BISHOP BROOKS ON HIGH SEAS -- TELLS OF GIFTS RECEIVED

COTTRILL'S END HASTENED BY RECENT DEFEAT

Ohio Politician Lost In Race To Head G.O.P., And Land Job Of Register.

STRICKEN AT CONVENTION

Never Recovered Of Stroke Of Paralysis Suffered At Cleveland

By NAHUM DANIEL BRASCHER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5. — (For A. N. P.)— "Charley Cottrill is dead."

This word flashed over the country brought sorrow and reminiscences to thousands of people, many of whom knew Mr. Cottrill personally, and others by reputation.

Were he alive today, Cottrill would tell you that the writer was among the first to urge him into national political recognition. He was first deputy county recorder of Lucas county, the county seat of the city of Toledo. I went into his office early in 1908 when William Howard Taft was a candidate for President. I saw the fine efficiency with which he handled the affairs of the office—he was practically recorder—and the high respect accorded him by the office force and the public.

I told him I thought he would make a fine recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia in the event of Taft's election. He apparently considered it lightly at first, but with the election of Taft and other influences which were too strong, Henry Lincoln Johnson was made recorder of deeds and Cottrill was given the post as collector of internal revenue for the port of Honolulu.

Made a Splendid Government Official

Cottrill made a splendid record for the government in Honolulu. He was a fine mixer; there was no prejudice in the place, and he liked the job well. He remained for some time after the election of Wilson. He could have returned under Warren Harding, but he told me he would not consider it when Mrs. Cottrill preferred not to again be so far away from home and loved ones.

Cottrill's death adds to the tragedies of the Harding administration. It is a coincidence worth mentioning that he died a little more than a year after President Harding, and was a corpse at the same time with Mrs. Harding. Harding's bold refusal to appoint Cottrill register of the treasury helped to shorten Cottrill's life. There is a question as to whether this was base ingratitude or a handicap of Ohio politics. If it were the latter, Senator Frank B. Willis was the handicap, for he was opposed to Cottrill, being appointed because Cottrill had opposed him for United States senator and supported Walter Brown, of Toledo, who had been Cottrill's benefactor politically for years.

What Harding Said

On the other hand, President Harding told me personally, on one occasion, and also in a personal letter, which I exhibited to Cottrill and a group of friends, that he could not appoint Cottrill to a position because he had given a "substantial position" to Dr. W. S. Scarborough, of Ohio, and other states must have appointments before Ohio got another. Of course, the "big league" political strategists did not regard Dr. Scarborough's position as "substantial", nor hardly in keeping with a man of his attainments.

I last saw Cottrill in Cleveland, during the Republican National convention when he was the house guest of his life long friend George A. Myers. Many of us will never forget the day the conference was held in Elk's Hall when the names of Cottrill and William C. Matthews were proposed to lead the radical voters out of the political wilderness. It was the most warry session of the kind I have ever attended. There was at times regrettable bitterness. Two whole good hours were consumed on that hot afternoon in trying to arrive at a place for the vote to be taken. Matthews finally got the majority of votes. Cottrill was disappointed and looked dejected. That defeat hurt Cottrill more than most people understand; but he tried to appear philosophical and smiled on it was a sad smile. Perhaps, by intuition, he knew that he was nursing "the end of a journey too."

Stricken at Convention

In Pittsburgh, at the great Masonic convention, in August,—he was a thirty-third degree Mason—Cottrill was stricken while making a report before a committee. J. A. Jackson, of New York, told me of this tragic day in New York the day we learned of Cottrill's death. "He was talking with an effort," said Jackson, "and he asked if he could be heard. He was leaning against a table, continued to talk for a few minutes, and then fell with a stroke from which he never recovered. We called two doctors, and he was removed to a hospital. Joseph A. Jones, of Cincinnati, prince of good fellows, and fine business man, another life long friend of Cottrill's, went practically the same way two years ago."

No Jim Crow For Him

It has seemed to me fitting to tell this intimately, these facts about one of the outstanding men of the race. Singularly enough, Dr. W. S. Scarborough, Wilberforce, was first to tell me of Cottrill's death in New York, at the Association of Trade and Commerce.

Which brings to mind this final thought: I recall some years back in Dayton, Ohio, when Dr. Scarborough, then president of Wilberforce, was refused the privilege of riding on an elevator in a prominent hotel of the city during a great Republican gathering, when Warren G. Harding, Myron T. Herrick and others were headliners at the big fair ground rally.

Dr. Scarborough informed me; I informed Cottrill, who was a member of the state committee, and when Cottrill got through telling the manager of that hotel some eloquent facts in language unmistakable, the manager wanted to give Dr. Scarborough and Cottrill the elevator. Cottrill was a fighter for the things he believed to be right.

