LOCAL MATTERS

No Tolchester Boat To-day.—Owing to the ice condition there will be no boat to Tolchester to-day, and the prospects are bad for a boat to Chestertown.

Are You Ready.—Are you ready for the examination for fourth-class postmasterships which will take place in Chestertown next Saturday? We understand that quite a great many applicants have been burning the midnight oil working sums and learning to write in order that they may be the high man or woman on the list of eligibles for these positions. The examinations will be given by the local examining board, Deputy Postmasters R. Snowden Thomas and Frank Elburn, and will be held in High School, Chestertown, at 9 o'clock. We hope every Anti-Organization candidate in the county will get the highest mark.

Seventy-Fifth Birthday.—Mr. Wm. Burgess celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday on Sunday, March 1st, at his home in Piney Neck. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. Vachel Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Burgess and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Jeffries, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jaquette, Mrs. Mary Wilkie, Mr. and Mrs. E. Leary, Mr. and Mrs. M. Miller, Mr. Samuel Wickes, Mr. Wagner, Mr. Crosby, Mr. Spencer Greenwood, Mr. H. McClosky, Mr. John Hadaway, Margaret Burgess, Katherine Jeffries, Harry Jeffries, Adalina Wilkie, Mr. Wm. Burgess.

Interested in Oyster Culture.—Capt. Joseph W. Thompson, formerly of this town, and now a prominent business man of Philadelphia, has been interested in oyster culture in Maryland waters for quite a number of years. In 1898 he leased grounds in Lynn Haven Bay, Chincoteague Island and around Cape Charles, Va., and from that time until 1902 he was engaged in planting oysters. He just began taking the oysters this winter, and they are of such a fine size and condition that he expects to reap a fine profit from their sale. Mr. Thompson is connected with the Maryland Pure Food Company in Philadelphia, which handles oysters and poultry, and Philadelphia affords a fine market for the sale of the luscious bivalves. Capt. Thompson sent a barrel of these fine oysters to his brother, Capt. Wm. C. A. Thomps n last week, who remembered a number of his friends, among whom we were pleased to be included.

High Honor.

Mr. Julian C. Numbers, of Millington, was selected as one of the contestants of the Webster Literary Society of Western Maryland College, at the preliminary contest held in the Society Hall on Friday afternoon, Feb. 27th. This is one of the greatest honors to be sought after at Western Maryland, and creates a wide interest among the students. Mr. Numbers excelled both in appearance and in composition and justly deserves the honor bestowed upon him. His subject was the "Commissions Problem", which dealt with the freight rates. The subject itself does not appear interesting, but Mr. Numbers presented it in a manner which demanded the attention of the audience, and brought forth long applause. In Mr. Numbers the Webster Society feel they have found a man who will bring victory to the society at the annual contest held to be in Alumni Hall of the Western Maryland College next June.

Subscription to the Transcript $1 per annum.

¶The members of the Volunteer Fire Company proved their great value to the town's property holders on Monday morning at the Janes M. E. Church fire, when by their heroic work the small dwelling scarcely 20 feet from the burned church was saved. Our fire laddies deserve especial commendation for the skill they display in fighting fires.

¶The B. S. Ford, Captain Wm. Tailor, made a heroic effort to reach Chestertown on Tuesday, but she encountered such heavy ice at the mouth of the river that she put back to Rock Hall for the night. The heavy northwest winds have blocked the mouth of the river with thick ice, and there has been no boat to Chestertown for two weeks.

¶A Mr. Weinburg, of Philadelphia has purchased the stock of goods belonging to the Globe Clothing Store, of which Mr. Max. Cohen is the manager. The storeroom will be repaired and occupied by Mr. Cohen, who had the misfortune to have his goods damaged by fire shortly after opening business here just before Christmas.

¶One of our poultrymen had a sitting hen to freeze to death on her nest during the recent bitter weather. One of our lady poultry raisers got the best of two hens that would not sit. The hens left their nest a few days before the eggs were to hatch. The lady took the eggs, wrapped them up and placed them near the fire. By keeping the cloths warm she succeeded in having a fine hatch, and the youngsters are doing fine.

Visiting Fox Hunters.

