Farm and Household.

Eggs in Winter.—We often hear farmers and others complain that they never get any eggs in Winter. With proper feeding, comfortable hen-houses and good drinking water, there is no reason why a good supply of eggs cannot be had in winter as well as summer. Of course this necessarily will be a little more trouble than throwing out "lots of corn" to "em" in the snow, mud or slush; yet when eggs are worth three times (or more) as much as they are in summer, won't a little extra trouble be a good investment—especially when the farmer is not so hard pushed for time? A correspondent writes asking "how can I get eggs in winter?" "How must I feed, &c?" First, then, much will depend upon the breed; but of any variety select early pullets and a few hens of the previous year's hatch. Commence feeding extra during the moult. Mornings use corn meal and heavy middlings, (shorts) two-thirds of the former to one of latter, and always mix with boiling water and feed it while warm: at noon utilize your table scraps, potato parings, &c.; pound up the beefsteak bones; occasionally freely sprinkle red pepper in morning feed. At night mixed grains is the best feed. The following is the proportion I prefer: Corn 2 quarts, oats 5 quarts, rye 1 quart, wheat 3 quarts, buckwheat 2 quarts; mix thoroughly and feed amount required. Corn alone is a very inferior egg-producing food; but in extreme cold weather its qualities as a warming and fattening food render it a staple article of food.—Rye is inferior to the other grains, and fowls do not seem to care for it. Warm milk is excellent, and the trouble of warming it will be well paid for by the increase in eggs. In the way of green food, apple parings or cores, occasionally a cabbage head, a turnip, &c., are all good. An old box with powdered oyster-shells, or gravel, or old lime plaster, should always be on hand. Keep your hen-house clean, and on extra cold days empty a bag of leaves in it and scatter some grain; this will give them the healthful exercise they need. Follow these simple rules and your fowls will prove a source of pleasure and profit that will really astonish the uninitiated.—American Farmer.

Suet Pudding.—One cup of sweet milk, one cup of chopped suet (or butter, if preferred), one cup of raisins, one cup of molasses, three cups of flour (a trifle heaped), two teaspoons cinnamen, two teaspoons cloves, and nutmeg (each), one teaspoonful oat-meal, two teaspoonfuls soda.

Salamagundi.—Cut in equal partt oranges and bananas, and about a third as much pineapple, sprinkle well with sugar, stir them all together and set on the ice. If wanted for tea they should be prepared in the morning, so as to get very cold. Serve with delicate cakes.

Madelines.—Mix well half a pound of butter and half a pound of sugar, then the yolks of four eggs, then half a pound of flour; beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and mix by degrees; add the grated rind of a lemon or orange. Bake in small tins; fill them about a third full. Bake in a quick oven.

Pancakes.—Take three eggs and stir them into a pint of milk; add a good pinch of salt and enough prepared flour to make it into a thick, smooth batter. Fry in boiling fat till nearly done; roll over on the other side; drain, and serve very hot with lemon and powdered loaf sugar.

Ham Omelet.—Beat four eggs till quite feathery, then add three large spoonfuls of finely-minced ham; butter the frying-pan well and pour all in; when well set roll all up like a jelly roll and serve immediately. A steady and moderate fire is always necessary to make a nice omelet.

Sauce for Boiled Beef.—Two tablespoonfuls of mustard, mixed with a small teaspoonful of vinegar; two ounces of butter, one egg and two lumps of sugar, and as much of the liquid that the beef is boiled in as to mix it to the consistency of cream, then boil as you would melted butter.

Oyster Sauce.—Take a dozen oysters, blanch them by putting them in cold water and boiling them for ten minutes. Make a nice melted batter, thus: Take a pint of milk, let it boil, add a little flour for thickening, put in two ounces of butter, well stirring it to keep it from burning. Then put it in the oysters, with a pinch of cayenne pepper, a little salt and a tablespoonful of cutsup.

Cream cakes.—Melt as much butter in a pint of hot milk as will make it rich as cream. Mix in flour enough to form a dough (it will probably take one quart), and kneed it well, not forgetting to add a pinch of salt. Roll out rapidly on your board several times, cut into small squares, and bake on a griddle.—These cakes are considered to be a suitable accompaniment to oyster soup.

Two drops of laudanum in a half teaspoonful of warm water, put into the ears, is said to be a speedy cure for neuralgia in the face and head.

Kerosene lamps which are trimmed daily, rarely explode. The carelessness of the house-wife can be blamed for most of the explosions.

