"A FOUR-BELL PICTURE", SAYS JIMMY FIDLER RADIOING "HEIDI" OPINION

HOLLYWOOD-Here is the text of the opinion on "Heidi" broadcast over a Coast-to-Coast network by Jimmy Fidler, Hollywood commentator.

"A four-bell picture! . . . The more I see Shirley Temple, the more I'm inclined to scoff at talk of this child ever growing too old or big for the screen. Undeniably, she is adding inches and pounds to her physique—but at the same time, she's adding new poise and greater charm and ability. Why, she's even acquiring an air of eight-year-old sophistication—and it's delightful . . . The picture is adopted from the fairy story, 'Heidi,' which has been read by almost every child in the world. It's the story of a little girl whose lovable qualities change her grouchy grandfather—who hates the world—into a fine old man. She also brings happiness into the life of a crippled child, and helps that child to walk again . . . The picture is loaded down with so-called 'hokum'-but that's just the sort of laugh-and-tear stuff that Shirley does best. I'm only one of the millions who've always adored tiny Miss Temple in such vehicles—and as one of those millions. I promise all the rest of you: this picture is right down your alley . . . Jean Hersholt turns in a splendid performance as the grandfather, and Arthur Treacher provides a lot of laughs . . . Two women-Mary Nash and Mady Christians-play the heavies, and they're so mean you'll feel like hissing them . . . For old folks, medium-aged folks, young folks and children—'Heidi' belongs on your 'must see' list."
