hort, quick way to cure a cough e Dr. Pierce's den Medical Discovery. The quicker this remedy is used the quicker the cure. But even when neglect has let disease fasten on the lungs, "Golden Medical Discovery" may be relied on to cure in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred.

The only motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little extra profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains. You lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

"I am feeling quite well," writes Miss Dorcas A. Lewis, of No. 1129 24th St., Washington, D. C. "My cough is very much better, and I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I cannot say too much in praise of the medicine. I had been quite a sufferer for a long time, and after reading Doctor Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser thought I would try his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I commenced taking it in May, 1892. Had not been sleeping well for a long time. Took one teaspoonful of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and slept nearly all night without coughing, so I continued taking it. I am in great sympathy with everybody who suffers with a cough. I had been a sufferer for more than ten years. I tried lots of different medicines and different doctors, but did not feel much better. I coughed until I commenced spitting blood, but now I feel much stronger and am entirely well. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine I have ever taken. My home is in Williamsburg, Virginia."

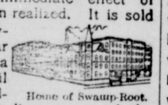
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.



Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Miss Ida M. Snyder,
Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club.

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

Tales Worth Telling.

Painful.

The Superintendent of the Sunday school of a country Presbyterian church was expecting a visit from a clergyman of note, and wished to have his Sunday school class in such shape as should favorably impress his visitor. He supposed that his class would be examined on the catechism, and as most of the pupils were quite young, it would have been too much to expect them to commit the whole of the catechism to memory. He, therefore, ranged his pupils in line, numbering them No. 1 and so on to the end; requesting No. 1 to commit to memory the answer to the first question of the catechism, No. 2 the answer to the second question, and so to the end of the catechism.

On the day of the visitor's coming the small boy who was at the head of the class stopped on his way to church to gather some green apples in a neighboring orchard, and directly after his arrival at the Sunday school a violent inward pain obliged him to go home. This left boy No. 2 at the head of the class.

The visiting clergyman duly arrived, and the boys being drawn up in line before him by the superintendent, he complimented them on their bright and neat appearance, and said that he would proceed to examine them on the catechism, and had no doubt but that they would prove a credit to their efficient Superintendent.

His first question from the catechism was, "Who made you?" to which the boy at the head of the class replied: "To praise God and glorify Him forever." "I am afraid you misunderstood my question," said the visitor. "I asked, 'Who made you?'" Again came the answer from the head boy: "To praise God and glorify Him forever." The visitor again shook his head, when a little boy at the foot of the class held up his hand and said; "Please, mister, the boy that God made has gone home. He had a bad pain in his stimmik."

Men Not Equal.

John Marshall, the Chief Justice of the United States, on one occasion was driving in his gig, and found that the tire on one of his wheels was loose and kept slipping off. He didn't know a great deal about common affairs, for he had not lived much with the common affairs of life; but he did know that water would tighten a tire on a wheel. So he came to a little branch and drove into it and got one little section of the wheel wet, then drove out and backed his horse, and the same part of the wheel went into the water again, and he pulled back and kept seesawing backwards and forward, all the time getting the same part of the wheel wet. While the great lawyer and Judge was bothering himself about how to get the wheel wet, a negro came along, and seeing the situation, told him to back into the water again. He did so, and the negro took hold of the spokes of the wheel and turning it around directly had it wet all around. Mr. Marshall said: "Well, I never thought of that." The darkey said: "Well, some men nat'ly have more sense than others, anyhow."

Not With Him Then.

While samples of President Lincoln's skill as a story teller are innumerable, instances of his personal humor are comparatively rare.

On one occasion Lincoln, then poor and obscure, was summoned as a witness in a contested will case, the plaintiffs alleging that the testator was of unsound mind.

Several of his neighbors testified that while in the company of the deceased they had never noticed anything strange in his actions or speech.

Lincoln's testimony was to the same effect, and he was interrupted by the opposing lawyer, a somewhat testy and over-bearing person, with the remark:

"Yes, yes; we have heard all about that. Now, the question is how did the deceased act when alone?"

