Anty Drudge on Nightmares.

Mrs. Neverrest—"Can't one have some awful nightmares, Anty. I did a big day's washing yesterday—it took me all day. And last night I dreamed I was on an island in the midst of a big lake of boiling, steaming, dirty clothes, and I had to wash every one of them. Mercy! What a headache it has given me."

Anty Drudge—"No wonder it gives you a nightmare and headache, the way you do your washing, boiling and hard-rubbing all day. After this use Fels-Naptha in lukewarm water, without boiling or hard-rubbing, and you will be through so early that you'll forget it before night and won't have any nightmare or headache."

Winter washdays cease to be a nightmare when the clothes are washed with Fels-Naptha in lukewarm water.

In the first place there's no boiling.

Fels-Naptha makes the clothes cleaner and whiter and sweeter without it.

No hot water is used and there's no steam to fill the house and give your people colds.

You've no steaming suds to bend over; no nauseous odors to inhale. Your hands are not reddened and chapped by putting them in hot water and then exposing them to cold air.

But, best of all, the work is made so much easier and doesn't take half as long. Washing with Fels-Naptha, you can begin after sun-up, even on the shortest winter day, and be done well before noon.

Use Fels-Naptha not only for the white clothes but for flannels, woolens, colored things.

Be sure to get the genuine Fels-Naptha—don't trust imitations. And follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

THE KNICKERBOCKER GIRL AND HER CLOTHES

Skirts With a Simulated Split at the Foot—Jackets With Tails—Hats Half Silk Half Straw—Redingotes and Overdress Lines—Short Fancy Coats—Bead Fringe.

The skirt that makes believe to split up for a few inches at the bottom either at the side or front is having its innings, but its only a "make-believe" for the opening is always filled in, in some way, usually with a contrast in color and material. Almost all skirts simulate the lines of over skirts or redingotes in their trimmings for it is only in the fussy type of dress that real over skirts and panniers are employed. In these frocks great use is made of bead fringes and these are most often placed at the foot of the dress or edging the freakish train of the moment.

AFTERNOON FROCKS.

Afternoon frocks have collarless necks, but are supplemented by gamps with collars that soar as far as the ears will permit, all made of very transparent plain net, point d'esprit or shadow laces, so that the throat appears almost as bare as if no gamp collar were worn.

SHORT FANCY COATS.

Short fancy coats come in so many guises that it would be impossible to describe them all. Blazers with elaborate decorations, and Directoire coats with the bolero front and with tails of all lengths and shapes in the back, as well as Louis XVI styles where the part below the belt assumes decided pannier lines, are a few of the styles seen.

NEW TRIMMINGS.

To go with the facings of rough cottons that resemble Turkish towelling, and go under many different names, there are bandings of the same in open, cut out patterns. These cost from 20 cents to $2.25 per yard and coming in white and ecru colorings are used on silks and wools more than with cotton materials.

The above designs are by The McCall Company, New York, Designers and Makers of McCall Patterns.

COLOR CONTRASTS.

The reds are prominently employed for color contrasts in rose and coral shades for the most part, but emerald, royal blue, chicory blue, and yellow are perhaps a bit more exclusive and distinguished for this purpose. A yellowish green, or greenish yellow is very stylish for hat crowns, wings, etc., but very trying if it comes near the face.

A NEW BRASSIERE.

Now that boned waist linings have long been relegated to the limbo of the unfashionable, every woman finds a brassiere indispensable. The new "La Reine" brassiere has a patent strap and small hook arrangement at the back, just as the top of the corset, which prevents slipping and acts as a moderate shoulder brace. For stout figures it holds the flesh down on the shoulder blades, giving a flat, straight back, and doing away in any type of figure with that ugly line made where the top of the corset shows through the waist.

LEATHER BELTS ON DRESSY FROCKS.

Narrow leather belts are a feature on many of the most successful frocks, the dark tones of blue and black patent leather are most used, but a dress of red and white striped etamine has an inch wide belt of the color of the stripe. These are used also with tussah and taffeta frocks and suits.

SILK STRAW HATS.

Hats half silk, half straw are perhaps overworn, but in many cases most attractive and practical. Sometimes only the crown is silk, often the outer brim as well, except perhaps the edge, which will have a band of straw. Or the idea may be reversed and the facing be silk and crown and [illegible] straw in endless varieties of color [illegible] details. However, trimmings are sparingly used for the most part, and made pieces of feathers, lace or silk in upstanding cockade ornaments are most fashionably endorsed.

Facts From Ford

The Question?

EXPENSES OF AN AUTO.

To the Editor of "The Press."

Sir:—Can some reader who has handled his own car tell whether it is possible for a man in ordinary circumstances to own and run an automobile without bankrupting himself.

I happen to be situated so that I can make the investment necessary for the purchase without cramping myself or depriving my family of the necessities of life. The first cost doesn't bother me so much as the probable second cost.

I have heard from so many that a man cannot own and run a car for less than from $50 to $100 a month, if he gets any good out it.

I want to use the car to take my family out riding for an hour or so in the evenings during summer months and for Sunday trips. Some of you sane drivers with staid families give us your experience.

R. D. ROYER.

Philadelphia, Nov. 19, 1911.

The Answer!

COST TO RUN AN AUTO.

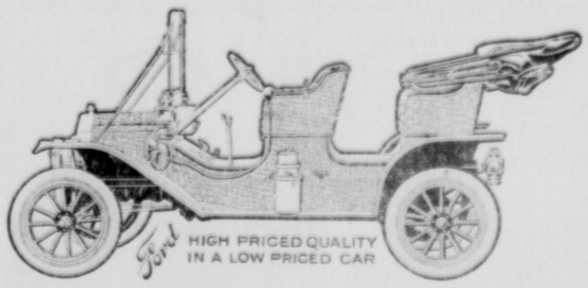
To the Editor of "The Press."

Sir:—I notice in issue of today R. D. Royer hesitates to purchase an auto because it is alleged that it would cost $50 to $100 per month to run one. He asks for experience of drivers and will probably get plenty of replies. For his benefit, will say that in my medical practice I have this summer run a Model T Ford 3700 miles of rough Northern Pennsylvania country roads at a total cost of $5.50 for repairs. One gallon 12-cent gasoline carries me 20 miles, and one gallon of 45-cent oil carries me 130 miles. In other words, my entire expense for the season of 3700 miles has been $40.

My tires are good for another season. Understand, I do my own driving. The hills I climb every day would be called mountains around Philadelphia, but they have no terrors for me, and my family of four often accompany me. I will be pleased to answer any questions Mr. Royer may wish to write me.

DR. J. C. LEE.

Rummerfield, Pa., Nov. 21, 1911.



Here is an exact cut of Mr. James Brice's car. Ask him what it has cost him to run this car for two years—for repairs and replacements. I think he will tell you it hast not cost him 50 cents for two years for repairs or replacements.

Figures Count.

We received a letter the other day from a Model T owner in Randolph, N. Y., a Mr. Wm. L. Rathbone, stating that he ran his car a total 5582 miles from March 1, 1911 the date of its purchase. Mr. Rathbone keeps a complete expense account on his Moddel T, upkeep which he gives to us as follows:

Total cost or gasoline	$32 28
Total cost of oil	8 50
Total repair bill	3 45
Grand Total	$45 23

$45.23 for 9 months travel give an average monthly expense of $5 03. On figuring it by the mile gives an average cost of .008 per mile. Can you beat this Model T economy? Show us the horse and buggy that can be kept for $5 a month. We'd hate to see it.