Gives Thanks

Rev. P. S. Dennis, who has been seriously ill for six months, was the grateful recipient of a bundle of Thanksgiving food from Cumberland, Md., sent by Mr. Perry and other faithful friends. Rev. Dennis asks us to thank those who so charitably remembered him on this festive occasion.

Dean Pickens' Book Goes Into Second Edition

DEAN PICKENS BOOK IN 2nd ED.

New York, N.Y. Dec. 6.—"Bursting Bonds" a novel by Dr. William (Dean) Pickens, is going into its second edition, with a substantial binding and full page illustrations. It is a book you will want to read over and over every little while. Every struggler, every student should read it.

What the readers have to say:

"The story of his ride in a Pullman from St. Louis to Little Rock is a minor American saga; the story of his determined progress from an Arkansas share-farm to prize orator and Phi Beta Kappa man at Yale is another."—The Nation, N. Y. C.

"The quality of his mind differs essentially from that of ooker T. Washington on the one hand and that of W.E. Burghardt DuBois on the other but there is common to all three lives a pure and beautiful religious faith which gives the clue not only to their respective accomplishments but also to the otherwise inexplicable character of the magnificent phenomenon of Negro emancipation which we are witnessing today."—Bruno Lasker, in "The Survey."

"I cannot remember that in all my life I have read a book with such absorption."Florence Kelley.

"From such works the historian of tomorrow will have to write."
—Journal of Negro History.

"Certainly a remarkable record of achievement."—Moorfield Storey.

"That you can live through the difficulties that you have had, and still laugh, as I have heard you laugh, constitutes a real personal achievement."—Nellie Seeds (Mrs. Scott) Nearing.

"An admirable piece of work, and I am filled with admiration for the story itself, for the way in which it is told."—John Haynes Holmes.

RHINELANDER CASE

case which should prove interesting. They were written by Rhinelander to Miss Jones during courtship, when he sometimes sent her as many as three letters a day. The question of 'color,' I think I will be able to show, is discussed in these letters.

Bride's Father Pleaded With Groom

"I will also prove that Mrs. Rhinelander's father called on the young man some time before the wedding and pleaded with him not to marry his daughter. He told him he had his daughter's interests at heart in making this plea, saying the alliance must come to a bad end. He pointed out that he and his family were English working people and that there was a social gulf between his daughter and Rhinelander which could not be bridged."

Believes Kip Is Held

Mrs. Rhinelander's counsel declared this week that the bride believed her husband is being detained at his home against his will and if he were free to act, he would return to her.

As evidence of this fact, the counsel showed an unsigned note in what was said to be Kip's handwriting, addressed to the bride. It read:

"Honey Bunch, old scout—I hope you will win this case. Get the best lawyer."

Judge Swinburne said his client told him the message was delivered half an hour after Rhinelander's papers in his annulment suit were filed in the Westchester Supreme Court at White Plains.

The attorney said that before Rhinelander left the bride's home he arranged to keep in touch by telephone with her.

"Mrs. Rhinelander has no telephone in her home," said Judge Swinburne, "but they had arranged for conversations outside of her home. Suddenly the calls ceased and the notes which he had been sending came to an abrupt halt, which led her to the belief that he is being kept from her against his will. The short note received last Wednesday was the first she had had from him in several days. Mrs. Rhinelander remains at her home in New Rochelle preparing her case.

MINISTERIAL COUNCIL HEARS TALK ON AFRICA

Howard Young, well known missionary recently returned from Africa, was the speaker at the meeting of the Ministerial Council of the Methodist churches, Monday.

In a paper, Mr. Young set forth the present condition and possibilities of this field of work and described the lack of efficient educational facilities, especially the present state of the African Colleges.

This portion of his paper was hotly challenged by Dr. Ernest Lyon, former minister to Liberia, who pointed out the graduates from African colleges who had been recognized as men of exceptional quality.

PAROLE AGENT RAPS CONDUCT AT MOVIES

The Rev. J. Hertzfeld an A. M. E. minister, now connected with the State Board of Parole launched a bitter attack against the conduct of children and young men and women in the theatres of the city at Allen A. M. E. Church on last Sunday evening.

Stating that he had been commissioned to investigate conditions in the colored houses, the speaker told the audience that he had found the deportment of the younger patrons far below par. Thre houses were visited on Thanksgiving Day, and in one a group of soldiers were extremely disorderly, indulging in obscene talk. When reprimanded they became abusive, and it was only after a threat had been made by Dr. Hertzfield to summon them to court that they ceased.

An intensive campaign is being waged by the board against the demoralizing conditions cited above, and unless there is improvement, the court will be compelled to discipline severely the offenders and those responsible for the conduct of the theatres.

Dr. Hertzfeld spoke especially to the boys and gir.s present at the meeting, asking them to perfect their behavior, and to caution their companions and schoolmates also. Further, he warned parents of the danger of allowing younger children to attend unaccompanied, suggesting that parents go with the children instead of sending them.

