MAORI HOSPITALITY.

Strenuous Welcome Extended to a Party of Travelers.

A traveler in New Zealand tells of a native welcome. His party drew near to the central home of the tribe of Maoris. "As we rested beneath the parapets we were startled by a horrible yell, and round the corner of the stockade appeared a ferocious figure, tattooed, red painted, befeathered and naked, except for a very brief waist fringe of dangling palm fiber. His eyes rolled till the whites only were seen; then he thrust out a long and snaky tongue and grimaced fearfully. Shaking a wooden spear in his hand, he swiftly cast it at us, then turned and rushed toward the village. Just as the spearsman turned one of our young men who had rapidly divested himself of all but his waist shawl darted out in pursuit, and we followed at a more dignified pace. The entrance to the village was barred by a body of armed men, crouching still as death, on one knee, each holding a gun, butt on the ground, barrel sloping toward us. We advanced until we were within twenty paces of the warriors. Then all at once, at a wild cry from a chief on the right, they jumped to their feet, leaped high in the air, with their feet doubled under them like deer, and with one voice literally barked out a thundering chorus. This way and that our martial hosts bounded, brandishing their loaded rifles in time to the chant. Halting abruptly, with an earth shaking thud, they fired a volley of ball cartridge over our heads.

"Another volley reverberated from hill to hill and the bullets whistled over us. Then the brown warriors fell back and a gayly dressed band of women, with green leaves wreathed about their brows and waving shawls and leafy boughs, advanced with a gliding semi-dance and chanted their ancient welcome song. When the women's song ceased out to the front danced six girls—a group of vividly barbaric, yet not inharmonious, color—appareled in loose crimson roundabouts and short gowns of gorgeously flowered print, their brows bound about with red handkerchiefs, which held in place the black and white plumes of the rare huia bird and the iridescent feathers of the long tailed cuckoo, their cheeks dabbed with red ocher paint, greenstone pendants and shark's teeth hanging from their ears.

"These barefooted nymphs, hands on hips and heads thrown back, glided into the measure of a dance to the music of a shrill monody chanted by a white haired, tattooed old lady. Then all at once the chant ended on an unexpected high note and the performers stopped, breathless and glowing all over with their self evolved emotions. Broad flax mats were spread out for us on the green and after speeches of greeting we were regaled with pork, preserved birds, wild honey and potatoes, in quantity sufficient to have satisfied a starving garrison."—Chicago News.

Just How to Do It.

Advance to the inner door and give three distinct raps. The "devil" will attend your alarm. You give him your name, postoffice address and the number of years that you are owing for the paper. He will then admit you You will advance to the center of the room, address the editor with the following countersign: Extend the right hand about two feet from the body, with the thumb and index finger clasping a ten dollar bill, which drops into the extended hand of the editor, at the same time saying, "Were you looking for me?" The editor will say, "You bet." After giving him the news you will be obliged to retire with a receipt for the obligation properly discharged. —Kingman (Kan.) Leader-Courier.

Billiards at Sea.

"Can you imagine playing billiards in a heavy gale?" said the captain. "Do you wonder that our great liners, with their elevators and telephones and gymnasium, don't have billiard tables as well? One ship once had a billiard table, the Great Eastern. The wonderful Great Eastern had a billiard table on a swinging deck. This deck was supposed to counteract the ship's motion and to keep the table steady, but it failed to do so, and very remarkable were some of the shots made on the Great Eastern's table in rough weather. Nevertheless the table was kept for years and was a popular institution aboard the big boat, but no other boat before or since has ever bothered to introduce billiards."

Singular and Plural.

It is a question of taste and fancy whether one should make two bites of a cherry, but we all really make two bites of the word "cherry" when we use it in the singular. The original English version of "cerise" was "cheris" or "chiris," which was mistaken for a plural, so that "cheri" or "chiri" was soon manufactured as a singular. Exactly so has "pea" come into being as a false singular obtained from the supposed plural and true singular "pease." "Sherry" for "sherris" is another case, and "shay" from "chaise," "Chinee" from "Chinese" and "corp" from "corpse" are others in vulgar speech. Similarly "riches" is really a singular, of which "richnesses" was the old plural.—London Graphic.

An Infallible Sign.

A student in one of the colleges was writing on a paper in medical jurisprudence in which he was asked to enumerate the signs of death by drowning. After some more or less futile guesses he added, "But the surest sign of all is crape on the door!"—Short Stories.

But for some sorrow and trouble we would never know half the good there is about us.—Dickens.
