent County in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Kent County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of December, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this Bill warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 26th day of December next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Turkey Test

It Was Great, but It Drove One Man to Drink.

HE had been gazing long and earnestly at the rows of turkeys hanging from the hooks of a stand in Washington market, and the poultryman began to eye him suspiciously. He did not look like a thief, the mild look in his eye denoting anything but the gleam of acquisition. Still, his actions were not calculated to inspire confidence.

Every now and then he would walk up to the rack and feel a gobbler's breastbone, then stand off and take a side look at the fowl, moving around presenty and gazing at it from the other side. In this way he would admire it from all points of view and seemed to derive immense satisfaction from the observation.

The poultryman was fast becoming nervous over these strange proceedings, and to put an end to his anxiety as to the man's intentions he approached him and asked:

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

The man started and for a moment appeared to be disconcerted; but, recovering himself somewhat, he blushingly stammered:

"Why, you see, I don't quite know yet."

"Well, it's about time you did," gruffly replied the poultryman.

"Ye-yes—I suppose so, but I don't. I want to get a turkey, but I want to be quite sure of my ground before I proceed."

The poultryman looked at him still more suspiciously.

"I dare say you will think me a little peculiar," continued the stranger, "but the fact is my wife is not very well, and she has sent me to buy the turkey for our Thanksgiving dinner. Now, I never bought a turkey in my life, and I don't want to make a mistake in it. I have full instructions from my wife, but still it requires great care to carry them out."

"Oh, if that's all," said the poultryman, reassured, "I will help you out."

"You will?" asked the man eagerly.

"With pleasure. What's the matter with this one?" And he took down a turkey and held it up to view.

"Does his breast move in or out under pressure?" asked the purchaser doubtfully.

"Try it for yourself."

"It seems flexible," said the man, gingerly pressing his fingers upon the part mentioned. "You know, my wife is a great judge of these things, and she told me all about it. Now about the color of the legs. They should be purply blue, with just a tinge of gray."

"Well, there they are. You couldn't get anything nearer the description unless we painted them for you."

"No, no. I don't want 'em painted. She said the color should be natural. Now about the flesh. I want to pinch that and see that it is elastic."

"Well, pinch," said the dealer.

The purchaser pinched and pinched until there was not an inch of the bird not fairly covered. Then he gave a sigh of satisfaction.

"That seems all right. But there's one thing more—the wings. You don't mind my twisting them according to my wife's instructions? She calls that the crowning test of tenderness." And he delicately turned them around as he would the knob of a door. This done, he opened the beak and looked into the mouth, devoting considerable time to a minute examination of the tip of the tongue. Finally he announced his satisfaction, paid for the turkey and started off with it.

He reached the door, then suddenly turned.

"Great heavens! I forgot to examine the flexibility of the spur, and without being backed by that all other tests are useless."

But the poultryman had vanished into a nearby saloon and at that moment was engaged in toning up his nerves for the next customer.—New York Herald.

WORK OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The following address was delivered by Mr. John N. Bennett, member of the Kent County Board of School Commissioners, at a late meeting of the County Grange. His subject was: "What is the best education the public schools can give to our boys and girls?"—

"The question assigned me," said he, "is broad, and to discuss it thoroughly would be out of the question at this time. This question will admit of two phases of discussion. First, those branches of study which the public school is best prepared to present to the child, and secondly, the result of this presentation.

"I am thoroughly convinced that the most important studies that the public school can give to the student are reading, writing and arithmetic. The importance of these branches, to my mind, rank in the order named.

"Reading, although but one of the many things now-a-days, is, it seems to me, the most important study; for our main object in teaching little children is to introduce them to the world of thought, and reading is thought getting. Then again, our pupils in order to do their little examples must be able to read them,—in order to write understandingly they must be able to read the copy, and written language presupposes a knowledge of the words taught in the reading lesson.

"Thus the studies lock into each other, having, as we may say, reading as the foundation stone which will render the structure secure.

"This is not exactly the question as I understand it. The question is not "What branches of study will be most beneficial to our boys and girls,?" but, "What is the best education the public schools can give to our boys and girls?" In the average public school of today the majority of pupils do not advance beyond the fifth grade, and the very best educational work that these can accomplish satisfactorily will be to get a thorough knowledge of the foundation work. This foundation work will comprise the three branches named above.

"The primary object of all education is not to see how much of a branch, or how many branches of study can be taught the pupils, but to give them such a thorough knowledge of the subject presented that they (the children) will be able to apply it in their after life.

"That form of education which is only suitable for the school-room, and does not enable the boy or girl to solve the daily problems of life is useless.

"That form of education which does not enable the child to think for himself, is merely a system of "cram" and of no real benefit to the child whatever.

"That system of Education which teaches the child to rely upon the teacher or parent is equally ineffective.

"The most effective and best education is that which teaches the child self-reliance. No other education is worth having, it is mere rot. That form of education is best for our children which make them good citizens. All education is in vain unless it tends to elevate the child mentally and morally. The child coming from the public schools should be the "leaven" which "leaven" those with whom it comes in contact, not by its much learning, but by its well rounded thought and its high moral sentiments. The child should be taught early in life to have high ideals and that it should try to attain to these ideals. That where-ever there is a will, there is no such word as "fail." That they must learn to do by doing.

"The real education is not the information you have putinto the mind, but the interest you have awakened. If the heart is trained the rest grows out of it. Interest the heart, the feelings, the emotions, for they are the fundamental facts. The poorest education that teaches self-control is better than the best that neglects it. Hundreds can talk to one that can think, thousands can think to one that can see. The best education then, that the public schools can give our boys and girls, is that which teaches them "To hold onto virtue," for it is above all price to them in all times and in all places. "To hold onto character," for it is and ever will be their best wealth. "To hold onto their hand," when they are about to strike, steal or do an improper act. "To hold onto the truth," for it will serve them well and do them good throughout eternity. "To hold onto their tongue," when it is just ready to swear, lie or speak harshly, or use an improper word. "To hold onto their temper," when they are angry, excited, imposed upon, or others are angry about them. "To hold onto their good name," at all times, for it is more valuable to them than gold high place, or fashionable attire.

Finally, the best education is that which prepares the child for complete living, and that leads the pupils to gain new knowledge through his own efforts and thereby promote self-development and self-instruction."

OUR farmers are all warned, by both the National and State authorities, to look out for the scourge that has broken out among some Pennsylvania cattle, the highly-communicable "foot-and-mouth" disease. Ulcers break out on the mouth and on the feet. Lives of both cattle and their keepers are endangered. The cattle are all quarantined, but perhaps it might be better not to buy cattle for a while until the veterinarians can get the Pennsylvania trouble into subjection.