A grave charge was made against certain proprietors of indifference to the conduct. Pressure will also be brought to bear on the latter to force them to correct the conditions which now exist.

Union Baptist Church

Rev. David E. Over, Pastor

Increased attendance and interest have been noticed at all meetings since the coming of the new pastor, Rev. David E. Over, who has improved the order of services and created enthusiasm in every auxiliary of the church. A feature during the Christmas holidays will be an early morning service beginning at six o'clock, Christmas morning. The Sunday school will conduct during the Christmas week a white gift service at which time all auxiliaries and persons who so desire may make gifts to the worthy poor.

SHILOH A. M. E. CHURCH

The league had a remarkably large attendance on Sunday, which was perhaps due to the presence of District Superintendent, A. W. Whittington who inspired the young people with his words of fatherly counsel and mature judgement. The Church is located in a rapidly growing neighborhood and the young men are especially active. We are making great preparations for a visit from the Wide-Awake Circle of Trinity A. M. E. Church. The Sunday School is hoping for a visit from District Superintendent, G. S. White. Rev. J. G. Martin is pastor.

HE GOT HIS MAN

Rufus Pinckney, Pittsburg cop, former sergeant in the First Separate Company of Maryland National Guard and winner of the War cross, was in the city last week in order to carry back with him a white prisoner arrested here on charge of robbery and attempted murder.

NOTED DEACONESS DIES AT HOPKINS

Deaconess Jane Catherine Lowe, the colored National Field Secretary appointed by the National Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died at Johns Hopkins, Thursday, November 27th.

Mrs Lowe was born in Morefield, Va., in 1866. In 1885 she married the late Joseph B. Lowe and moved to Wheeling, W. Va. Mrs. Lowe was member of Simpson M. E. Church, Wheeling, for many years and later entered the training school for Deaconess at Ashville, N. C. Mrs. Lowe graduated from the Training School in 1919, and because of her ability and sincerity was almost immediately made National Field Secretary for colored work by the National Missions Board.

Burial services were held at Sharp Street Memorial M. E. Church, Rev. Wm. H. Dean, pastor of the church, officiating. Rev. Dean was assisted by Rev. A. J. Virgil, Rev. N. M. Carroll, Rev. L. A. Carter, Rev. B. T. Perkins, Rev. A. J. Mitchell, Rev. Tilden and Rev. Ernest Williams, District Superintendent of the North Baltimore District, and Rev. Julius C. Carroll, of the South Baltimore District.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Washington Conference attended in a body. Resolutions were read from the Washington Conference and from the North and South Baltimore Districts.

The National Board of Home Missions was represented by the General Secretary, Mrs. D. B. Streets, white. Mrs. Streets had just recently attended a meeting of the Home Missions Board at which time Deaconess Lowe was heartily endorsed for the supervisor of a Deaconess training school to be opened at New Orleans under Bishop Robert Jones. Mrs. J. Trubin, white, of the local Deaconess Board, spoke in behalf of the local Deaconess.

The remains were shipped to Wheeling, W. Va. Surviving Mrs. M. J. Camper accompanied the daughter, Mrs. J. S. Brown, to Virginia. Besides a daughter and son, Deaconess Lowe is survived by two brothers, Clarence and Andrew Peters.

HOLD UNION SERVICES

Union Thanksgiving Services, in which Trinity A. M. E., Whatcoat M. E., and Sharp Street M. E. Church took part, were held at the latter church Thursday.

The Thanksgiving sermon was preached by Rev. W. H. Thomas, and fitting remarks made by Bishop A. L. Gaines and Rev. Wm. H. Dean, pastor of Sharp Street.

Taking as a text, "I will lift up mine eyes from which cometh help. My help cometh from the Lord who made Heaven and Earth," Rev. Mr. Thomas delivered an inspiring discourse. Special music was rendered by the Trinity choir under direction of L. Wilson, organist.

A collection of $103.71 was raised which will be used for charitable purposes.

INSTALLS PIPE ORGAN

The Grace A. M. E. Church of Catonsville has lately installed a large pipe-organ. The services of a very competent organist have been secured and the choir is rendering beautiful music at each service. All auxiliaries of the church are moving nicely. Rev. C. A. Williams, is pastor

HOLD UNION SERVICES

The Epworth League of Metropolitan M.E. Church received as guests, the members of the Union Baptist B. Y.P.U. The visitors presented a well prepared program which was greatly appreciated by the large and enthusiastic audience. Worthy of special mention were solos by Miss Georgia Lawrence and Miss Powell, also a paper by Miss Carrie Dorsey. The Young People's Choir of Union Baptist is unquestionably one of the best musical organizations in the city, setting an example for the other churches. Colection taken during the joint service was $9.15. Rev. J. H. Green, is pastor of Metropolitan M. E. Church, and Rev. David E. Over, is Pastor of Union Baptist Church.
