15,000 IN LINE FILE PAST BIER OF DEAD LEADER

Lincoln Football Team Guard Of Honor At Funeral Of Dr. George Cannon

RACE POLICEMEN ON DUTY

First Assignment Is Funeral Of Leader Who Worked For Their Appointment

(By C. Bion Jones)

Jersey City, N. J.—15,000 persons filed past the etaoni of Dr. George Cannon, physician and political leader as it lay in state in Lafayette Presbyterian church here.

Dr. Cannon was thrown from a bus in front of his home at 3 a. m., Palm Sunday. He was returning home from an alumni meeting at Lincoln University.

Members of the Lincoln football team stood as guard of honor at the church and at the home.

The three newly appointed policemen of the race were assigned to guard of honor, a thing that Dr. Cannon had fought so long to see, and never saw it a realization. The very week that the Doctor lay ill, these three men of the race were appointed, and their first official duty was to stand guard at his bier.

The funeral was attended by many thousands of people, from all parts of the U. S., many of the South's leading physicians and professors as well as Statesmen from other parts were present.

Particularly of national note was the telegram, letter and then floral piece from President Coolidge. Flowers came from many distant parts of this country, even as late as Friday floral tributes were coming into the home, and were immediately transferred to the cemetery. U. S. Senator Copeland, of New York, Senator Watson of Indiana, former U. S. Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen, Hon. Daniel Pomeroy, Hon. Thos. McCran, Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey, Hon. A. Harry Moore, City Commissioner; Judge J. B. Raymond, of Philadelphia and New York; Dr. Morgan of Yonkers, N. Y., sent tributes.

In the pulpit with Rev. W. A. Byrd, pastor, who preached the sermon were three former pastors of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. Cannon was one of the principal founders. Rev. Chas. H. Trusty, of Pitts, Pa., Rev. Chas. S. Freeman, of Philadelphia, Rev. W. Griffin, of Atlantic City, N. J.; Rev. W. S. Smith, pastor of the Monumental Baptist Church and a life long friend of Dr. Cannon's.

The active pall bearers were the eldest of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church. The honorary members were representatives from all of the organizations and societies that Dr. Cannon was a member, which prominently included, The National Medical Association, Dr. Walter G. Alexandre, president; North Jersey Medical Association, John Brown, Building and Loan Association, of which Dr. Cannon was president; Hudson County Republican Executive Committee, represented by Hon. Thomas McDonald, and Postmaster John Rotherham, Colored Republican Association of Hudson County, A. S. Thomas, president, and C. Bion Jones, Jersey City, Rep. Com.; Federation of Colored Organizations of New Jersey, by Hon. John Huggs, Hon. W. H. DePaur, C. M. Brown, J. E. Everette, J. P. Anderson, P. B. James, J. W. Hudspeth, Walter Edwards, John E. Jones, James Penn, Progressive Lodge No. 35, I. B. P. O. Elks; Dr. Walter Quinn, Counselor A. B. Tabb.

From Philadelphia came Mrs. Frank Potts, with Rev. Charles S. Freeman and wife, Mr. W. P. Burrell, acted as Mrs. Cannon's personal secretary for the arrangements, and much of the smoothness of the entire affair is due to the untiring efforts on his part toward a business-like arrangement of matters. Over a hundred telegrams were received, not to mention the individual letters of condolence and resolutions from every section of the country.

Tunnel Entrance At Voodoo House

Camden, N. J.—A Camden Motorcycle Cop, Robert Ward, white, is pointing to a board obstructed passageway between two houses occupied by the "Rev. Ebbenger H. H. Hyghcock" alleged voodoo doctor. In front is the old Afro Scout, Benjamin Handy, of Baltimore.

height, he has a proud bearing, made more compelling by his white hair, mustache and imperial.

He has boasted to acquaintances that he is the father of 32 children. Bootblacks tell of him giving them 50 cents tips.

In one room was found a huge cartwheel with dabs of white paint on each spoke. The wheel was mounted on a short upright axle set in the ground, permitting its rotation. Above the wheel was suspended a stuffed bird. The legs could be made to twitch and the wings to flap by the manipulation of a set of strings attached to them and fastened to a stick in an adjoining den. Besides these the room contained an old iron bed, an oil lamp and an oil stove. Other dens were similarly furnished.

Bail Of $500

Hyghcock was arrested Wednesday night when he appealed to the police, demanding a warrant for an unknown thief who had told him of a tale of threats to return and kill him.

