Delaware Plays Dickinson At Newark Saturday

BLUE HENS BATTLE DICKINSON SATURDAY

Coach Lyal Clark gave the University of Delaware football squad scrimmage work several afternoons this week preparatory to the hard game scheduled with Dickinson on Frazer Field Saturday.

Calling for scrimmage Monday was a surprise even to the squad as scrimmages are general held in the middle of the week. Last week none was held. Clark is anxious to improve the charging of the line and believes the best way to do this is in scrimmages. Opposing lines have been getting the jump on the Blue Hens. Coach Clark will also try to improve the tackling and blocking which has been weak at times.

It was late Monday when Coach Clark started scrimmage and it lasted only a short time. The offensive team in the scrimmage was practically the varsity eleven which has started in games to date except that Capt. Dick Roberts was put on the defensive team and Fenton Carey moved up to Roberts' place on the other eleven.

Blue Hens Lose First Home Game

Tony Rozman, with his educated toe, and Eddie Kress, a brilliant open field runner, two good backs, proved too much for the University of Delaware on Frazer Field Saturday and Lebanon Valley took the game, 23-7.

Rozman kicked three field goals, one in each of the first three periods, scored one touchdown, and kicked two goals for points after touchdowns to tally 17 points.

The Blue and Gold played good ball, both offensively and on the defensively.

Delaware got into trouble early in the first quarter when Capt. Dick Roberts fumbled Kress' punt and the Flying Dutchmen recovered on the Hen 37. A forward pass advanced the ball to the 24 but here Delaware held. Tony Rozman dropped back and booted the ball between the posts for the visitors' first three points.

Coach Clark's proteges took the lead a few minutes later when Ernie George scored a touchdown as the result of a Lebanon Valley fumble. Charlie Allen recovered after Kress fumbled on the Dutchmen's 35. The Hens uncorked their best attack of the game which brought the touchdown. Glyn Ware took Roberts' pass for a gain of 10 yards. On the next play, a reverse, Howard Viden dashed eight yards to the two. George then plunged over and also scored the extra point with a placement. At the end of the game the score stood 23-7.

President Aims At Preventing Booms, Slumps

had blown over.

When the President mentioned the "extremes of booms and depressions" he touched upon a matter that has given him anxiety throughout his Administration. It is well known that he was disturbed in 1933 when the market boomed to what he felt was unjustifiable heights.

He was disturbed again last spring when another bull market, particularly as it affected heavy industries, sauced him to denounce existing prices and to withdraw the Government as a purchaser of certain overpriced commodities.

Would Avoid Extremes

He referred to these extremes today almost at the opening of his address. After saying that the purposes of the Government "is to gain for all our people the greatest attainable measure of economic well-being, the largest degree of economic security and stability," he continued:

"To advance the country toward this goal is the real mission of the Federal Reserve System. It cannot be attanied by that system alone, but nether can it be reached without the proper functioning of our monetary and credit machinery. That machinery must be steadily perfected and coordinated with all other instruments of Government to promote the most productive utilization of our human and material resources.

"Only in that way can we hope to achieve and maintain an enduring prosperity, free from the disastrous extremes of booms and depressions. Only in that way can our economic system and our democratic institutions endure.—By J. Fred Essary in The Sun.

What's What About Social Security

As another service to its readers, the Cecil County Star each week will give authoritative answers to questions on the Social Security law. By special arrangement with Luther Becker, Manager of the Social Security Board office at 300 Court Square Building, in Baltimore, the Social Security Board has consented to pass on the accuracy of answers to questions on Social Security, which may be asked by employers, employees, and others, through the Cecil County Star. Address inquiries to The Editor, The Cecil County Star, Elkton, Md. Answers will be given here in the order in which questions are received. This is an informational service and is not legal advice or service. In keeping with Social Security Board policy names will not be published.—Editor.

(73) Question: In making reports under the Social Security Act do I have to give my employee's account number and his name as it is written on his account number card?

Answer: Yes, you should give your employee's social security account number on those reports calling for that information and you also should give his name as it is on his account card. For example: if the employee's name were Richard Roe, but he had obtained his account card under the name of Dick Roe, you would use Dick Roe in making your reports.

(74) Q. One of my employees has two social security account numbers and has asked what he should do about them.

A. Each of your employees should have only one account number. Possession of more than one account number is not in the best interest of the employee. Seek to have your employee turn in to the nearest Social Security Board Field Office for cancellation all but one account number card. On the back of each card turned in for cancellation there should be written plainly and accurately the number of the account card retained by the employee.

(75) Q. Is the Social Security Board making any old-age insurance payments now and will I be eligible to receive a payment when I become 65 years of age next month?