Apple Butter Pudding.—One pint of milk, three eggs, two cups of flour, two cups of apples, cut small. Bake one hour and eat with sauce.

Cup Cake.—Four cups of flour, four eggs, three cups of sugar, one of butter, cup of milk, two teaspoonfuls of yeast powder or one cup of soda.

If you see any one have a bone felon, tell him to get a lemon, cut a hole in it, and put it on the finger; it will cure. You must keep a fresh lemon on it.

How to Mix Mustard.—Mustard is a wholesale condiment if rightly prepared, and is relished with cold meats and salads. If prepared with cream it can be very smoothly mixed, and a little salt can be stirred with it.

THE DISGUSTED SOCIOLOGISTS; A DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

From the New York World.

I.

One-half the world knows not how the lives
Of the other half do go,
But it—to-wit, the female half—
Most anxious is to know.
Know'st thou the place where the people their neighbors
To a fine point still will seek to get down
Their deeds and their dresses, their leisures and labors?
It is a small country town,
A country town, where each one knows
About his friend's affairs
Many more interesting things
Than the friend thinks in them there is;
Town where an empire's rise or fall
Cannot at all compare
In interest with the new hat
The preacher's wife doth wear;
Where party ties are all cast off
And life-long friendships when
An influential citizen
Throws stones at another's hen—
A direful string of unnumbered woes
And a change of Congressmen;
Where the thing in life most worth living for
A woman can discern
Is to find out all about others' affairs
And let them know none of her'n.

II.

Two tramps went through such a country town,
Not with jemmies nor with whittles;
Meekly they canvassed the kitchen doors
For old clothes and broken victuals;
Mostly they went unto those homes
Where capable women lurk,
Women whose boast it is that they
Do their own household work;
Mildly they oped the kitchen door
And while waiting their replies
Around the room they glances cast
From keen observant eyes;
Then, whether they got aught or naught,
Were the answer yea or nay,
They gently closed the kitchen door
And quietly walked away.

III.

A day or two later in the streets
Of that quiet country town
Two spruce and handsome gentlemen
Went roaming up and down.
They halted at a cottage door
And scrutinized it well,
And one took a paper from his breast
And rang the front-door bell.
"Come, rede me, gallant gentlemen,
What manner of men ye be,
And why ye ring at my front-door bell,
And what ye would of me?
Already I have a sewing-machine,
So sell me none ye can;
Nor do I want to buy any books
On the instalment plan;
Also my husband's life's insured;
So, if in those trades ye be,
Ye are as the silly hounds that bay
Up an erroneous tree.
Now, why ring ye at my front-door bell,
And what would ye of me?"

IV.

"Madame," replied one gentleman,
Whose voice was soft and low,
"You entertained two tramps awares
A day or two ago—
Two peripatetic gentlemen,
No signs of wealth who bore,
Were fed with buckwheat cakes at your
Hospitable kitchen door,
You little thought that that good deed
With its reward had met."
Here he drew a sheet of legal cap
Out of his breast-pocket—
"We were the tramps to whom those cakes
You gave: it is no dream—
Things often are in novels thus;
Men are not what they seem.
We come again, not for victuals cold
Do we now you importune"——
"I see, I see," she cried with glee,
"You come to leave me a fortune.
You would make me heir to a fortune rare
In governments and gold,
And thus those buckwheat cakes would bear
Fruit a hundred thousand-fold.
I've read in novels of men like you
Who go as tramps disguised,
Putting practical tests to charity
That the true may be recognized;
And they leave to the woman who fed them
At her hospitable door,
A hundred thousand dollars cash,
And sometimes even more."

V.

"Madame," replied the gentleman,
"The fact of the matter is,
We are not—if I may use the word—
Just in that line of biz.
We are sociologists—not of kin
With the Socialists who rob
The rich—with Herbert Spencer 'tis
We train, not Justus Schwab.
'The proper study of mankind
Is man,' the poet says;
To study humanity we aim
In its most familiar phase.
Last Tuesday morn—this gentleman
Will correct me if I'm wrong—
Your face the glowing graces lacked
That now to it belong.
Your form was not so rounded as
It now appears to be;
The ragged wrapper that you wore,
It was a sight to see,
And your slippers they were at the heels
Down-trodden exceedingly."
"And," lisped the other gentleman,
"Upon the mantel-pieth,
In a cracked tumbler were a thet
Of artifithial teeth;
On a chair in the adjoining room
I think there hung and lay
A thet of raven tretheth and
A pair of palpita"——

VI.