Hyghcock was held in $500 bail early Thursday morning on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and in an equal amount on the charge of practicing medicine without a license when arranged before Police Judge Cleary. He could not raise the money after many telephone calls to white people whom he knew and he was held in jail.

Then, when the other discoveries in his dens were made, he was held without bail.

Others Arrested

A visit to is place by the police led to the exploration of the intricate series of underground chambers. They were separated by swinging doors operated by mechanical springs. Some of the cave-like dungeons contained weird contraptions, like ancient machinery of torture, believed to have been used in connection with "cures," into which patients of the voodod man were terrified.

Besides Hyghcock police arrested as material witnesses Mrs. Bipp Hyghcock, 43 years old, said to be his wife, and Mrs. Lotta Ingram, 43 years old, of 150 North Peach street, Philadelphia.

Crowd Gathers

With the arrival of the patrol a crowd gathered in front of the unkempt buildings. Bordering the gloomy houses on each side are modern well-kept two and three-story homes, inhabited by white families.

Guided by flashlights and lanterns, a long line of policemen laboriously wound through the circuitous underground passages, scrutinizing every nook, and opening every container upon which they came. At least seventy-five rooms or compartments were entered and hurriedly examined.

Innumebarle Closets

Contents of innumerable closets and holes in the walls were left undisturbed for fear that they would litter the narrow passageway and block the progress of the searchers.

In one room was found a huge cartwheel with dabs of white paint on each spoke. The wheel was mounted on a short upright axle set in the ground, permitting its rotation. Above the wheel was suspended a stuffed bird. The legs could be made to twitch and the wings to flap by the manipulation of a set of strings attached to them and fastened to a stick in an adjoining den. Besides these the room contained an old iron bed, an oil lamp and an oil stove. Other dens were similarly furnished.

Charms Found

Closets and alcoves revealed odd collections of preserves, trinkets, charms and indescribable odds and ends. In one closet in the kitchen of 413 Liberty street were discovered a complicated set of improvised signalling devices. Wires attached to sticks would ring bells and unlock doors in various rooms of the house. Each door was equipped with a spring and bolts, and some contained bells of various shapes and sizes.

In the rear of 415 Liberty street, partitioned with odd boards, curtains and rags was a chapel. This room, about 10 feet wide by 12 feet long, contained an old, wheezy organ, an altar, and religious pictures. Two more organs helped to furnish two other rooms.

Three Silk Hats

In a bedroom on the third floor of 413 Liberty street, evidently occupied by Hyghcock, the searchers found charms sewed up in bags, odd implements and three high silk hats.

Mrs. Hyghcock said that she, her husband and daughter had occupied the two houses for eight years. Hyghcock, she said, had been working on the tunnels and underground dens for years, carrying out the soil in small quantities and depositing it in the back yards. Police doubt that all the sand extracted from the subterranean dens could have been dumped in the yard and believe that Hyghcock must have carted it away under cover of darkness.

Business Cards

The business cards of H. H. Hyghcock informed the public that:

Hyghcock has a "doctor's" office in Norfolk, Va., and an undertaking establishment around the corner in the same city.

That Hyghcock is a clergyman, that he deals in real estate, cafes and stores.

"Houses sold on reasonable terms, rents collected and limousine and touring cars to hire. See me for advice and information. Better known as consulation $1 per. Rules and regulations: If you buy or sell there is no charge, but for talking me to death the fee is $1."

WHITE WOMEN ON VOODOO DOCTOR'S SECRET BOOKS

Camden, N. J.—Further investigation in the affairs of E. H. Hyghcock, the "voodoo doctor," revealed that the "doctor" drew no color line in his business and that he maintained a "girl farm."

"Dr." Hyghcock took white women by their hands, led them down the tortuous secret stairways and trap-doors that led into his underground dungeons and compartments, and there powwowed and conducted the treatments designed to remove spells, force loved ones to return and accomplished.

Early inspection of "Dr." Hyghcock's books gave police the idea that all his patients were colored except the few which were specifically marked "white," but this has proved to be false, as many persons named turned out to be white, although no special notation had been made against their names.

Minnie Amin

One of the first of these to be discovered was Minnie Amin, who formerly lived at 304 Mickle street. Against her name in the book of mysteries was the notation: Fixed name. (Walter Williams.) Paid the sum amount which were charged. Sum $15. Pronounce O. K. 8-2-24 for bringing and binding such as those that had drifted away. Not yet completed. Guaranteed to give satisfaction. X. X. 433. Minnie turned out to be a white girl of 23 years of age.