A. Lump-sum payments now are being made by the Social Security Board to eligible workers. A lump-sum payment is now due to the worker who has reached 65 since January 1, 1937, and who has been paid wages for work done as an employee since December 31, 1936, and before he reached 65, in any employment which is no specifically excepted under the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security Act. In order to receive a lump-sum payment you must file a claim. Your nearest Social Security Board Field Office will give you every assistance.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

A news report from Baltimore, dated June 14, 1937, stated that two boys, one eight and the other eleven, were arrested in the act of cracking a safe in the office of a lumber company. Furthermore, the boys confessed to having burglarized two other business establishments between midnight and dawn.

Assuming that these youthful criminals had parents, what were the reactions of the latter, if any, when they discovered that these boys were away from home between midnight and dawn? What possible mission or motive, except mischief, could engage the attention of mere children during those hours, when decent law-abiding citizens are supposed to be abed? Doubtless, the night of the robbery was not the first nocturnal absence of these children from their homes.

And this is but one instance. Over the Nation there are thousands of similar or far worse cases involving the depredations of youth of both sexes. Many of these cases result in homicide, as proven by the fact that many of the condemned murderers awaiting execution today are hardly more than children. Who is to blame?

Recent statements of distinguished educators, moralists, clergymen and others throw light on the situation. One statement quotes a probation officer, who declared that the home is the place where children should receive care and education in order to develop character. He pointed out that many parents today expect the state to do everything for the child, while they do nothing. They expect the incorrigible child to be made obedient, the lazy one diligent, the untidy one clean. This attitude of parents has led to a serious situation, he stated, for one must look beyond the child to determine who is responsible.

In commenting on a recent proposal that the University of Illinois establish a course in parent training, Miss Edna Walls, instructor at the University, declared that the parent, in many cases, needs training instead of the children.

Mr. Burton P. Fowler, headmaster of Tower Hill School, Wilmington, Del., in a recent address before the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education, averred that the most important requirement of parents is that they, themselves, set a good example for their children. He advocated a more intelligent relationship between the home and the school, and strongly emphasized the responsibilities and duties of parenthood.

A Chicago judge, in discussing youthful criminals, stated that, amazed at their violence, he had searched for the causes of their crimes. His search had led him to conclude that the chief cause was a lack of home influence, training and discipline. He admonished parents to teach their children the great lesson of life, namely, that goodness is happiness.

President Alan C. Valentine of the University of Rochester, N. Y., in an address to 6,000 teachers, insisted that the church as well as the home has failed to shoulder its share of responsibility in the upbringing of youth, and that a complete revaluation of educational ideals and striking changes in school programs is needed. Doctor Valentine asserted that since the family and the Church had delegated most of their responsibilities to the school, educators no longer can count on influences outside of the school to provide a background sympathetic to education.

A commentator in a New York paper holds that educators and progressive laymen of today have come to realize that there are three factors involved in the proper education of children, namely, the teacher, the child, and the parents; that the home must reach into the school, and the school into the home. Declaring that the responsibilities thrust upon the schools today are too heavy, he urged that all educational agencies, including the church, the home, the community, and other mind-making agencies, be called upon to lighten the load. Striking at a fundamental fact, the writer stated that the home is either the greatest obstacle or the greatest assistance to the school.

Dr. Howard M. LeSourd, dean of Boston University's graduate school, in a recent talk on "Home, the Source of Character," argued that parents cannot expect their children to have sturdy, self-reliant characters unless they observe a few important qualifications for themselves, one of which is a willingness to study the responsibilities of parenthood. He suggested "giving your child plenty of rope, but keeping a firm grasp yourself on the rope's end."

Thus it is seen that all over the Nation there is a growing conviction that the home must play its part in the formation of youth's character, if America is to emerge from its present condition of lawlessness— a condition that, it is estimated, is costing the taxpayers of this country $15,000,000,000 annually. The views expressed in almost identical form by such famous authorities on crime as Mr. J. Edgar Hoover of the Department of Justice and Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing, men whose practical experience with crime and the criminal give them authority to speak with conviction and finality.

Annulment of Marriage Asked

Anna Kaminski of Twenty-fourth and Market streets, Wimington, seeks annulment of marriage to Charles Gasky of Philadelphia after elopement April 17, alleging Gasky falsified his name and age when they were married in Elkton.

A bill filed by James Weinroth for her in the Circuit Court for Cecil County alleges Gasky gave the name of David G. Glause, that he is an alleged deserter from the United States Army, and was a shiftless person.

The marriage lasted but two months the attorney said. The court set Dec. 3 for the defendant to show cause why a decree should not be passed.