Messrs. Whitney Kernochen, Alex. Phillips, Alvin B. Baird and Mr. Larned, of New York, members of the Peapack N. J. Hunting Club, are guests of Mr. George Brice, their Master of Hounds, for a month's fox hunting trip in Kent. The members were accompanied by 14 horses, four grooms and 54 dogs. The visitors are guests of the Voshell House. The horses are quartered at Mr. Robert J. McWhorter's livery stables and the dogs in charge of an attendant, are kenneled on Mr. Brice's farm near Lankford. The first day's sport was enjoyed on Wednesday. The huntsmen, led by Mr. Brice and accompanied by some twenty or thirty Kent huntsmen, went to Frying Pan in Quaker Neck but they failed to start Sir Reynard. They went to another place, where a fox was started, but the dogs soon lost him, and the remainder of the day was spent in a fruitless effort to get on the track of another shy fox. Mr. Brice is leaving no stone unturned to show his guests a royal time and the country folks are assisting splendidly. The weather has been very unfavorable during the greater part of the week for successful hunting, but the hunters have been out every day during the week, and the fine horses as well as their riders have enjoyed the exercise. The present contingent of club members will be augmented from time to time by other members of the club, which is composed of some of the wealthiest young men in New York, and before they leave Kent it is hoped that they may have a number of fine chases. The fine pack of dogs will be quartered on Mr. Brice's farm until June 1st. Mr. Brice, who has charge of the club's property in Peapack, is very popular with the members, and in return for the good treatment which he is receiving at their hands, he is returning the compliment in showing them a fine time here.

Miss Nellie Jones, of near Kennedyville, has been the guest of Miss Lillian Hicks on Queen street, for the past two weeks.

Janes Church Destroyed.

Janes M. E. Church, colored, Rev. J. R. Holland, pastor, was totally destroyed by fire at five o'clock on Monday morning, during the worst wind and snowstorm ever experienced in this section. The fire was first discovered about five o'clock, but there are some who believe that the fire had been burning for several hours before it was discovered. Mr. Lawrence Duyer, who lives about 150 yards from the church, retired about eleven o'clock, and he stated that his attention was attracted to the bright light in the church, and he said to his wife, "They certainly have the church brilliantly illuminated tonight." Mr. Duyer states that he thought some kind of service was in progress and he thought nothing further about it. The officials of the church state that the lights were turned off at 9.30 o'clock and when the last person left the church, there was scarcely enough fire in the furnace to do any damage.

Rev. J. R. Holland, pastor of the church, was one of the first on the scene. He was awakened by the cry of fire and seeing a reflection through a window of the church, unlocked a door and entered. He found some smoke in the place, but the blaze, he said, was only a medium size streak following the electric light wire around the room on the second floor from the chimney clear to where it entered the room.

He says the chimney had recently been cleaned out and that there was scarcely any fire in the furnace. Rev. Holland says the church had been closed Sunday night at shortly after nine o'clock, because of the building being cold and the furnace and everything about the place which would have caused a fire was carefully examined before closing.

The Volunteer Fire Company, under the direction of Chief Cannan, were quickly on the scene, and by heroic efforts prevented a small dwelling some twenty feet from the church being burned although it was somewhat damaged by heat and water. The basket factory, and in fact the entire lower portion of the town, was threatened, but the heavy snowstorm prevented the sparks from lodging. Capt. Crane kept a force of men stationed around the basket factory and the fire hose stretched in case of emergency.

The building was owned by Mr. L. Bates Russell and was insured for $1700.

The congregation owned fixtures to the amount of about $1,000, which were insured for $400. The bell, which cost about $75 was destroyed.

The Janes M. E. Church congregation will probably worship in the tabernacle on Princess street, until their building on Cannon and Cross streets is completed. The colored school, which was also held in this building, will use the Grand Army Hall on Cross street.

The burned building was erected in 1866 and 1867 by the late John T. Dodd, and was built of good material.

Boy Scouts.

Chestertown troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America was organized on Thursday afternoon. The preliminary meeting was held at the Chestertown High School. Owen C. Blades was designated scout-master and Floyd Brown assistant scout-master. Profs. Mark Creasy, Jefferson L. Smyth, Mr. Thomas Massey, S. Scott Beck, Esq., and Mr. Donald F. Stam consented to act as members of the local council. Roy Barnett and George Clendaniel were unanimously elected secretary and treasurer. There were thirty-one present, viz: John Roe, Richard Collins, Belt Townshend, Walter Pippin, Sidney Turner, George Clendaniel, John Collins, Horace Wood, William Smith, Wilbur Strong, Horace Stoops, Albert Strong, Julian Coleman, Charles Armstrong, Hodgson Clift, Archie Coleman, Alan Rouse, William Newman, Wilson DeFord, Bates Chaires, Robert Pippin, Edgar Chaires, Milbourne Jones, William Miller, Harry Derringer, Daniel McKee, Henry Lambert, Horace Needles, Alvin Brown and Roy Barnett. These were divided into patrols under patrol leaders, Richard Collins, Alan Rouse and Henry Lambert, respectively. Dr. Frank B. Hines was elected scout surgeon. Application for the necessary papers were made to H. L. Eddy, scout commissioner Boy Scouts of America, Baltimore, Md. We think this a movement in the right direction in training for boys, and ask a hearty co-operation from the public.