"Madame," went on the other—while
The lady, as she said,
Knew not if she were sitting down
Upon her heels or head—
"Concerning all these facts, while they
Were in our memory warm,
We took our joint affidavit in
A strictly legal form.
Its price is just ten dollars, which
Really is too cheap by half,
And that includes the notary's seal,
And handsome autograph.
You think it high? Such is your right,
We would not it deny;
But perhaps the woman across the way
Of sociology
And its literature the value knows,
And this document may buy.
She may have anxious doubts to solve
Whether your tresses are—
No, madam, we do not object
To take trade dollars at par.
Thank you; the affidavit's yours
And to our dying days
From the tablets of our memory
The matter we'll erase.
Good morning, for we must be gone,
We've other calls to make;
Oh, study sociology
For sweet Herbert Spencer's sake.

VII.

Oh, if ever around that country town
And to that happy home
A student of sociology,
As a tramp disguised, shall roam,
That woman vows, as a good broomstick
Within easy reach she lays,
From the tablets of existence she'll that
Sociologist erase!

Brooklyn, November, 1879.

The Sun for 1880.

THE SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 it will be conducted as a newspaper written in the English language and printed for the whole people.

As a newspaper, The Sun believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast with the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is the law controlling its daily make-up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read The Sun; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, The Sun believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is, and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save those which may be had by any purchaser with two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores nincompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And The Sun makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which The Sun will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November, the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The Sun will do something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answer to these momentous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the Constitution against all aggressors, The Sun is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of The Sun is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address

A Talk With Fruit Growers.

I HAVE now growing, on my farm, a fine seedling Peach Nursery, (from the seed o the Smock,) of over 200,000 trees.

Being from Smock seed, and growing on land that never grew trees before, they must proverbially hardy and prolific.

I shall bud 50,000 (commencing June 15th) for this Fall's planting; such trees will run from 3 to 4 feet in height.

I shall bud the balance in August, for planting the following fall. As most all planters have preference for special varieties, I propose to take orders, before the budding is done, customers furnishing their own buds if they prefer; so that all may be accommodated. Do not fail to give this matter proper consideration, and send in your orders early. By so doing you can secure just the varieties you want; but if delayed till you are ready to plant, nurserymen may not have the kinds you prefer. I will give instructions how to forward buds, upon inquiry.

I HAVE A GENERAL ASSORTMENT OF ALL KINDS OF NURSERY STOCK.

Twenty years' experience as an extensive Fruit Grower and Nurseryman, certainly entitles me to a reasonable share of patronage on this peninsula.

BEG leave to call the farmers attention to their

IRON FRAME CULTIVATORS,

which are guaranteed not to choke. Some of the best farmers in Kent and Queen Anne's counties have used these Cultivators, a few of whose names we append below, and whom we give as references:

ROCK HALL, May 13, 1879.
Messrs. Chapman & Lambert: Gents:—The Iron Frame Cultivator I bought of you are the best I ever used; and I would reccommend all farmers to try them. They are all you claim for them. WM. STEVENS.

LANKFORD, ay 9th, 1879.
Messrs. Chapman & Lambert: Gents:—I used your iron Cultivator last spring. I consider it the best one I have ever used, and your teeth can't be beat. Resp. JAMS L. BECK.

Ice Cream,
ICE CREAM! IE CREAM !!
Frozen Custard
And Water Ices!
Strawberries and Raspberries.
PRICES TO SUIT THE TIMES.
CHEAP!
CHEAPER!!
CHEAPEST!!!

THE subscriber is now selling his best Ice Cream for $1.25 per gallon; 75 cents per half-gallon; 40 cents per quarter gallon; 25 cents per one-eighth gallon; plates 10 cts. It is now pronounced to be the very best that was ever in this market—so declared by ladies and gentlemen from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The Cream furnished by the undersigned to the Odd Fellows' anniversary, at the Court House, April 29th, was said, by the two hundred or three hundred ladies and gentlemen who partook of it, to have been the best they ever ate; which, of itself, is a good advertisement.

Picnics, Festivals and Excursions will be allowed a discount on all orders of and above five gallons

All orders must be accompanied by the cash.

The Ladies' Parlor will be open after next Monday.

Thanking the public for all favors conferred in the past, and hoping for a continuance of liberal patronage, I promise to do my best to please all.
