A Charming Letter From a Charming Writer In the Land of Sunshine and Flowers.

St Andrew's Bay, June 2.

MY DEAR TRANSCRIPT:

Is your latch-string out? And may I come in this evening for another little tete-a-tete about St. Andrew's Bay? Indeed, a most beautiful sheet of water—the color so blue and beach sand snowy white, reminds one of a beautiful sapphire set with pearls. 'Tis divided into east, west and north bay, and is so entirely land-locked that it might almost be called a lake. Only two narrow passes lead into the Gulf of Mexico, so short a distance away that we hear him very destinctly when he roars at Boreas and Neptune as they frolic. One of these passes is closed to navigation now, and the other admits of boats only drawing fourteen feet of water. Our gallant Admiral Schley could bottle us up quite as easily as he did Cervera's fleet at Santiago, should occasion require. There is a tradition about our bay that if a person once visits it the charm of its beauty is so great they cannot resist coming again.

St. Andrew's Town is situated on the east bay. During the Civil War the old town was destroyed. It seems to have been done in a spirit of revenge. A gunboat put in for harbor from storm and was fired upon by "Bush whackers;" he returned the compliment. The Yankees bombarded the place, leaving not a single house standing. New St. Andrews was a boom-town, started by western parties for a winter resort, but failing to get a railroad nearer than fifty miles the bubble burst, people deserting the place, leaving houses in all stages of completion. Nor has the railroad materialized as yet, although we go through the throes of having one built about every two years, having just gotten over the last one. Does it not seem a great shame to have so beautiful a country shut out from all the world because one corporation says no? The Louisville and Nashville Railroad, which owns Pensacola, is jealous of St. Andrews, and will not consent to have a railroad cross them, coming this way.

A singular feature of this country is, we can find no stones nor pebbles on the beach, but very pretty shells abound, and by sailing to some of the outside islands beauties may be gathered—large conchs, Panama sea anemones and numerous others.

In a tree close by a night-bird for some time has been calling "Chuck Will's widow." Who Will's widow is, why and where he wishes to chuck her, no one seems to know, but if he will just chuck her in the bay, tuck his head beneath his little wing and go to sleep, your correspondent would be greatly obliged to him. Sometimes a mocking bird sings us to sleep, and that is delightful. Very often at early morning he wakes us with his matin song—beautiful trills, chromatic runs and some notes are like gently rippling water. It would put madame Patti to shame. His concerts are free, too. Altogether, he is a very charming and happy fellow. Then what a devoted husband he is, singing all day long to his wife. Quite an example, is he not?

Of course fashionable people do not hie themselves to this part of Florida and society is rather restricted at all seasons, though we do have quite a number of visitors, mostly from the west. Generally speaking, people think Florida unpleasant in warm weather, but here on the coast summer is delightful, until half past nine or ten in the morning some times 'tis quite sultry, but after that hour the sea breeze comes up and the rest of the day we are fanned by soft, balmy winds from the gulf. The nights are pleasant with a cool north-east breeze which lasts until early morning. After that dies down we have the sultry interval spoken of before. Mosquitoes bother very little, but a short time in early summer the wicked "flea," and man pursueth, woman too. Lovers of nature would revel in the beautiful things she has provided for them here, but those fond of society could not be persuaded to remain. With four cats, three kittins and a pet rabbit, the writer does not get lonely, for when every thing else fails, the fun of trying to teach the cats and rabbit to lie down together in peace (leaving bunnie on the outside) it is very engaging. If only the father "Semper Fideles, Semper Idem" were near by, it would be difficult to find one more contented than "FLORIDA."

WEAR FOR LITTLE GIRLS.

Nothing rivals the regulation suits.

After 10 years of age comes the delightful Norfolk.

Masses of Wild flowers trim flat hats loosely.

When garden flowers are preferred single ones are chosen.

Poppies, wild roses and old-fashioned pinks are lovely.

Pretty little frocks are in Mercerized gingham.

Changeable taffeta is much used for coats.

Blue and black and red and black are first choice.

Deep collars of grass lining and lace are the finish.

Only the littlest girls are favored with white stockings.

A few years of frotting about and they take to the navy, tan and black of their elders.

Sparrows and Men.

The sparrows in the streets are like some men;
They chatter much concerning their affairs,
But have no music in their souls.
They die, nobody knows they're gone, nor cares.

They think that here the world begins; and here
It has its ending, too, in their small ken
Content to live within a narrow sphere,
The sparrow in the street is like some men.

THE MAN WHO DID.

All doctors in my town failed to relieve me of rheumatism. I have used about half a bottle of Nelaton and feel so much improved, that while I may not need it, I enclose P. O. order for $1 for one more bottle of the remedy that has been such a God-send to me. I cheerfully recommend Nelaton to anyone suffering with rheumatism.