Brought Powders Home

"I remember the first day she went to see the old fake," said Mrs. Crosesl, whom Minnie lived with. "She came back here scared as a bat. She was kind of superstitious and believed in fortune telling and in this hoodoo business. She told me that Hyghcock took hold of her hand led her into the cellar through some dark picaes till she almost fainted. Then he gave her some powder. She brought it home and sprinkled it all over her room."

Another of the white patients of the voodoo man was a Philadelphian on Montgomery avenue, Philadelphia. His record, as it appeared in the books of the medicine man wss as follows: "My wife left me the year of 1924, and in the month of December, near Christmas, whilst the heaven was in a smile and the beasts of the forest making ready for their long sleep. She went to West Philadelphia. Been to Atlantic City since July. Her sweetheart, his name is ——. He is to be thrown first. Then wife drawn home to husband. Circumstances of condition: Paid the sum of $10 upon case, $23 on time."

Hyghcock's letters to the husband but his wife back or no, but if he had no better luck than Emmerson Nichols, of 611 Sycamore street, he wasted his money.

Wed Thrifty Wife

Emmerson Nichols, married a thrifty wife more than a year ago and moved right into the comfortable home which he had already provided and furnished. When his wife threw him out he went to Hyghcock for help. Emmerson has yet to see his wife come back.

Lucy Nichols, Emmerson's thrifty wife said that he had been running around with other women and failed to contribute to the support of him out of the house. The next thing Lucy heard was a report that Emmerson had been going down into the voodoo den. She heard a noise in front yard and looked out of the window.

There was Emmerson in the front yard sprinkling powder on the door step. She drove Emmerson away under threats of arrest.

"Did it work?" Lucy was asked.

"Well, I guess so, I haven't and if wont ever work. He is never going to get back into this house. I expect you'll find him living down on the Eighth Street dump, like he did before I took him in."

Early this year Lucy had Emmerson arrested for annoying her, and that may have been because that Hyghcock's records showed that Emmerson had never completed his payments for the voodoo treatment.

Eight Girls From Florida

"I just brought eight girls here from Florida and got them jobs," Hyghcock told an acquaintance early this week, "I had to bring them here because all around. They live at my house until I find jobs for them. They come back to see me every Thursday and give me money for the Lord."

Six or Eight Automobiles

It was also learned that at the South Camden office of the Jersey Motor Vehicle Department, that Hyghcock had obtained six or eight sets of New Jersey license tags for automobiles in the last few weeks.

When asked concerning his reason for the many license tags, Hyghcock remarked: "I keep a different car for every different kind of road in this country."

Keeps Overcoat On

Since he has been in a prison cell he has not taken off his overcoat. He even keeps it on while being questioned.

Hackensack, N. J.—(A. N. P.)—Frederick Everett Morrow, in a most brilliant debate conducted by the Rutger's College of Inter-scholastic Debating League, carried off the honors, although the team which he represented was defeated. He proved to be the orator of the evening in the debate between Englewood and Hackensack High Schools. He was given an ovation.

FOURTH BABY'S BODY FOUND AT VOODOO'S

Camden, N. J.—Police investigating the "voodoo den" of H. H. Hyghcock, 413-15 Liberty street, under arrest on suspicion of murder, made many important discoveries today.

The finding of a blood-stained hatchet buried under the floor of one of the underground rooms, discovery of a hidden vault, the entrance freshly cemented and covered with wall-papered boards, of what is believed to be a well under the "sacrifice room." When the police tore off the lid of the well, today, they were driven from the underground passage by the odor that emanated from the large hole. A blood-stained mattress cover, hidden in a second story rear room, was found.

Further digging in the underground den disclosed the skeleton of a baby, the fourth infant's body found in the "voodoo den." Lastly Hyghcock has proven to be the biggest liar in the part of the city.

Hyghcock was questioned for more than an hour this afternoon in City Hall.

Hyghcock said he has had five wives, two are living and the fourth he doesn't know her whereabouts. He also stated that he had been married to this wife for 2 years. Thirty-three of his 35 children are living in different parts of the country. But when he was asked how many women he had killed Hyghcock failed to answer.

When asked how he could account for the four dead babies found in the cellar of this home, Hyghcock said he buried them from a Dr. White, in Philadelphia, Pa.

Hyghcock was firm in his reply to the detectives that he had never killed a woman, although his seven-year-old daughter said he did.