After a moment's reflection Lincoln remarked: "As far as I can recollect, I was never with him when he was alone."

Signs of Insanity.

A farmer came into town and went to see his doctor, saying that he did not feel well.

The doctor advised him to take a stimulant once in a while, but the farmer said he would not set such an example to his son, who was growing up. The doctor asked him if he shaved. "Yes," answered the farmer. "Then," said the physician, "put a bottle of whiskey in your shaving cabinet, and every time you shave take a little."

The farmer said he would, and departed. The doctor did not see the farmer again, but met his son about a month later, running up to him on the street. "I was just coming to your office to get you to give me a certificate to put my father in an insane asylum," said the son.

"What are the symptoms?" asked the man of medicine.

"He wants to shave six and seven times a day!" answered the son.

Gallant Judge.

In a case before a Philadelphia court in which a popular actress had to appear as a witness, the Judge hesitated about asking the lady, as he was in duty bound to do, what was her age. Evidently he considered that such a question, put to such a witness, would be a direct incitement to perjury.

The way in which he got out of the difficulty was ingenious, although decidedly irregular He asked, before she had sworn, "How old are you, madam?" After a little hesitation the lady owned to being 29 years of age.

"And now that you have told the court your age," continued the gallant Judge, "you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

A Woman's Apology.

A philanthropic lady visited the asylum at Kingston, Canada, and displayed great interest in the inmates. One old man particularly gained her compassion.

"And how long have you been here, my man?" she inquired.

"Twelve years," was the answer.

"Do they treat you well?"

"Yes."

"Do they feed you well?"

"Yes."

After addressing a few more questions to him the visitor passed on. She noticed a broad and broadening smile on the face of her attendant, and on asking the cause heard with consternation that the old man was none other than Dr. Clark, the Superintendent. She hurried back to make apologies. How successful she was may be gathered from these words: "I am very sorry, Dr. Clark. I will never be governed by appearance again."

Mistake, Not Robbery.

She was a rather stylish looking young lady, and attracted attention when she entered the car. She occupied the only vacant seat, beside a rather elderly gentleman. When the conductor came for her fare she reached to her side, and then, her color changing several shades, she gapsed: "Oh! I've been robbed! There is nothing but a banana skin and an old piece of cigar in my pocket?"

Then the deep bass voice of the man by her side was heard: "Madam, would you mind taking your hand out of my pocket?"

Couldn't Hear.

Two prominent gentlemen from the West arriving in New York partook of a champagne supper, and the sparkling fluid predominated. They secured a box in one of the theatres. After the play had progressed for some time, one nudged the other and quaintly asked:

"Can you hear anything?"

"Not a blamed word," returned the other. "It is funny, but really I believe that wine is ringing in my ears so loud that it drowns their voices."

"Come, let's get out of here."

Next morning one of the gentlemen discovered he had kept his programme, and what an astonishing revelation! In big letters he read "Humpty Dumpty." They had been trying to hear a pantomime!

Ignorance.

Ex-District Attorney George S. Graham tells this incident of the time when he was Superintendent of the Oxford Presbyterian Sunday school. He was on his way to the school when he saw some boys playing in the street. Thinking he might stop them and perhaps get them to go to Sunday school, he said:

"Boys, do you know what day this is?"

One of the smallest, who was standing near, shouted to his chum, further down the street:

"Say, Bill, here's a guy what's been out all night and don't know what day it is!"

The boys did not go to Sunday school that day.

Complimentary.

Throughout the rural district of Berks county Pa., they have a custom of "boiling soap," the apparatus for which can usually be seen at any outhouse. While thus engaged on one occasion, a farmer's daughter saw her swain approaching, and immediately started for the house to better her appearance, which fact the mother explained to the caller as he came upon the scene. After a while the girl appeared, all traces gone of a few moments before, whereupon the enamored youth said:

"Why, you look as though you had never seen any soap."
