The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

POTASH TAX HITS THE FARMERS HARD

Looking to Washington For Relief From German Exactions.

Efforts continue to secure relief from the enormous tax imposed by Germany on exports of potash to the United States. In these efforts all agricultural interests are deeply concerned for the reason that potash is an essential element of all commercial fertilizers.

Realizing the seriousness of the burden so imposed, President Taft and the state department have made vigorous protest to Germany, and the matter is still pending. A representative of the state department who visited Berlin in an effort to secure redress from the German government has just returned to Washington, and further action by the administration is expected without great delay.

Official efforts to bring about a favorable settlement have from the start been actively aided by the nonsyndicate potash mines which made the American low price contracts.

Did Germany Break Promises?

It is understood that the state department had assurances from the German government when the tax law was first talked of that nothing would be done which would impair existing trade arrangements. These assurances proved to be worthless, and after Germany had secured the benefits of the minimum rates of our new tariff law the potash tax was put into force. President Taft in his message to congress may have had this fact in mind when he said, referring to the successful working out of the maximum and minimum provision, "There are, however, unfortunately, instances where foreign governments deal arbitrarily with American interests within their jurisdiction in a manner injurious and inequitable."

It was when the German potash syndicate found that independent mines had got almost all of the American business by making prices about 30 per cent lower than the syndicate prices that the law now complained of by American consumers was demanded by the potash trust and enacted by the reichstag with the avowed purpose to deprive Americans of the benefits of their advantageous agreements, running in some cases until 1916.

The amount of the tax imposed by Germany is more than the entire cost at the mines under the American contracts with nonsyndicate producers and makes the price on deliveries in the United States much greater than the old exorbitant syndicate prices. As the American contracts provide that the buyer shall pay all government charges, the tax falls heaviest upon the consumers of potash for the making of fertilizers.

Tax Levied to Raise Prices.

The tax law was passed, it is asserted, with no other purpose than to destroy existing contracts, to coerce all potash mines into the syndicate and so to bring about a return to high prices and take away the market made here by nonsyndicate producers.

Until this controversy arose it was not generally known that potash in workable quantities was found only in Germany. The production is and has been for twenty years controlled by a syndicate, which also fixes the price that the world shall pay for this necessity. In this syndicate, which is strictly regulated by law, several German governments participate as owners of potash mines. It was during a temporary lapse in the syndicate, leaving every one free to make his own figures, that the low prices now causing trouble were made.

WATCH ROADS THIS WINTER.

Improved Highways Are Now Passing Test of All Traffic and Weather Conditions, and Those That Make Good Will Be Standards of the Future.

At the end of the present winter good roads builders will be able to form definite opinions as to what shall be the standard road of the future. Road building up to the present has been for the most part more or less experimental. Demonstration as to just how good some "good roads" would prove to be has been lacking because improved highways have not been built long enough to show their worth.

On asphaltic macadam is placed the main reliance of road engineers. Such highways have been proved absolutely necessary to withstand heavy traffic, and the main question remaining to be decided is the best "binder" to hold the stone of the macadam together. Some of these binders "bleed" in summer and then get so brittle that they "lose" the road. The natural asphalts, such as are used in street pavements, do not act in this way.

Whatever may be next spring's verdict as to what is the best road, the movement for improved highways is going steadily forward with increased energy. The latest to enlist in the good roads cause are the presidents of the Pennsylvania, New York Central and Southern railroads and Mr. Yoakum of the Frisco, who were among the organizers of the American Association For Highway Improvement, now getting to work in Washington, with Logan W. Page, director of the office of public roads, as president.
